10,000 Men Called Up Under New Draft Law

Order Issued at Pentagon as Boards Throughout Nation Register 25-Year-Olds

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The first draft call under the new peacetime selective service law—ordering 10,000 men into the Army during November—was issued yesterday at the Pentagon.

It came as men aged 25 registered at draft board headquarters throughout the Nation. They will be the first to don uniforms under the conscription law.

Pickets surrounded some registration centers and there were a few cases of disorder. Generally, however, the thousands of potential draftees filled out their forms without incident.

Plans for Induction

Pentagon officials said that it probably will be the latter part of October before any men will receive the fateful "greetings" ordering them to report for induction. Several procedural steps must be taken in the meantime.

They said also that yesterday's call for 10,000 men to be inducted in November means that no one enrolling in college this fall who keeps up his studies will be inducted until next summer. The draft law provides for deferment until the end of the school year for anyone actually attending college when called. Had any inductions been ordered for late September—permissible under the law—some students might have been caught before the school term began.

Yesterday's registration included only men of 25 born in 1922 after August 30. Today and

Draft Signs 5000 25-Year-Olds Here

Selective Service—which put 15 million men into uniform in World War II—came back in peacetime yesterday to tap America's 25-year-olds. About 5000 registered here.

In Greater Washington and over the Nation, the draft machinery swung into action as an estimated 400,000 young men trooped to registration centers to sign up for military service. Only a few men of this oldest age group will be inducted, according to draft officials.

Today and Wednesday, men who are 24 will register, followed Thursday and Friday by the 23-year-olds, and so on down the list until the 18-year-old men finish the registration period September 18.

Schedule of Dates

Here is the schedule of registration dates by age groups. All registration centers, under Selective Service regulations, are open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., except that private employers and the Federal Government may set up their own times and places.

Today and Wednesday, men born in 1923 will register; men born in 1924 sign up September 2-3; 1925, September 4 or 7; 1926, September 8-9; 1927, September 10-11; 1928, September 13-14; 1929, September 15-16; if born in 1930 before September 19, sign up September 17-18.

Niece, 13, Admits Starting Mystery Fires at Farm

Macomb, Ill., Aug. 30 (AP).—The 13-year-old niece of Charlie Willey confessed today she touched off the "mystery" fires that burned down his house and barns.

The confession blasted notions that everything from radio waves to atomic energy or "ghosts" had caused the fires.

Wanet McNeil, a red-haired child who was once blind, said she touched off the fires with matches because "I didn't like where I was living," State's Attorney Keith Scott said.

Egg Barrage Hits Wallace On N. C. Tour

Tomatoes, Rock Also Tossed at Candidate, Once Visibly Shaken

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 30.—This was a terrible day for Henry Wallace.

He was bombarded with eggs, tomatoes and other missiles in three towns as he traveled westward across North Carolina.

Hecklers, booing and yelling, "Go back to Russia," created such a bedlam that only fragments of his speeches could be heard.

The former Vice President and Cabinet officer, now running for President as the nominee of the Progressive Party, was struck by four eggs.

One Hits Head, 3 His Arm

One hit him on the back of his head, and three crashed against his arm.

Tonight Wallace spoke at the baseball park here in Winston-Salem before a crowd of 2000 Negroes and whites. The white men—most of them, at least—booed continuously as Wallace stood in a driving rain trying to make himself heard.

Police were out in force however, and no missles were thrown.

Police Chief John Gold went into the stands at one point and told the hecklers that they were doing just what the Communists wanted them to do.

Wallace, after cancelling a reservation at the Robert E. Lee Hotel, spent the night at the suburban home of Carl Russell, a well-to-do Negro undertaker.

The Iowan ran into his first barrage today in the town of Burlington, on the way from Durham to Greensboro.

A crowd of 500 angry citizens had gathered on the main street of Burlington, and as Wallace got

Reds Got Him Federal Job, Says Ex-Spy

Chambers Names 3 In $6000 Sinecure; Peters Refuses to Answer Questions

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—Whittaker Chambers testified today he used Communist influence to get a $6000-a-year "boondoggling" job with the Government in 1937. He named three men through whom he said he obtained the job.

He said this was while he was drawing pay as a Communist underground courier and that, through party influence, he landed the job "within 24 hours."

At the same hearing, a subcommittee of the House Un-American Activities Committee failed to draw any information from "J. Peters," the mysterious, long-sought witness identified by Chambers as the No. 1 man in the Communist underground in this country.

After Peters took refuge in the Constitution in declining to answer all key questions, the subcommittee members recommended contempt charges for him. They said, though, that their proposed contempt citation could not be presented before September 7.

Names Silverman, Kaplan

Chambers told the subcommittee he obtained the Federal job, through Abraham George Silverman and Irving Kaplan, both Government employes at the time, and Peters.

Silverman, who Chambers said was a Communist, was named last month by Elizabeth Bentley as a member of an alleged wartime Russian spy ring operating in Government circles.

Representative Nixon (R., Calif.), a committee member, said Chambers' testimony would link the prewar spy underground described by Chambers with the wartime ring described by Miss Bentley.

Chambers said his job, with the research department of the Railroad Retirement Board, was "boondoggling." He claimed he was warned not to hurry about doing his work "or the job would end."

Chambers also linked Peters—who he has claimed was "director of an underground spy apparatus"—to the job.

Peters Remains Silent

Peters, at today's hearing, refused to say if he knew Chambers.

Chambers said he discussed getting a job with Peters and Silverman because, he claimed to have told them, "I could not float around Washington without some sort of occupation."

They referred him, Chambers said, to Kaplan, "who they said was coordinator of the national research project." This "project" was not further identified.

"I talked to Kaplan," Chambers said, "and within 24 hours I was on the Federal payroll."

Peters, subpenaed this morning by the subcommittee, refused to answer questions relating to the alleged spy ring and his alleged

Axis Sally Asks Delay in Trial Due to Illness

Time Also Sought To Make Repairs In Legal Fences

Mildred Elizabeth Gillars, the Nazi radio's alleged wartime "Axis Sally," yesterday appealed for time to regain her health before she is heard here on treason charges.

She also apparently needed time to patch up her legal fences, broken down in a series of charges and counter-charges.

Specifically, Miss Gillars asked U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence here to postpone a hearing scheduled for today on the treason charge being pressed by the Government.

Claims She Is Ill

The Portland, Me., woman said that she is ill and "desirous of obtaining medical attention."

A short time earlier yesterday, she notified Attorney John M. Holzworth, who had stepped in to defend her, that she wished to emphatically repudiate "all and everything you have done, or allegedly attempted to do in my behalf."

She further sent a letter to Judge Richmond B. Keech, of the United States District Court, which said that Holzworth "without my consent and without authority, either expressed or implied, has undertaken to appear in your court as my attorney."

Follows Withdrawal

Her action followed withdrawal of Attorney Richard W. Tomkins, and withdrawal of his petitions to aid Miss Gillars, when he notified Judge Keech he was initially retained by Holzworth and was now convinced he (Holzworth) had no authority to act for Miss Gillars.

Thomkins had asked District Court to order Donald Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections, to show just cause why Miss Gillars should not be released.

The motion declared that Tompkins had been retained by John M. Holtzworth, a New York lawyer, and that Holtzworth is representing Miss Gillars without her consent.

He said that Holtzworth told him last Friday he would halve the $2000 fee which he had been

Carolina Beaches Evacuated, Planes, Ships Flee Hurricane; 25-Mile Wind Is Likely Here

Five More Die From Heat Here; Cooler Weather Predicted Today

Washington is expected to receive no more than a "glancing blow" from the hurricane now threatening the North Carolina coast, the United States Weather Bureau said here yesterday.

The storm, which is expected to pass over or near Washington some time today, probably will produce winds no higher than 25 miles per hour, and general cloudiness, according to the latest forecast.

Weather Bureau officials base their predictions on the fact that the path of the hurricane, now headed for Cape Hatteras, N. C., may be turning out to the northeast. The hurricane was first observed on August 25, bureau officials said, when it was seen off the coast of Puerto Rico. Since then, it has been moving in a northwesterly direction. It remained nearly stationary most of yesterday indicating a change in its course.

85 Tops Is Forecast For Today

Because the hurricane is moving in a narrow path, its full force would have to hit within at least a 50-mile radius of Washington for the city to feel any major effects of the storm, Weather Bureau officials said.

Meanwhile, Washingtonians, who have sizzled under a five-day heat wave, were assured yesterday by the weatherman that today will be somewhat cooler, with temperatures no higher than 85.

A local thunderstorm late yesterday afternoon tumbled the thermometer 21 degrees in 24 minutes, dropping it from 90 degrees at 5:28 p. m. to 69 at 5:52 p. m. It climbed slowly again to 75, at 7:38 p. m., before night cooling set in.

Five More Dead Here

The storm's heat relief came after five more persons died from heat exhaustion.

The electrical, wind and rain storm struck sporadically throughout the area. It rained heavily at the National Airport and in many other sections of the District. In still others it brought high winds, but few raindrops.

A lightning bolt struck and damaged the automobile of Homer Thurston, of 1414 Montello ave., at 5 p. m., just a few minutes after he had parked it in front of his home and left it there. The bolt seared the roof upholstery, he said.

Neighbors said the lightning bolt that struck the car first hit a large tree there, shearing off a 5-inch strip of bark from top to bottom and sending the bark splintering about the area.

Electric power was reported off for nearly an hour in portions of Southeast Washington, beginning at 6:30 p. m. The break in service caught the Fourteenth Police Precinct station house at 14th and N sts. se., without power for the radio, telephone and teletype service, police said.

The trouble was attributed to two downed, primary electric lines at the intersections of Kenilworth and Southern aves. se., and Southern ave. and Bowen rd. se.

Bare Possibility Blow May Turn Out to Sea, Says Storm Service

BULLETIN

Miami, Fla., Aug. 30 (AP).—Indications that the hurricane now off the North Carolina coastline is beginning to curve out to sea have been received from military aircraft in the storm area, the Weather Bureau said tonight.

Further information will be needed before a definite conclusion can be reached, it was added.

"Even if the storm does begin to turn, it's now close enough to land that storm winds are going to hit in the hurricane warning areas, it said.

Hatteras, N. C., Aug. 30 (AP).—North Carolina beaches and outer banks were evacuated tonight as long Atlantic swells warned of the approaching hurricane.

Residents of lowland areas back from the coastline also were warned to seek shelter on higher ground as playground resorts and hotels battened down for the expected blow.

Largest movement of persons was at Atlantic Beach, where the Red Cross ordered 1000 residents to board up their homes and leave the sand strip near Morehead City. Low areas in the Morehead City-Beaufort region also were cited as dangerous.

Storm's Advance Slower

At 5:30 p. m. Weather Bureau advisory placed the hurricane center 190 miles south of here and said the storm was moving northwest or northward at 8 to 10 miles an hour, slower than previously reported.

This would bring the center near Cape Hatteras early Tuesday, since the slow forward movement is expected to continue, the bureau said.

Winds of gale force were forecast for the area about midnight, increasing to hurricane force within a few hours.

Forecaster F. B. Whitney said at Norfolk tonight "there is practically no chance of hurricane force winds striking the Virginia coast."

At 10 p. m. (EDT) Whitney said winds stirred by the Atlantic hurricane may reach a peak of 40 miles per hour in the Hampton Roads and lower Chesapeake Bay areas Tuesday "about noon or a little later," with slightly higher velocities at Virginia Beach and Cape Henry.

"The storm appears to be curving slightly to the northeast," Whitney said.

It was on this curving movement that he said he based his "optimism."

Hurricane warnings were continued from Wilmington to Cape Hatteras and storm warnings elsewhere to the Virginia Capes, but storm warnings south of Wilmington were removed.

The armed forces, meanwhile, flew to distant inland airfields or stowed in safe hangars more than 2000 airplanes normally stationed along the Atlantic Coast. Another 600 Navy planes and more Air Force craft were ready to follow if necessary.

The Red Cross said in Washington it had sent 54 disaster workers into the hurricane-threatened areas.

At New Bern, 40 miles from the coast, both the Red Cross and the Army stocked emergency supplies of food and medicines.

Eastern Coast Alerted

Military Planes by Hundreds Fly Inland Before Hurricane

The Eastern coast yesterday readied itself for a big blow as the Navy began ferrying aircraft inland, and the Air Force prepared to evacuate its seacoast air stations today.

In the Greater Washington area, evacuation of more than 100 planes from the Anacostia Naval Air Station was almost completed last night, with 12 more planes scheduled to take off this morning for four inland dispersal points.

At Bolling Field, Commanding Gen. B. M. Hovey ordered a 7:30 a. m. take-off today for 100 planes which will be flown to Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Twenty-five planes will be kept on the base in hangars, and an equal number will continue flight operation outside the hurricane area.

At Washington National Airport, commercial airline operation continued normal. The six planes maintained by Military Air Transport Service were evacuated to Wright-Patterson Field, Ohio. Airport officials said they would "batten down" planes which are left out of hangars, but did not consider the present situation an emergency.

At Andrews Field, Md., pilots were ordered to stand by to evacuate planes, but base officials said the order was purely precautionary under present circumstances. Planes at the base, mostly fighters and jets, have been put in revetments and lashed securely.

Coastwise, the hurricane threat brought "alert" conditions to military establishments within 100 miles of the sea.

At Norfolk, about 50 naval ships were ordered to leave the base, and go either to a Chesapeake Bay anchorage or to sea and ride out the hurricane. Among ships affected were the battleship Missouri and the cruisers Albany and Fresno.

Approximately 2000 Navy planes were included in Condition 1 alert put into effect by the Navy. All airfields in the South and Central Atlantic Coastal area were ordered to evacuate all flyable aircraft, unless they have hurricaneproof hangars.

Johnson Pares Stevenson Lead To 119 Votes in Texas Run-off

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 30.—Former Gov. Coke Stevenson tonight held a lead of only 119 votes in the Texas Democratic runoff against Representative Lyndon B. Johnson for the United States Senate.

Stevenson's biggest majority during the day was at 2 p. m. (CST) when he was out in front by 306 votes. By 3 p. m., he had slipped to a lead of 246 votes and later to 78 votes.

It was estimated about 400 votes remain unaccounted for. Nearly a million votes have been tabulated.

At one point in the early returns Stevenson held a majority of more than 17,500 votes, but Johnson forged ahead yesterday.

In the 9 p. m. (11 p. m. EDT) tabulation today, Stevenson was given 493,747 votes, Johnson 493,-given 494,396, Johnson 494,277.

Texas' Democratic run-off primary was held last Saturday, but there was every indication the successor to Senator W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel would not be decided until the State Democratic Convention certifies the returns September 14. O'Daniel did not seek re-election.

Both candidates have said they would not accept the result of the Texas Election Bureau as final. Democratic nomination in Texas is tantamount to election.

Two new United States Representatives were named in the run-off election and one incumbent was reelected. They were Lloyd M. Bentsen, Jr., McAllen, from the Fifteenth District; Homer Thornberry, Austin, from the Tenth District, and Representative Tom Pickett, reelected in the Seventh District.

'Blind' Arms Also Assailed

International Red Cross Would Outlaw Atomic Wars

Stockholm, Aug. 30 (AP).—The International Red Cross urged all powers today to outlaw bacteriological and atomic warfare.

The conference adopted a resolution proposing that nations forbid the use of these weapons, gases and "blind" arms.

A new convention (agreement) for the protection of civilians in wartime was adopted unanimously in the final plenary session of the seventeenth international Red Cross conference. This seeks to give civilians about the same measure of protection now accorded to other noncombatants, such as prisoners, the sick and wounded.

The conference also accepted resolutions revising the two international Geneva conventions.

Prisoners of war will be able to receive collective relief assignments and are pledged adequate food rations.

Captured medical personnel may be detained in POW camps to treat casualties among their own forces The original convention made army doctors subject to repatriation as soon as possible.

The new convention for civilians bans concentration camps, deportations, torture, arrests without charge and the taking of hostages. It calls for the creation of "neutralized zones," to shelter wounded and sick and noncombatants.

The conventions will be turned over to a diplomatic conference at a later date, when governments of the world will decide whether to sign.

The International Red Cross urged governments to abide by the conventions, even if they had not actually signed. Ratification might require a year or two, and the Red Crosss rules would apply if war should come before they are signed.

Copper Deficiency Blamed

Chemists Told Cattle Ailment Gives Clew to Man's Arthritis

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

From poor grazing lands of Florida to Hotel Statler here came a clew yesterday to the possible cause of man's mystery misery, arthritis.

Gattle there, reported Dr. George K. Davis, agricultural chemist, develop a disease resembling human arthritis, and the cause has been traced to copper deficiency of the area.

Dr. Davis reported his findings to scientists attending sessions of the division of biological chemistry, American Chemical Society. The society yesterday opened its five-day, 114th national meeting, here.

Other speakers at the multiple sessions told of the development of a new insecticide as powerful as but far less harmful than DDT, of vitamin "shots" to help those that capsules don't; of a special vitamin preparation for mothers and breast-fed babies, and of peacetime uses for the chemical ingredient of wartime mustard gas.

Dr. Davis, of the University of Florida Agricultural Experiment Station, Gainesville, declined to speculate on the use medical research might make of his findings in its hunt for cause and cure of human arthritis.

In terms of how copper deficiency affects cattle, he reported that calves develop a severe malformation of the bones similar to the low-phosphorus rickets in other species.

The principal breakdown, he explained, occurs in the area of new bone formation. In older animals, he said, bones become fragile and

Ex-Premier Schuman Ready To Form New French Cabinet

Paris, Aug. 30 (AP).—Former Premier Robert Schuman announced tonight he would form a new middle-of-the-road government for France, despite Communist efforts to force a new general election.

He was expected to ask the National Assembly for a vote of confidence Tuesday.

The Communists emerged as the country's strongest single political party in the 1946 general elections, held before the formation of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's French People's Rally provided a focus for French conservatives.

De Gaulle also favors a general election now, in hopes his new party might gain enough power to dominate the Assembly.

Schuman, emerging from the presidential palace tonight said: "The consultations I had today gave me the impression that I may receive the necessary parliamentary majority."

Communist-dominated union leaders led 400 workers at the suburban Hotchkiss automobile plant on a march to the Ministry of Labor this morning. They were turned back by police.

Striking workers from the Creusot Schneider arms plant demonstrated before the City Hall in another Communist maneuver. All over France Communists directed demonstrations Sunday against soaring costs of living, stirring up unrest among wage earners and housewives.

37th Body Found in Plane Wreckage

Winona, Minn., Aug. 30 (AP).—An unexpected thirty-seventh body was recovered from the wreckage of a Northwest Airlines plane today as authorities studied the debris to try to learn the cause of the crash, which occurred during a severe wind and electrical storm.

The 37 occupants of the plane, a Martin 2-0-2, were dashed to death late Sunday when it crashed into a ravine on the Mississippi River near here.

First lists had placed the number of persons aboard at 33 passengers and 3 crew members.

Ten bodies were removed from the crash scene last night. Early today 100 men formed a human chain to bring the remaining bodies out of the hilly country.

Investigators said vital pieces of the plane would be studied to determine if structural defects might have brought about the crash.

72-Year-Old Man Spends 38 Hours in Ditch After Fall

A 72-year-old Silver Hill (Md.) grandfather who fell into a roadside ditch and lay there helpless for 38 hours, through Sunday's 97-degree heat, was found early yesterday, apparently with only a few bruises to show for his experience.

He is Henry Dressel, who lives at Holly Tree rd., Silver Hill, with his son, August H. Dressel, proprietor of the Old Williamsburg Restaurant and president of the Washington Restaurant Association. The cooling rain of yesterday missed Silver Hill.

The restaurant man said his father went out for a walk on St. Boniface rd. at about 5 p. m. Saturday. A few hundreds yards west of Branch ave., he turned out on the road shoulder to avoid a bus, and slipped into a three-foot ditch.

Infirm in the legs and hampered by underbrush, Dressel was unable to climb out of the ditch, which was about two feet from the road, his son said.

Alarmed at his absence Saturday night the family notified police and searched for him all day Sunday. At about 7:30 a. m. yesterday, Ruby Bercham, 20, of St. Boniface rd., heard a call for help and found Dressel.

Dressel's doctor said he did not seem to be affected except for bruises and some loss of strength.

Dressel has two other children, William Dressel and Mrs. Dorothy Fish, and three grandchildren.

Fire Breaks Out On Capitol Roof, Is Quickly Quelled

A short circuit in wiring of searchlights on a portico over the west front entrance of the Capitol last night caused a fire which was quickly quelled. Slight damage was done to some tarpaulin, wooden boards and roofing paper left there by workmen.

The fire broke out about 8:39 p. m., with 13 pieces of fire equipment responding under direction of Acting Seventh Battalion Chief S. E. Bishop, who said he dropped lines from the portico to hoist fire hoses to the fire scene. The flag, flying about 22 feet from the searchlights, wasn't scorched.

Stevenson, Johnson Both Over 6 Feet Tall, Both Have Been Janitors in Climb to Top

Lyndon Baines Johnson, 40, and Coke Robert Stevenson, 60, the two men slugging it out for the Texas Democratic nomination for United States Senator, are both big physically and both have worked as janitors.

That's almost as far as you can go in search of similarities between the two.

Stevenson Johnson

Stevenson is 6 feet, 1-inch tall, tips the scales at about 190 pounds. His tanned, leathery-looking skin indicates many hours spent outdoors during approximately 30 years of office-holding.

Johnson is 6 feet, 3 inches. He shoved the scales to 211 before he began his campaign, now looks trim and slim at 185.

Stevenson is rugged-looking, Johnson smooth.

Calmness, sometimes bordering on aloofness, is the older man's trademark. "Calculating Coke" they call him, and the briar pipe he puffs most of the time is in character with the nickname.

Johnson is a high-tension type when the pressure is on. He moves fast, keeps telephone wires humming to maintain almost constant contact with his political lieutenants over the State. Cigarettes are his form of tobacco habit.

Stevensoon had two years of formal schooling, then educated himself while going about the business of earning a living. He learned bookkeeping by campfire while running his two-wagon freight line. He studied law on his own for five years while working as a bank cashier.

Johnson is a graduate of Southwest Texas State Teachers College.

Both men had to work their way in early manhood, and both can recall being janitors—Stevenson in a bank and Johnson in college.

Each progressed to better jobs at the places where they wielded brooms. Stevenson became bank cashier. Johnson moved into the job of college secretary. After graduation in 1930 he taught school in 1931 and 1932 before landing an appointment as secretary to Congressman Richard Kleberg.

Johnson attracted the attention of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who appointed him State administrator for the National Youth Administration in 1935.

With politics in his blood, he jumped into the special election to succeed Representative James P. Buchanan in the Tenth Congressional District. He beat 10 opponents, running on a platform which strongly supported Roosevelt's New Deal program.

Johnson was reelected five times, but he suffered defeat in the 1941 special senatorial election to determine a successor to Morris Sheppard. W. Lee O'Daniel nosed him out by 1311 votes.

Stevenson has been a warehouse operator, hardware merchant, hotel owner, newspaper publisher, auto agency proprietor and bank president as well as attorney and political officeholder.

His plitical career began 34 years ago with his election as county attorney of Kimble County. He advanced to county judge in 1918 and served until 1921, at which time he turned attention to private business as president of a bank in Junction.

Stevenson came to the State Capitol as a member of the House of Representatives in 1929 and was reelected four times. He is the only living person who has served as speaker of the house two terms in succession. He was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1938 and reelected in 1940.

The Kimble County rancher stepped into the governorship on August 8, 1941, after O'Daniel left the office to become United States Senator. After serving five years, five months and 13 days as Governor—longer than any other person—Stevenson stepped down from the State's highest executive post in January, 1947.

Spy Probe Seen as Proving Loyalty Program a Success

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer told the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars tonight that the House Un-American Activities Committee has proved the "complete success" of the Government's loyalty program.

Sawyer said that if the committee expected to prove the failure of the loyalty program through its current spy inquiry "the result has been a dramatic reversal."

He compared the committee's hearing to "professional, or semi-professional" theatrics and said apparently the committee members "are themselves confused as to how the play will end, who will be the villain, who is merely acting a part, and who is telling the truth."

"Up to this time there has not been so much as an inference that even during the war or later any Federal employe furnished any information to our enemies, nor what any fair-minded person would regard as proof that anything of importance was given illegally to our ally, Russia," he said.

No Proof of Disloyalty

"Furthermore there is no proof that there is now working for the Government any employe who ever disloyally gave information to anyone."

[The New York Herald Tribune, in a story by Bert Andrews, saw in Sawyer's speech an indication that Democratic orators intend to "soft pedal" President Truman's earlier characterization of the spy investigation as of a "red herring." It said that some passages were in conflict with Mr. Truman's assertion that the congressional investigations were unnecessary because all the evidence had been submitted to to grand jury with no indictments following. It quoted such statements by Sawyer as these:

["I do not belittle any effort to discovered and cut from our body politic the disease of the Communist iheology. Nor am I one of those who believes that Congressional investigations are useless . . . Only the uniformed will believe that we have no spies among us . . . If the entire truth comes out about the matters involved in these hearings, it will undoubtedly appear that during the war there were gullible fools who passed out information, and industrious, even though ineffective, spies trying to get it." Bu Sawyer pointed out that none of those mentioned in the hearings is now on active duty with the Government.—Editor's note.]

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, told the encampment that with the draft and planned expansion of the Army, the United States will have within a year "minimum armed security in balance with the temper of our times."

He warned that the expanded Army will be "suffering from the high cost of living as cruelly as any housewife in the country." This year, Bradley said, the Army will cost the American taxpayer "almost six billion dollars."

But he said the national defense cannot be fixed by economic equations. "Because it is always far cheaper to prevent a war than to fight one," he said, "our military needs must be measured in terms of home security requirements, overseas obligations and in the likelihood of conflict—either through incident or another's intent."

Bradley said the United States "cannot safely bluff its way in the chancelleries of other nations without risking all that we have gained from victory in this last World War. There is no economy that can justify the need for some other Omaha Beachhead in some future avoidable war."

Force In Peace Wrecked

In 1945, Bradley said, the American people "chose to wreck" the most pwoerful force for peace in the world by "hasty and hysterical demobilization."

"We put our precious standards of private indulgence before an objective that had already cost us 350,000 lives," he said. "An army that had smashed the best legions of Hitler was routed by the lure of a quick trip home."

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, chairman of the House Veterans Committee, told the convention there is little chance of passing any new service pension legislation for the next few years.

She said members of the committee feel that pension plans for veterans of World War I would be too costly "during the life of the G.I. Bill of Rights."

Longshoremen Offer Boosted

San Francisco, Aug. 30 (AP).—Pacific Coast waterfront employers late today boosted their offer of a wage increase in an effort to head off a CIO longshoremen's strike set for 12:01 a. m. Thursday.

The employers offered an increase of 10 cents an hour straight time and 15 cents overtime. The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union had asked 18 cents for regular time and 27 cents for overtime.

There was no immediate indication of the ILWU's reaction to the new offer.

Harry Bridges, ILWU chief, announced before this latest employer move that "negotiations are on the verge of breaking off." He said the employers' earlier offer of 8 cents an hour regular time was "completely unacceptable."

Bridges said the union also had rejected an employer offer to leave the hiring hall as presently set up pending a court decision on its legality under the Taft-Hartley law.

party membership, under provisions of the Fifth and First amendments to the Constitution.

Nixon answered his silence by recommending that Peters be cited for contempt of Congress for refusing to speak.

Warns Communists

Representative McDowell (R., Pa.), chairman of the subcommittee, agreed with Nixon. Contempt is a charge subject to trial by jury. Conviction could bring a jail sentence.

McDowell said he was warning "the Communists of America, those present and those not present, that for the first time in the history of the United States Government, that Government is going to face the question of the Communist Party in the United States."

Peters also refused to say whether he knew some 30 persons whose names have been linked to the alleged spy ring.

He did not reply when asked if he "ever served in the United States as representative of the Communist International of the Communist Party."

Peters—who identified himself as Alexander Stevens—said he is 54 and a native of a part of Czechoslovakia which was Hungarian territory before the first World War. He was subpened under the name of Peters.

Refuses to Answer

He refused to answer when asked if he was ever known as "J. Peters."

He said he entered this country in 1924 and was not a citizen, although he has applied for citizenship papers.

Peter: was subpenaed by the House group at an Immigration and Naturalization Service hearing this morning. He has been sought for questioning by the Un-American Activities Committee for several months.

Peters was at the immigration hearing to answer deportation charges brought by the Government. He is charged with entering the United States without a valid visa.

Later, Edward Emmanuel, Government examiner, filed two additional charges against Peters. One was for allegedly being a member "of a group that advocates overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence." The Government also charged the group "circulated printed information to this end."

Questioned Privately

He was questioned behind closed doors for 10 minutes and the subcommittee then declared the probe public. McDowell, pointing at Peters, asked when Chambers had first seen him.

"In 1928," Chambers said. "I met him in the offices of the Daily Worker in New York City."

Chambers, now a senior editor of Time magazine, was then editor of the New Masses magazine. Chambers insisted it was Peters who introduced him to Alger Hiss, former high State Department official. Chambers has testified Hiss was a member of an "elite" Communist underground group in the Government. Hiss, now head of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, has denied Chambers' charges.

Peters refused to say if he knew Miss. He also would not speak about Mrs. Alger Hiss, John Abt, Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, Victor Perlo, William W. Remington, Miss Bentley, Nathan Witt, Henry Collins and many others whose names have been mentioned by Chambers or Miss Bentley.

Says Peters Arranged Car Deal

Chambers testified Peters arranged the transfer of a 1929 Ford owned by Hiss. Chambers and Hiss have given conflicting testimony about the car.

In relating the story of how he got a Government job, Chambers said he approached Peters after "I decided to break with the party but I didnt' want to leave Washington without making some sort of a record as I was afraid I'd be assassinated."

He explained he did not want to "just dissappear."

Then, he said, he told Peters he did not want "to float around Washington" without some sort of job.

The last witness before the House subcommittee was Adolph A. Berle, jr., former assistant Secretary of State, who testified in a closed session.

Chambers has claimed he told Berle the story of the alleged prewar spy ring in 1939, but that nothing ever was done about it.

Berle told reporters today Chambers had given "part of his story to me in 1939, although the story was in far less detail then than it is now."

Tightened Up

But, he said, through coordinated efforts of the FBI, State Department, passage of the Alien Registration Act and other means "we tightened up all alont the line."

He said the tightening-up was not directly due to Chambers' story, but "a result of the whole situation in 1939 and 1940."

[The United Press quoted Berle as saying that "I checked Hiss' record and it was a good record. Dean Acheson (former Undersecretary of State) had known the Hiss family from childhood."

[The UP said Berle said the idea that Hiss would work for the overthrow of the Government of the United States was "ridiculous."—Editor's note.]

The committee said no further hearings are planned. The next full committee meetings, McDowell said, is scheduled for September 7. He added Peters might be called for further questioning before that time.

Peters Identified as Red

Peters also refused to answer questions at the immigration hearing.

His attorney, Mrs. Caol King, told the hearing, "This is not a naturlaization hearing. It is just a notice to come and be served wit ha subptna."

Subsequently, Peters refused to take part in the immigration proceedings.

At an afternoon session of the hearing a witness identified Peters as a United States Communist Paraty member and in charge of certain "underground activities."

The witnes, George Hewitt, an admitted Communist for 18 years, claimed Peters was aot one time in charge of sending United States students to the Lenin School in Moscow, where they were schooled in "underground activities."

Hewitt said he first met Peters in 1928.

'Subversive' School Will Sue Clark

San Francisco, Aug. 30 (AP).—The California Labor School announced today it is filling a suit chalelnging the constitutionality of the Justice Department's listing of it as subversive.

David Jenkins, director of the school, said the suit would be filed against Attorney General Tom Clark. It will be brought in Federal District Court in Washington, D. C., by Attorney Abraham J. Isserman, New York.

Air Force to Hold First National Reunion

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—The first national reunion of veterans and personnel of the Air Force will be held September 25 at Madison Square Garden.

Top commanders of the armed services and more than 17,000 present and former officers and enlisted men are expected to attend.

The reunion will be the main event of the 1948 convention of the Air Force Association, which will meet September 24-26 at the Hotel Commodore.

Truman Says U. S. Removing Disloyal

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (U.P.)—President Truman declared today that "adequate means now exist" to rid the Government service of disloyal employes.

In a message to the National Convention of the AFL American Federation of Government Employes, the President said it was a "major responsibility" of every administrative and supervisory Government employe to help weed out persons "with subversive beliefs."

"Inefficient employes can and should be removed from the payroll as soon as their deficiencies come to light and their services cannot be used in other assignments within their capabilities," Mr. Truman said.

He said the federation and other organizations have the responsibility to "successfully separate from the Government all but those who are performing their tasks efficiently and who also have the best interests of the United States at heart." He continued:

"In an executive order of March 21, 1947, establishing a loyalty program in the Executive Branch of the Government, stated it is of vital importance that persons employed in the Federal service be of unswerving loyalty to the United States . . ."

"In that order, I set in operation a plan whereby the Government is now well along in the process of identifying and removing employes with subversive beliefs."

Mr. Truman said, however, that "by and large, I believe the business of the Government is being carried on by conscientious, loyal personnel."

The President's message was read to the opening session of the Federal Workers convention.

House Unit Sets Electric Union Probe

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—Representative Charles J. Kersten (R., Wisc.) said today that the House Labor subcommittee probing reports of Communism in trade unions would begin an investigation of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America in Washington Thursday.

Kersten, chairman of the subcommittee, said the investigation would begin at 10 a. m. (EST).

The Wisconsin Congressman said the first two witnesses would be James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer and former union president, and Albert J. Fitzgerald, U. E. president. They were subpenaed in Washington today, he said.

Kersten described Carey as "an anti-Communist, in my view" and Fitzgerald as having "a reputation that appears to be not that of an anti-Communist."

Is Wallace Backer

Fitzgerald is national cochairman of the Progressive Party supporting Henry A. Wallace's Presidential candidacy and also chairman of the party's national labor committee.

Kersten said that the U. E. was selected for investigation because it controls "the labor policy of employes in perhaps the most strategic industry of our American economy."

The Congressman said that "Many influential leaders, within and without labor circles, have claimed for some time that the U. E. is the very core of Communist infiltration in our labor unions."

Kerster added:

"It is not fair to the rank and file members of this union nor to the American people to permit these charges of Communist domination to be left hanging in the air."

Has 400,000 Members

The Congressman said the union had more than 400,000 members. It has contracts with General Electric Co., Westinghouse Electric Corp., the electrical division of General Motors Corp., and other firms.

A spokesman at the union's national headquarters said the U. E. had no immediate comment.

promised, in return for Tompkins acting as his attorney of record. As a result Tompkins filed an amended petition for the writ that same day, according to the suit.

Yesterday, Tompkins was handed two letters by Mrs. Edna May Herricfl of Conneaut, Ohio, who is a half-sister of Miss Gillars, the motion stated. Both letters were signed by Miss Gillars and set forth "unmistakeably" that Holtzworth "had not been retained as counsel by her or for her nor was he authorized to obtain counsel for her," the motion charged.

Offers Letters in Proof

Holtzworth said that he "was and still is" Miss Gillars attorney and that he has letters to prove she retained him. He said he will file an answer today. Holtzworth said he is a member of the New York Bar and is authorized to practice before the Court of Appeals here.

Holzworth later issued a statement that he intended to stay in the case "to the finish."

He said he had wired the foreman of the grand jury and the prosecuting attorney demanding to be heard as a witness.

In his statement, Holzworth said he "acted with her (Miss Gillars') hearty approval after long conferences with her in jail. He blamed the Attorney General and United States attorneys for trying to have him removed from the case, adding that he had "several scores to settle with them."

Visualized Frameup

"When I was released in the Axis Sally case I saw all the earmarks of another frameup, including foisting an incompetent or dishonest lawyer on the accused," he declared.

Meanwhile, five witnesses testified yesterday before the grand jury, hearing evidence on the treason charges against Miss Gillars.

They included Mrs. Herrick; a man, identified as Frank Green, a radio expert, and another man, identified as S. A. Warren, of Dubbin, Ga., who was taken prisoner of war after landing as a paratrooper in Europe on D- Day. Warren said he knew "Axis Sally" slightly when she visited his prison camp near Berlin.

John M. Kelly, jr., special assistant to the attorney general, said additional witnesses will appear today and that testimony probably will be heard throughout this week.

Several of the witnesses were believed to have described prison camp visits by Axis Sally, when she recorded their comments, which she later rebroadcast allegedly to stir up discontent among American troops.

A large box marked fragile, believed to contain some of the recordings, was taken into the grand jury room during the afternoon.

rarefied, resulting in a frequent joint erosion which may cause inflammation and great pain.

"In many respects," he declared, "this condition resembles arthritis in humans."

Report on the newly developed insecticide was made by Dr. C. J. Krister of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del. The new chemical, methoxychlor, promises to become a major contribution to agriculture, human welfare and comfort, he said.

He described the possible successor to DDT as apparently harmless to animals and pets. Use of DDT has been restricted greatly because of its toxic effects on humans and other animals, both by absorption through the skin and by entering the body in the eating of sprayed vegetables and fruits.

Dr. Louis Freedman, vice president and director of research of U. S. Vitamin Corporation, New York, told of newly developed vitamin "shots." The intramuscular injections, he said, are especially devised for individuals suffering vitamin deficiences but unable to absorb vitamins into the body through the ailmentary processes.

The injection method, he said, was made possible by development of water-soluble vitamins. In such form the vitamins are absorbed by the body far more readily than in oil-soluble forms, such as fish oils.

Insurance against vitamin A starvation in breast-fed babies by use of one of the new water-soluble vitamins was reported in findings of experiments conducted at Jewish Hospital, Brooklyn. The report was prepared by Drs. Albert E. Sobel, Abraham Rosenberg and Benjamin Kramer, all of that institution.

Asserting that case histories show "several instances" of death due to vitamin A deficiency of infants fed on breast milk, the paper said use of the new water-soluble form enables babies to obtain up to 800 per cent more of the vitamin from the mother than obtainable from her when she took vitamin A in oil solution.

Raymond C. Crippen research chemist for the laboratories of Penniman & Browne, Inc., of Baltimore, told a session on industrial and engineering chemistry of new uses of thiodiglycol, the mustard gas ingredient. These include uses in manufacture of resins, plastics, oils and gasoline, and as a "sticking" agent for insecticides and fungicides. In the last-named category, he explained, the chemical prolongs the "weather life" of outdoor sprays.

Rear Admiral Thorvald A. Solberg, chief of naval research was principal speaker at last night's general session of the society's meeting here. He stressed the need of continuing scientific research to a point where the United States is self-sufficient, and "our resources and preparedness . . . superior at all times to those of any other nation."

Planes Seek Safety Inland

removal of all but the most essential planes from air stations within 50 miles of the coast, was ordered for Northern Atlantic naval stations in New York and New England.

Air Force spokesmen ordered a general alert for four fields in the threatened area, Langley, near Norfolk; Pope, near Fort Bragg, Shaw Field, near Sumter, S. C. and Turner Field, near Albany, Ga.

The threatened storm forced a change in training plans for the Marine Reserve Fifth Infantry Battalion at Camp Lejeune, N. C. Infantrymen from Washington, Charlottesville, Lynchburg, Va. and Cumberland, Md., had been rehearsing for an amphibious landing from the USS Noble on Onslow Beach. High seas forced postponement of the operation. Riptide at Onslow Beach has curtailed swimming there.

Spokesmen for airlines whose routes touch North Carolina cities that may be in the path of the hurricane said they were still maintaining normal service. Aircraft were warned to expect storm winds, but no service cancellations had been ordered last night.

Piedmont Airlines, serving Wilmington, Morehead City and New Bern, N. C., operated on normal schedule yesterday, but ordered its planes to carry tie-down equipment, such as weights for elevators in case of high winds, and tackle to anchor a plane firmly.

At the Anacostia Naval Air Station, officials yesterday were preparing for high water in addition to high winds. Movable equipment on the base was being moved to higher ground. Officials said they had been warned to expect high water on the 5:30 a. m. tide Wednesday. The station was inundated in the flood of 1936. Its flood control equipment now includes a dike and pumps.

Million Dollar Chicken Loss By Heat Seen

Chicken farmers of the Delmarva Peninsula have probably lost close to one million broilers, mostly of marketable age, during the heat wave since Thursday.

This would mean a loss of about a million dollars in five days.

The estimates were made yesterday by Dr. I. M. Moulthrop, director of the Maryland Livestock Sanitary Laboratory in Salisbury, Md., who said yesterday's cooler weather was reducing the high mortality.

Salisbury rendering plants are so glutted with truckloads of broilers killed by the heat they cannot handle the volume, he said. Inedible, the heat-killed birds are sold for a cent a pound for making fertilizer.

The broilers marketed in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other Eastern cities have been bringing $1 to $1.15 apiece.

One of the larger growers of the Eastern Shore area, John G. Townsend, of Selbyville, Del., said yesterday the situation was the worst he has seen in a dozen years in the business.

Townsend reported he had lost about 15,000 broilers and laying hens from his flock of more than 100,000. Some of his neighbors, he said, had lost many more. The heat has been killing chickens all along the coast and as far north as Maine, he declared.

Mechanized Army Planned in Africa

London, Aug. 30 (AP).—High British military planners have begun talks aimed at creating the nucleus of a mechanized army of East and West African troops. A government source said today.

The project envisages the development of a hard core of African soldiers trained in the use of modern armaments and radio.

At Norfolk, Va., a Naval airman who chased the hurricane said "the eye (center) of the hurricane is a black, stovepipe affair, extending approximately 25,000 feet high."

"The highest wind observed was estimated to be 75 knots (approximately 86 m.p.h.), said Lieut. Comdr. J. A. Guida, aerologist on a four-engined Navy Privateer bomber which took off from Miami to scout the big storm and was forced to land at Norfolk after one engine went dead.

Lieut. W. T. Henderson, the pilot said "We left Miami at 5 a. m. and entered the storm area at 7:30 a. m. We were flying at 1000 feet. We found an opening and climbed to 7000 feet. We were then 35 miles from the storm. After making two fixes we were halfway around the storm when one motor coughed, sputtered and quit." At that time, Henderson said, the storm was 240 miles southeast of Cape Fear, N. C.

25-Mile Winds Likely Today

Service was restored by 7:30 p. m.

Deaths reported yesterday which Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg has attributed to the heat wave were:

John Moore, 76, of 1259 Stevens rd. se., who died in Gallinger Hospital Monday morning after collapsing at his home Sunday.

Benjamin W. Calloway, 71, of 822 2d st. sw., pronounced dead at his home at 5:25 a. m. Monday.

Mrs. Louise M. Anderson, 43, of 807 4th st. sw., pronounced dead at her home at 10:15 p. m. Sunday.

Henry Davis, 48, of 48 H st. nw., who died in Casualty Hospital Sunday.

William Scott, 50, no fixed address, who was found unconscious Sunday on a lawn in the 1400 block of 16th st. nw., and pronounced dead by an Emergency Hospital ambulance doctor.

Three more persons were admitted to local hospitals suffering from heat exhaustion. These were:

James W. King, 73, of 3011 24th st. ne., at Casualty.

Precinct Detective William Shelton, 36, of 6012 Ritchie rd., Forestville, Md., who is under treatment at Emergency Hospital after he was taken from the Municipal Building suffering from heat exhaustion.

Portia McMillen, 20, of 6104 E st. ne., under treatment at Emergency Hospital after she fainted at the corner of 11th and H sts. nw., yesterday.

The District death toll from the current heat wave now stands at 16.

Yesterday's high temperature of 92, at 2:54 p. m., was the lowest since the heat wave began.

Flash flood waters, estimated between six inches and two feet high, last night covered Benning rd., between East Capitol st. and C st. s.e.

Approximately five small houses in different locations in the two-block area were flooded.

Mrs. Pauline Bertha Taylor, 27, who lives with her six children in a 4-room apartment in the basement of the house at 4605 Benning rd. s.e., said she called the fire department when water got above her ankles.

Four two-story houses without basements on S st. s.e., were surrounded by water.

262 Pollen Count Sets New Record

The highest ragweed pollen count in the three years of District Medical Society pollen records was registered here yesterday.

The count of 262 grains per cubic yard of air compared to last year's high of 192 on September 2. The 1946 high was 145 on September 3.

Pollen experts said much of the increase came during the violent Sunday windstorm. The count covered the 24 hours ending 9 a. m. yesterday.

Europe Threatened By Soaring Prices

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

What really worries the wage-earners of western Europe this summer is not the Berlin crisis but the soaring cost of living.

Eighteen months ago, in the fearful winter of 1946-47, Europe's supplies of food, coal and clothing were so short that in almost every country workers were hungry and cold.

Today—and this is perhaps the most important of all the material changes in Europe—the great supply crisis is ending. Thanks to good European crops and to American aid, almost every family, even in western Germany and Austria, now gets enough of the absolute necessities of life.

This does not mean "enough" by American standards or by prewar European standards. There still is a Europe-wide shortage of fats and other energy foods; there still is much fat and muscle to put on skin and bones, as in Vienna, where a third of the school children early this summer still showed symptoms of serious malnutrition.

Cost Out of Reach

It simply means that there is greater variety than before, greater calorie content in every country, and better hope that the evil days of hunger and cold will not recur. But just as the supplies are becoming available, their cost is climbing out of the reach of millions in every country.

To this extent the workers of western Europe now have something of a bond, for the first time in years, with their opposite numbers in the United States—except that in Europe there is nothing like American abundance from which to choose, and a far greater gap between wages and prices.

In some European cities the picture begins to resemble conditions in Moscow, where for many years the government has flaunted luxury shops, with luxury goods at fantastic prices, at workers who cannot afford more than a nibble of them.

In western Europe, as in Moscow, these displays are incentives to work harder and earn more, but they are also tantalizing and cruel. But the western European, unlike the more submissive Muscovite, will not put up indefinitely with this kind of teasing without venting his frustration on his leaders.

Danger to Stability

In this situation there is a potential danger to the political stability of western European governments, and to the budgetary reforms which each of them is pledged to make under the European recovery program. French or Italian workers who have no love for communism may lose patience with democratic governments that let them be rationed by the high prices of essentials, especially when the rich can buy anything they want or crave.

In Rome and Milan, for example, the shops in the center of the cities are crammed with every kind of food and consumers' goods, so that at first glance Italy seems bursting with well-being. But the factory worker does not bother to look at them. He knows he cannot afford them.

In Vienna and in the cities of western Germany, where currency reform has brought goods away from the black market and into the shops, it still is a novelty for a worker to look into a window and see good things for sale. In ruined Duesseldorf, now tidied up until it has some of the air of a capital city, the spectacle of pastries and candies, radios and silks brought incredulous Germans clustering to the shopwindows in the weeks after the currency reform—but those who looked soon turned away.

If We Earn Enough

"It's this way," one German explained it: "Last winter we couldn't buy anything in the stores; we had to go out into the fields or onto the black market. Now we still can't buy, but we know that we can get it if we earn enough and save enough. I suppose that's something to be thankful for."

In Paris, the heart of the city is again a riot of luxuries where anything can be had—for a price. The endless stream of private cars swishing down the boulevards on imported gasoline, and the volume of imported nonessentials in the shops, show that there has been a disgraceful squandering of the dollars and other hard currencies that have brought these things from abroad.

But Paris this summer has been utterly irrelevant to the true picture of France, or of the attitude of the trade unions which have been making a manful attmept to rid themselves of Communist control. The road to an understanding of French conditions is any road out of Paris, to almost any factory town and into the home of the average worker.

In a Factory Town

I happened to take the road to Vigneux, about 30 miles southeast of Paris, where a well-run sand and gravel company dredges the Seine for sand and loads it into barges for making cement. The machine shop employs about 120 workers, and is about as typical as any small French factory could be.

The least skilled worker in this plant earns about $9 for a 48-hour week, the majority of workers make about $11, and the most highly skilled machinists—perhaps 1 out of 20 of the total force—as much as $14.50. In addition, each worker, whatever his pay, gets an allowance of about $4 from the state if he has one child; $5.20 if he has two, and about $8 if he has three.

While tourists were gaping at the luxuries in Paris, this summer, the $11 worker was at his wits' end to pay for absolute necessities. Out of his basic pay he had to set aside 77 cents each week as social security, and about one hour's pay, or about 25 cents, as income tax. If he had four children, he would be entitled to a ton of coal for next winter, but it would cost him between $34 and $40—more than his total earnings for three weeks—if he could afford it. One pair of shoes costs him from $5 to $6—more than three days' pay.

As for food, eggs cost him 72 cents a dozen; one portion of beef for one person costs almost 20 cents; a pack of 20 cigarettes costs 16 cents; and a bottle of the cheapest wine, a necessity to every French worker and his family, is 25 cents.

Pay, Prices Far Apart

A part from rent, an insignificant item, this worker was having to pay prices that simply bore no relation to his earnings, and that took no account of transportation, or amusements, or sudden emergencies in the family. To such a worker, the very idea of owning a car, like so many of his American counterparts, was fantastic.

In England, where the price of rationed food has been kept low by a subsidy that has reached a rate of almost two billion dollars a year, more fruits and vegetables are coming onto the markets, and many items of clothing have been taken off the ration altogether. Yet in England, the best-ordered of all the western European democracies, prices of shoes and clothing are going up into the blue, and the worker is beginning to feel the pinch.

Economists will say, with justice, that in a time of inflation this kind of thing is good and useful up to a point. When too few goods are being produced, they ought to be priced high enough to be incentives but too high for everyone who wants them. The danger on the continent (though not yet in England) is that the price rise will cause social injustice which, in turn, will lead to labor unrest and political discontent.

Perhaps the recent fall in the wholesale prices of grain and other American staples will lead to a fall in retail prices in Europe in coming weeks. If not, it is safe to predict that the cost of living will be the most serious political issue this winter in every country from the Atlantic to the Iron Curtain. Already it worries the European worker more than the future of Germany, the course of relations with Russia or the outcome of the crisis in Berlin.

U. S. Denies Hamstringing Refugee Plan

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug 30 (U.P.).—The United States today denied reports that it was hamstringing the departure of 250,000 European refugees to this country under the Displaced Persons Act recently passed by Congress.

Wasren R. Austin, chief American delegate to the United Nations, disclosed that machinery is being established to get the first refugees on their way to the United States within the next few weeks.

Austin took advantage of the formal establishment of the International Refugee Organization as a U. N. agency to refute reports that American counsular officials were blocking emigration.

Austin said officials would leave for Germany by plaine on Labor Day "to work out the mechanics of setting provisions" of the congressional law in motion and that by November 2000 to 3000 will be on their way to the United States.

"Departures will then steadily increase to a peak of from 8000 to 9000 a month until the entire quota of 205,000 is filled in 1950," he declared.

American consular officials in Germany were criticized by Iro officials yesterday for being too strict in interpreting the act and in forcing destitute refugees to travel considerable distances to make repetitious applications.

The announcement that IRO had officially come into being as a U. N. specialized agency came from U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie. It was made possible by the ratification of the IRO constitution on August 20 by Denmark, the fifteenth country to take such action.

Soviet Hits Berlin Regime and Allies

Berlin, (Tuesday), Aug 31 (AP).—The Russians in Berlin unloosed a tirade early today against the Western Allies and the anti-Communist city government.

The vehicle for the latest Soviet blast was a meeting of Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, the Soviets' Berlin commandant, with a delegate of "workers" who demanded an end to "warmangering" by the western military governments.

The officials Soviet news agency SNB said the workers demanded they be allowed to continue their demonstrations against the city ogvernment. Last week there were two Communist-led assaults on Berlin's City Hall.

The agency said the workers told Kotikov that before elections are held in Berlin, the city government "should openly account for its activities inthe last two years."

This was a broad hint the Soviets are preparing to ban elections in the eastern sector of Berlin. Elections for a new city administration are scheduled tentatively for October. The Communists took a heavy beating two years ago and their political foes say the Communist showing will be even worse this year.

Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, already has cancelled fall elections in the Soviet zone of Germany.

Today's Soviet outburst came soon after senior committee of the Berlin city council again defied the Communists and named a five-man delegation to represent Berlin at the convention to draft a charter for a West German government.

The committee decided yesterday to postpone a regular council meeting scheduled for Tuesday until a communique is issued on the Four-Power talks in Moscow, and until the Russians promise the council police protection against Communist-led rioters.

Kotikov, according to SNB, asked the workers what he should reply to the city council's appeal for police protection. They told him "these demonstrations would stop at once if the workers of Berlin were convinced the town administration recognizes their demands."

The agency said the workers advised Kotikov to refuse a council request that a "neutral area" be created where city officials could meet in peace.

The workers then charged the city government neglected to supply food and winter fuel for Berlin, which has been under a Soviet blockade for 69 days.

Communist members of the committee walked out when the matter arose of naming a delegation to the sessions at Bonn Wednesday for the purpose of writing a constitution for the American, British and French occupation zones.

The Russians demanded today the punishment of American military policemen who pursued a speeding Soviet jeep through central Berlin Friday night. The Russian-licensed German news agency (ADN) said the Soviets also asked the Americans to foot the bill for damages in the incident.

ADN said Russian Sergt. A. I. Schilenko was shot by the MPs and "severely wounded."

The Americans protested the incident to the Russians Saturday, saying the Russian jeep ran down one of the MPs before the Americans opened fire.

In Frankfurt the British and American military governors were quoted as saying the Moscow talks would have no influence upon the western powers' plan to set up a separate government in western Germany.

All the four Allied military governors and their advisors will be in Berlin Tuesday, and this led to speculation that a new four-power meeting was in the offing here.

However, the American military government issued a statement saying there were no plans for such a meeting "at the present time."

The senior committee of the Berlin city council said that if its conditions for resuming council sessions were not met by Friday it would "consider other measures."

[The United Press quoted police at Luneburg in northern Germany that more than 80 Soviet fighter planes cruised over the British zone during the weekend. British occupation air force headquarters officials at Bad Eilsen refused to comment on the flight.—Editor's Note.]

Greeks Gain In New Drive

Athens, Aug. 30 (AP).—A front dispatch said today Greek Army troops had driven the Communist-led guerillas from heights on the northern sector of the Vitsi Mountains and had reached the main peak itself.

There was no official confirmation from the high command, which is directing a new offensive in the area.

The army disclosed that Maj. Gen. Demetrios Laios was relieved of his command over the Fifteenth Division for failure to close a trap in the recent Grammos Muontain campaign. He was replaced by Maj. Gen. Christos Yaraknis.

The army hopes to capture in the new offensive many of the 5000 guerillas who escaped from the Grammos sector.

Burma Takes Rebel Point

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 30 (AP).—The government announced today the recapture of Thayetmyo, held by rebel forces since August 10.

Members of Burma Rifles battalions had mutinied, seized the town, about 200 miles north of Rangoon, and then advanced southward in an attempt to overrun Rangoon and establish military rule.

Government forces are understood to be preparing to recapture Prome, communications center 160 miles northwest of Rangoon.

The Burmese navy participated yesterday in four actions against Communists hiding in the delta districts of Myaungmya and Bassein, center of the rice industry. A communique said many Communist camps along the river banks were wiped out.

U. S. Envoy Silent on 9th Moscow Talk

Moscow, Aug. 30 (AP).—Another East-West meeting was held in the Kremlin today and an authoritative source said the only bar to a procedure agreement of the Berlin crisis was insistence by a western power on technicalities and phrasing.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith said after the conference:

"As far as we know there will be more meetings." Asked about a communique, he replied "No, not tonight."

Today's two-hour meeting, ninth since July 30, was one of the shortest.

Representing the Soviet Union were Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and his deputy Andrei Vishinsky.

The French political crisis was reported to be having some effect on the conversations.

French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau did not join Smith and special British Envoy Frank Roberts in a post-Kremlin conference at the American Embassy until 35 minutes after it began.

Chataigneau stayed for only 20 minutes, then left Roberts and Smith still in conference.

The conferences are devoted to drafting messages and recommendations to Washington, Paris, and London.

The western powers were reported very close to agreement on how to go about the problem of dealing with the Berlin situation.

U. S. Consular Clerk Wounded In Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Aug. 30 (AP).—A United States consular clerk was wounded by a sniper today. He was the seventh American shot by snipers since Arabs and Jews accepted the United Nations truce.

The wounded man, James Lide, 29, of Camden, Ark., returned to duty at the consulate after being treated for a flesh wound at Hadassah Hospital.

Lide told newsmen he thought the shots came from the wall of the Old City, where Arabs are entrenched.

Congressman Andrew L. Somers (D., N. Y.) arrived at Tel Aviv and told Israeli officials that a United States "loan to Israel is assured." Somers heads a mission on behalf of the American Leage for a Free Palestine.

Meanwhile, U. N. sources said a Jewish arms ship believed bound for Palestine from France has been "placed under observation."

Security Council Slaps Down Malik on 'Emergency' Call

Lake Success, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Security Council today slapped Russia's Jacob A. Malik by forcing adjournment of an emergency meeting he had called in his role as Council president.

Contending there was no emergency, the delegates refused to accept the agenda Malik presented. The Council then quit without taking any action on Palestine and Kashmir—the two questions he listed.

It was the first time the Council had openly rejected a meeting program advanced by the President. The presidency rotates monthly.

The Council had agreed at its last previous session here August 19 that no more sessions would be held at Lake Success unless there were an emergency. Fall meetings will be in Paris.

Malik was understood to have summoned today's session without consulting the major delegates.

United States Delegate Warren R. Austin told the Council he was curious as to why the meeting was called. "As far as I can see, no emergency has arisen," he said.

Three possible reasons for the Soviet move were advanced in speculation among informed observers here:

1. Malik wanted a decision on which countries would send military observers into Kashmir now to insure that Russia or at least eastern Europe got soldiers into the Asiatic trouble spot.

2. Malik wanted to rehash the Palestine situation in order to renew the Soviet attacks on United States policies.

3. Malik wanted to preside at one more Council meeting for purposes of Russian prestige.

Korea Civil War Held Possible By Hodge, Returning to U. S.

From Press Dispatches

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, retiring U. S. commander in Korea, conceded in an interview that there is a possibility of civil war in the split country.

He added that he thought south Koreans would resist any Communist invasion from the Russian-controlled northern sector.

General Hodge arrived here by plane today on a rush trip to the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Melissa Hodge, 85, who is critically ill at her home in Carbondale, Ill.

In the interview at Honolulu, General Hodge expressed the opinion that north and south Korea might eventually be united. It depends, he said, on the success of the new South Korean government.

"South Koreans," he declared, "are pretty well clear of any love for Communists. They have found for themselves who they (the Communists) are and for whom they are working."

Communist action in cutting off electric power for South Korea and in slayings during the United Nations - supervised elections produced great good will for Americans, he said.

But he said it would be wishful thinking to believe that popular sentiment in North Korea could achieve union with the South Korean government under present circumstances.

Silver Spring Board Will Discuss Fete

A discussion of festivities to mark the opening of the Georgia ave. viaduct September 11 will highlight the first fall meeting of the Silver Spring Board of Trade Wednesday at 7:15 p. m. at Indian Spring Country Club.

Blair Lee, 3d, president, said the session will be confined to discussion of the Avenue of Progress parade and pageant, in which all local organizations will participate.

Air Mail Parcel Post Service Will Begin on Wednesday

Beginning Wednesday, you can air-mail your packages for door-step delivery to any postal address in United States or its possessions.

The service is available for any package over eight ounces and less than 70 pounds, and not exceeding 100 inches in combined length and girth. Special air mail stickers are provided by the postoffices to mark the packages for air mail, home delivery service.

Rates very considerably according to weight and postal zones covered. For example: A package sent in one zone to a point within the same zone will cost 55 cents for the first pound and 4 cents for each additional pound; the same package sent from Zone 1 to Zone 8 will cost 80 cents for the first period and 65 cents for each added pound.

The packages must be mailed from postoffices, where scales and the complicated mailing rate tables are available. So don't drop them into the nearest mailbox or expect your postman to accept them.

Inauguration of the new service was authorized by act of the 80th Congress. It isn't supposed to cost the Government any extra since under the 1938 Civil Aeronautics Administration Act, the Government most underwrite the scheduled airlines to help maintain an air transportation system suitable for possible national defense needs.

Air mail parcel post service, already available to most Western European nations, will be started Saturday to some South and Central American countries. Service to the Orient is planned to be started within the next few months.

Bedridden Benes Rallying From Serious Illness

Prague, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Former President Eduard Benes has been bedridden for some time by an unspecified illness, but has rallied during the past 24 hours, it was officially announced today.

A brief communique published at Benes' country home was the first indication he had been seriously ill.

"Recently, there has been a noticeable worsening (in the former president's condition) which aroused considerable fears," the announcement said. "But during the past 24 hours the decline has stopped and today a small improvement was seen."

Benes resigned June 7 after refusing to sign the new Czechoslovak constitution drawn up by the Communist-dominated government.

Postoffice To Auction Off 'Dead' Parcels

There is going to be a sale here Wednesday—but whether it will be a bargain sale or not is anybody's guess.

The auctioneer is Uncle Sam, in the person of the City Postoffice, and Uncle Sam isn't guaranteeing anything—not toys, nor clothing nor jewelery nor silverware.

Uncle Sam is trying to get rid of the 392 "dead" parcels which have accumulated in the postoffice and its branches during the past year.

Three-fourths of the items were found loose in the mails, with no identification either as to sender or recipient.

If you think you know a bargain when you see one, you can look in on the merchandise today at the City Postoffice, North Capitol st. and Massachusetts ave.

The items will be on display again Wednesday morning until 11 a. m. The public auction starts at noon.

For men, there are sporting goods and garden implements, and for women 236 pairs of nylon hose, more than a hundred coats and dresses, and costume jewelry in abundance.

For the kids there are toys, all unguaranteed.

John Sparkman, foreman, and Everett Estes, clerk in the dead letter and parcels office of the Postoffice Department will auction off the goods, expected to bring about $4500. Terms: cash.

U. S.-British Ships Concluding Games

Tokyo, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—The second and concluding phase of the combined American-British naval war games off the east coast of Japan began today with British naval units steaming south from the northern tip of Honshu under simulated air attack.

The British will be joined by American naval units and both navies will merge forces to defend air attacks by F-51 fighters and Invader B-26 medium attack bombers. B-29's will fly overhead on surveillance missions.

At night, F-61 Black Widow fighters will fly a defensive combat air patrol over the naval forces which will end the exercise September 2.

Hint of CIO Backing Spurs Truman Drive

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Cheered by the prospect of CIO backing, President Truman yesterday completed plans for his first avowed political trip—a quick one to Detroit over Labor Day.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman will open his campaign in Detroit on Monday and make appearances in four other Michigan cities before his return here Thursday.

The President also conferred with Senator J. Howard McGrath, National Democratic Chairman, on an extensive Nation-wide tour, slated to start sometime after mid-September.

Finances Cause Concern

Ross said details of the cross-country trip will not be announced until the President returns from Detroit.

It was learned, meanwhile, that the important matter of financing may have its effect on the scope of the Democratic campaign.

The Detroit trip, and the other tours to follow, must be paid for by the hard-pressed-for-money Democratic National Committee.

One informant said the money shortage isn't likely to crimp White House plans for a "meet the people" campaign but it may effect some of the committee's supplementary plans.

Seek Train for Barkley

For example, the Democrats hoped to put a second train on the road for Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.), the President's running mate, as they did for Mr. Truman when he campaigned with Franklin Roosevelt in 1944.

Whether they can manage it or not will depend on renewed efforts to raise money through the newly organized Truman-Barkley clubs, separate finance directors being named for each State, and a soon-to-be appointed "big name" finance committee.

The CIO executive board meanwhile approved an anti-inflation program that read very much like Mr. Truman's, and censured the Eightieth Congress for "failing to meet its obligations to the American people."

CIO President Philip Murray told newsmen he "assumed" the board will indorse a presidential candidate when it resumes its meeting today. Other sources said the CIO is virtually certain to formally back the Truman-Barkley ticket.

Earlier, Americans for Democratic Action, comprising the anti-Wallace liberal wing of the Democratic Party, who opposed Mr. Truman's nomination at Philadelphia, voted an "emphatic" indorsement of the Democratic ticket at its board meeting in Chicago.

And from Leslie Biffle, the President's Senate liaison and close friend, came more cheering news, tending to support the President's own optimism.

Finds Unexpected Strength

Following a poultry truck tour of West Virginia, Northern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, Biffle said he found Truman strength in unexpected places and concluded:

"The people are siding with the President in his dispute with the Eightieth Congress."

Biffle left his chicken truck in the mid-West, flew to Spokane, and then toured parts of Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota in an old car. He will leave Thursday on another incognito tour of Kentucky, southern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

He said his soundings to date indicate the Democrats will recapture control of the Senate. Before he leaves on his next trip, Biffle will report to the President that the people are more interested in two subjects than any other: The high cost of living and "Are we going to have a war?"

War Urged on Inflation

The CIO board called on CIO unions and their members to wage a "crusade against inflation."

"The outlook for the coming months is not good," it said. "There is little indication that prices will come down."

The board asked member unions to hold mass meetings to discuss inflation. It suggested consumer committees be set up to conduct the meetings, that political candidates be invited to attend and say where they stand, and that CIO-PAC groups point up the records of Congressmen and Senators who voted against inflation controls.

The board approved this anti-inflation program: (1) Excess profits legislation (2) price control of basic commodities, (3) authority to allocate and ration commodities in short supply and (4) control of bank and consumer credit.

Early Students Of Indian Hailed

By The Associated Press

The Smithsonian Institution paid tribute yesterday to two Ohioans who pioneered in the study of prehistoric Indian mounds a century ago.

They were Dr. Edwin Hamilton Davis, a Chillicothe, Ohio, physician who dug into Indian earthworks as a hobby during a busy career as a country doctor, and Ephraim George Squier, a country newspaper editor.

They wrote a study called the "Ancient Monuments of the Mississippi Valley," which the Smithsonian, in a statement, termed "epochal" and "the cornerstone of North American archelogy."

Calls Sheriff

U. S. Probes Louisiana Primary

New Orleans, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Congressional investigators today started inquiring into a "report" from an undisclosed source that the sheriffs of Louisiana were called to the State capital last week and told to make sure that Russell B. Long, son of the late Kingfish, is nominated to a United States Senate seat tomorrow.

Russell Long is opposed by Judge Robert F. Kennon, leader of the anti-Long forces in the State, in a Democratic primary election tomorrow. Two United States Senate seats, seven seats in Congress and dozens of State and municipal offices are at stake.

William E. Murray, chief counsel of a special congressional investigating committee, said he personally would investigate the report about the sheriffs. He said his first witness will be Sheriff C. F. Rowley of St. Bernard Parish.

"Mr. Rowley will answer all the questions I ask," Murray said. "If he doesn't, he will be subpenaed for contempt of Congress—and that carries a six-month to five-year prison sentence upon conviction."

Murray declined to say where he had got the report about the sheriffs.

U. S. Archives Linguist to Leave Post

Mrs. Natalia Summers, linguist, historian and friend of scholars, will retire today from the foreign affairs section of the National Archives after 30 years of Government service.

Mrs. Summers

The 70-year-old native of Russia and widow of a former consul general at Moscow will sail immediately for Rome. She will join her son, Lionel, who is with the American Embassy there.

Her work with the National Archives for the past 10 years was commended highly yesterday by Dr. Wayne C. Grover, archivist of the United States.

Mrs. Summers, a specialist in records of foreign affairs, joined the staff of the Archives in 1938 after 20 years' service with the archives section of the State Department.

"She had an extremely large circle of acquaintances among scholars and historians, and all of them are indebted to her for her aid as consultant and adviser," said Dr. Almon R. Wright, director of the foreign affairs section.

Mrs. Summers was born in Russia in 1878. In 1905, she married Maddin Summers, who was in the United States Consular Service, and thereby became an American citizen.

Upon recommendation of President Wilson, she was appointed in the classified service of the State Department, without examination, in 1920.

According to her associates, she has "exceptional command over Russian, Spanish and French, as well as English, and reads Portuguese, Italian and Serbian," and is an authority on American diplomatic history.

Mrs. Summers lived at 2310 Ashmead pl. nw. She will return to this country when her son is next transferred.

Dr. Einstein Tells Facts Of Message

Princeton, N. J., Aug 30 (A.P.).—Prof. Albert Einstein today told what he said in a message to the World Congress of intellectuals at Wroclaw, Poland.

The message, Enstein said, urged a "supra-national organization" to own what he called "horrible weapons" devised in recent years.

The message was a mystery because it was never read at the congress, which closed Saturday. And Dr. Otto Nathan of New York, who carried the message to Wroclaw, would not say why he decided not to read it.

Einstein added in his message:

"It is unthinkable, however, that nations under existing conditions would hand over such authority to a supra-national organization unless the organization would have the legal right and duty to solve all the conflicts which in the past have led to war.

"The functions of individual states would be to concentrate more or less upon internal affairs. In their relation with other states they would deal only with issues and problems which are in no way conducive to endangering international security."

He said if the supra-national organization fails now, it "will be built later upon the ruins of a large part of the world."

When Dr. Nathan arrived in Warsaw for the congress, he said, he "unfortunately could not say "why I felt it better not to present Proffesor Einstein's message.

The congress did hear a letter written by the physicist in answer to an invitation to attend the meeting. This lette rsaid the road to world peace should be sought "without lisin gourw ay in the petty political differences of everyday life."

Ala. College President Killed in Collision

Florence, Ala., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Dr. J. A. Keller, 60, president of Florence State Teachers College, and Mrs. Keller were killed in a collision of an automobile and a train at Tuscumbia, Ala., last night.

Egg Barrage Hits Wallace on Tour of North Carolina

out of his automobile the eggs and tomatoes began to fly.

A rock and a loaded ice cream cone also were aimed at the Iowan.

Wallace was hit by at least three eggs. He whirled to one side as he saw them coming, and took them on his left arm. A sleeve of his white shirt was stained a bright yellow by the yolks.

Clark Forman, treasurer of the Progressive Party, took the worst punishment. Four or five eggs, and perhaps as many ripe tomatoes, landed on him, ruining his white linen suit.

"Go back to Russia," cried Wallace's hecklers.

"Go back to Black Bottom. That's where you belong."

Black Bottom is Burlington's Negro quarter.

Wallace stood out in the middle of the street as the eggs and tomatoes continued to fly. His expression was that of a man who knew that a thing was happening but found it hard to believe.

He walked over to a middle-aged man who was part of a circle drawn around him. He put his hands on the man's shoulders and said, "I ask you, am I in the United States?"

"Take your damn hands off me," the man growled and twisted away.

Wallace Visibly Shaken

Wallace, visibly shaken, tried to make a speech.

"I want to thank the good people of Greensboro," he began.

Apparently he did not know the town was Burlington.

"Go back to Russia," the onlookers continued to yell. "Git going."

A small boy, perched on his father's shoulders, was firing tomatoes at him, grinning all the time.

Three policemen were gathered around Wallace. They stayed by his side until, finally, somebody on the edge of the crowd hurled a rock.

A Wallace supporter, one of the few on the scene, piled into the rock thrower and a wild fist-fight ensued. One of the policemen detached himself from Wallace and seized the trouble-maker.

Wallace finally gave up his efforts to make a speech. He got into a maroon-colored Hudson, which was splattered with broken eggs, and drove on to Greensboro.

As the caravan moved away from Burlington, a tomato banged against a sedan occupied by Edwin Lahey of the Chicago Daily News, Ted Lewis of the New York Daily News, and The Washington Post reporter. The car bore a Wallace-for-President sign.

In Greensboro, Wallace made a speech in front of the Guilford County Courthouse.

As he was walking up the steps, an egg caught him squarely in the back of his head. He reached back, wiped the yolk away, and then turned and flashed a smile at the crowd of 1500. Obviously, he had recovered from his stunning experience in Burlington.

"I don't mind a little good-natured throwing of eggs and tomatoes," he told the assemblage, "but I think they would be much more useful if fed to children."

Can Hardly Be Heard

What bothered him, he went on to say, was the look of hatred that distorted men's faces. Hatred, he said, could not cure hatred; only love could do it.

Wallace could hardly be heard, so great was the uproar from his hecklers. The shouts were pretty much the same as he had heard earlier in Burlington:

"Go back to Russia."

"How's Uncle Joe?"

"Where's your hammer and sickle?"

Wallace said he wanted to deliver the South from economic bondage. Southern workers, he said, were merely stooges for Northern capitalists.

"Who's stooge are you?" an onlooker yelled.

Not all of those gathered outside the courthouse were this hostile.

"He's got guts," said one man. "They ought to let him have his say even if he's wrong."

A good many others in the throng seemed to feel the same way about it.

Wallace was the target for more eggs—and also peaches—as he got back into his automobile.

Meantime, the police had arrested the youth with the deadly aim, who had fired an egg against the back of Walace's head.

The candidate asked the police to release the youngster.

From the courthouse Wallace and his Progressives, white and colored, went to a grove on the outskirts of town for a barbecue.

Peter Seeger, the troubadour, strummed his guitar and sang folk songs, Wallace sitting cross-legged on the grass, joined in the harmony.

As Wallace drove away from Greensboro, a young man stood in the roadway and flaunted a Confederate flag.

The same man and the same flag were in evidence again when Wallace stopped in the town of High Point.

The crowd there was hostile, too. But the bombardment was a mild one that brought forth nothing harder than tomatoes.

Wallace stood out in the street and tried to make a speech. The hecklers went after him, however, and it was almost impossible to hear him.

The only new note that could be heard in the uproar was a cry of "How's Molotov?"

Traveling in the Wallace caravan today was James Daniel Harris, a 22-year-old student at the University of North Carolina. He was wearing bandages on his arm and heard a relative gloating over the lynching of a Negro.

Harris said that his father, a Georgian, was a Dixiecrat.

Harris was slashed by a knife-wielder, who jumped him as he was serving as a bodyguard for Wallace after the rally.

"The pity of it is," said young Harris, "those fellows who caused all the trouble are the very ones Wallace is trying to help."

He was gratified by one thing, he said, and that was the fact that the fighting in the armory had been between whites. The Negroes, who constituted about half the audience, remained aloof as the free-for-all was underway.

Harris, a seaman in the Navy during the war, told The Post reporter that he became a Wallace enthusiast in 1941. He was an usher in a movie theater, he said, and heard Wallace talking in a newsreel. He was captivated.

But that wasn't the only reason he had joined the Progressive Party, he said, and told of being revolted as a small boy when he was back, a reminder of last night's near-riot in the National Guard Armory at Durham.

Wallace Gets Copy Of Segregation Law

Birmingham, Ala., Aug 30 (A.P.).—Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor has sent Henry Wallace a copy of Birmingham's segregation laws—to make sure he's familiar with them.

The Progressive Party presidential candidate is scheduled to make an address here Wednesday afternoon. He has said he will speak before a mixed meeting only, but his permit stipuates city and State laws must be observed.

The laws include Birmingham's segregation ordinance which provides for separation of whites and Negroes by "well defined physical barriers" at all public meetings, including those held outdoors.

The Wallace address is scheduled for the steps of the county courthouse.

Governor Cherry Condemns Manhandling

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—North Carolina Gov. Gregg Cherry today sharply condemned the demonstrations which marred Henry Wallace's appearances in Durham, Greensboro and Burlington.

"The State will not allow such manhandling," Cherry said, "whether or not we agree with the man. There is no place in North Carolina for that kind of dealing. It's unfortunate that such things happen when people follow the lead of a few irresponsible persons.

"Besides, that's just the kind of thing Wallace wants, you know. That kind of publicity will do him good in other places."

In Ashville, Police Chief Eric Hall said Wallace had asked and would get a police escort at the Progressive rally in courthouse plaza tomorrow night. Hall said he did not expect any trouble.

How can one Frying Chicken sell for 49c a pound and another at 69c a pound, yet both cost you the same? Here's the answer:

A chicken that has head and feet on and entrails in and weighs 3 pounds with but the feathers removed, is known in the trade as a "New York Dressed" Frying Chicken. The same chicken when completely dressed and drawn weighs 2 pounds, 2 ounces, a loss of 14 ounces for the inedible parts. This is known as a "Dressed and Drawn" Frying Chicken and is ready for the pan.

The rest is simple mathematics. The 3-pounds New York Dressed Fryer at 49c per pound will cost you $1.47. The 2-pound 2-ounce Dressed and Drawn Fryer at 69c per pound will cost you $1.47.

COMPARE THE CONVENIENCE of buying chicken this way. It's completely cleaned. Require no additional preparation at home, and no waiting for the meat cutter to prepare your fryer at time of purchase.

COMPARE QUALITY! Each bird is carefully selected for tenderness and flavor. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

Draft 1948

For the second time within eight years, America's young men are registering for military service. There is this important difference between the procedure which began yestrday and that which took place on October 16, 1940: on that fateful day the world was already enmeshed in war. While there still lingered some hope that the United States might somehow contrive to remain aloof, our own vital interests were already imperiled by Hitler's mad conquest. This time there is no shooting war. Essentially what has happened is that Congress and the people have come to realize that when a war breaks out, even if the United States is not at first directly involved, it is too late to talk of prevention through preparedness. The hope this time is that by taking a firm stand against aggression the present verbal and ideological conflict may be resolved short of atomization.

It is this determination to build up America's military power before it is a move of desperation that makes today's undertaking significant. At times it may be hard to relate field training and garrison duties to the preservation of peace; but the young men who are about to enter the Army are in a very real sense the defenders of their country. They will be living advertisements of the fact that the United States has tried and found unworkable the way of military weakness and that now, reluctantly but nonetheless intently, it is pledged to maintain its military strength at a level sufficient to command the respect of any aggressor.

Even though many of the men now registering will be deferred and large-scale inductions are not planned, it is no inconsequential sacrifice that these young men are called upon to make. Many must postpone or interrupt careers, and for a whole generation of Americans the draft is a poised threat. To be sure, there are many corollary benefits, and in the last analysis it is a privilege to be able to serve in peace rather than war. But the fatalism with which the draft is likely to imbue this generation is not a consideration to be discarded lightly. In return for the necessary sacrifice these young men are making, the Nation owes it to them and their families to make sure that their services will be utilized wisely and that the training they receive will be geared to modern concepts of defense. In this connection there is satisfaction to be gained from the new spirit of leadership in the Army and in the simplified registration procedure adopted by selective service—both indications that the lessons garnered from experience in World War II are being applied in practice.

International Antarctic

The State Department's proposal for international control over the Antarctic is especially gratifying to this newspaper because of our frequent advocacy of such a policy. More than a year ago we suggested that "the job of exploitation and control of the Antarctic clearly belongs to the United Nations." What the State Department now requests, after negotiating informally on the question with the seven nations claiming parts of the cold southern continent, is "some form of internationalization." To our way of thinking that inevitably means U. N. control or at least U. N. supervision over the nations to whom administration of Antarctica may be entrusted.

The United States is in an excellent position to take the lead in this matter because, in spite of much exploration by Americans in the Antarctic, our Government has never advanced territorial claims there. Nathaniel B. Palmer, a native of Connecticut, is said to have been the first person to reach the frozen continent in 1820. A few American explorers have made claims in behalf of their country, but when Admiral Richard E. Byrd flew over the South Pole in February, 1947, he dropped a bundle of 54 flags representing all the members of the United Nations at that time. It was an appropriate recognition of the American viewpoint that this great unsettled area should not be carved up into rival claims. The claimant nations — Australia, Norway, France, New Zealand, Chile and the United Kingdom—could scarcely be expected to weaken their claims by coming out for international administration. But it would certainly be the part of statesmanship for them to accept the State Department's approach.

What the value of the Antarctic continent may be remains largely for the future to unfold. The chief issue now is not the value of that continent or any part of it but an arrangement that will prevent it from becoming a source of international friction and war when and if its unexplored resources become of real significance. The forward movement of the world today is toward integration. If the nations holding rival claims to the frozen wastes of Antarctica cannot agree upon bringing them under an international administration, the chance for securing a joint defense system to keep the peace would seem to be meager indeed.

Forest Lands

Judging from the tenor of the hearings conducted in the West by the Barrett Subcommittee of the House Public Lands Committee last year, the group's subsequent report might have been expected to tear the hide off the Forest Service. That it does no such thing is an agreeable surprise. Congressmen Barrett and his colleagues listened to a great number of complaints from stockmen about Forest Service administration of grazing in national forests. The hearings were not the acme of fairness in that the Forest Service often did not have ample opportunity to defend its policies. Nevertheless, what has emerged is a moderate, constructive report that apparently has been improved by a period of distillation following the displays of temper.

Among the most encouraging observations of the report is the recognition it gives to the importance of conservation in the national forests and the danger of overgrazing. The committee backs multiple use of the forests and asserts categorically that "the forests should be administered to serve all interests, and at the same time to protect the rights of the general public." Moreover, it is of the unanimous opinion that "our national forests should not be sold to private ownership or transferred to the States, but should remain in Federal ownership." That in itself is a repudiation of the position taken by partisan extremists with whose views the committee has been deluged.

Five recommendations make up the meat of the Barrett report: (1) that the Forest Act be amended to include grazing as well as recreation and wildlife as a basic use of national forests; that advisory boards be given legal status; that cuts in the number of grazing animals allowed on forest lands be made only for protection; that the Forest Service undertake a vigorous program of range improvement; and that range permittees be allowed to participate in the range improvement program.

On the surface, at least, these are reasonable suggestions. Any legislation legalizing advisory boards should take pains, of course, to keep them purely advisory. To allow them actually to dominate the range program, as some stockmen wish, would defeat the purpose of the Forest Service. Likewise, it would be proper to allow the Forest Service some flexibility in determining cuts to be made in animals permitted on the range. Arbitrary decisions without consultation should be avoided, but the Forest Service ought to be the final judge of when ranges are overloaded. Finally, it seems to us that the Forest Service has a point in holding that while permittees should be encouraged to make range improvements, those improvements should have the sanction of the Federal Government and should remain the property of the Government.

At several points the Barrett report criticizes the Forest Service for not promoting an energetic enough program of range improvement. Here is an invitation for the Forest Service to ask for the funds it needs to keep existing ranges healthy and restore depleted grasslands to usability. This receptive attitude on the part of the Public Lands Subcommittee is both encouraging and good common sense, for public grazing lands are an essential part of the economy of the Nation. The long-term interests of the West will be served by cooperation in caring for and conserving the range rather than in perpetuating the feuding that too often in the past has obscured the real issues.

Barberism

The proposal now under discussion to raise the price of haircuts from $1 to $1.25 appears to be based on two assumptions, neither of which has ever been subjected to scientific verification. The first is the sentimental supposition that barbers have just as much right to live as anybody else. The second is the notion that the American male could not possibly go about his business without having his crowning glory fleeced fortnightly as though he were a lamb or a pet poodle. We shall deal with these assumptions individually and in order.

We have no disposition to indict an entire trade or to suggest the extinction of barbers as a class. Generally speaking, barbers are very affable fellows, often, indeed, quite amiable. And it is probably true that a barber's dollar is worth no more today than a dollar in the hands of anybody else. But mere affection should not be permitted to obscure sober consideration of the basic question: Are barbers necessary? Barbering as an occupation is as old as Delilah, maybe older, and there is simply no substantial evidence to indicate that the effects of it, so far as the barberee is concerned, have been any more beneficial throughout the ensuing centuries than they were on Samson after his first tonsorial treatment. Who today, in point of fact, has not felt himself reduced, like Samson, to impotence and even to absurdity when, garbed in the sacrificial white robes of the tonsorial cloister, he hears the ominous snip-snip of the pointed shears about his head?

As to leaving the public unbarbered, although the idea at first seems startling, there is much to be said in its behalf. The Melanesians and Polynesians do it and, to our way of thinking, look all the better on that account. The young lady just designated Miss Washington of 1948 has hair that tumbles all over her shoulders and, judging from her pictures, looks a great deal more attractive than any male we ever saw emerging sheepishly and aromatically, hair close-clipped and sleeked down upon his pate, from the tiled confines of his favorite barber shop. Let it grow, we say. Let braids and pigtails be in vogue. Wigs and queues were good enough for our forefathers; let them serve us, too. Or, let the shining dome of baldness become for all of us, as it is already for an economically favored few, a mark of our emancipation from a ritual long since outmoded and obsolete.

Noblesse Oblige

Congressmen are not the only ones, of course, who make discreditable spectacles of themselves in connection with legislative investigations. Sometimes witnesses are discourteous, obstreperous and even disorderly. From the Associated Press account, that sort of conduct appears to have started the shouting contest which brought the Hoffman Committee into the news last week at Jackson, Mich. Webb Magnor, United Auto Workers international representative, is reported to have jumped to his feet and shouted at a company witness who was testifying, "It's a lie, just like a lot of this other stuff." That juvenile outburst brought a similar emotional response from Congressman Hoffman. Fists were shaken and foolish angry words exchanged before the Congressman had the labor leader put out of the hearing room.

It is unquestionably true that congressional investigators are often provoked by discourteous and undisciplined witnesses. The vital point is, however, that the public expects something more of a legislator presiding over a hearing as a representative of the Congress of the United States than it does of the rank and file of witnesses that may come before him. It is up to the chairman of such an investigating committee to set an example of courteous conduct and restraint in dealing with excited or unruly individuals. An insulting outburst from a witness or a defendant in the courtroom does not provoke the judge to lose his own temper and reply in similar language. When highly controversial matters involving the deep emotions of individuals are under investigation, we must expect witnesses occasionally to fly off the handle and be removed from the hearing room. Is it not possible, however, for Congress to find chairmen for its investigating committees who can rise above the level of irascible and quarrelsome witnesses?

The dignity of Congress as a body is at stake no less than the good will of the people toward their Government. The fact that individuals may be rude, unfair and contemptuous in their dealings with Government officials is never an excuse for officials to be rude, unfair or contemptuous in their conduct toward citizens. We cannot help thinking that if this basic rule of official conduct in a democracy were more generally observed most of the furor that now surrounds congressional quests for information would subside.

Russian Castles

The influence of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, irrespective of what Congress did to it, has been felt in Moscow. The Presidium of the Supreme Soviet has decreed that every Russian has the right to buy or build himself a house. Moreover, the house may have two stories and up to five rooms, and Soviet citizens may have the use of building land in perpetuity. Whether this represents a new kink in Marxist doctrine we do not profess to say. Like so many other "rights" which the Soviet citizen is guaranteed, the principle of home ownership is recognized in the 1936 USSR constitution. One would think, however, that the Presidium would take a wary view of some of the implications. After all, a man's house is his castle, and everyone knows how the Kremlin shuns such trappings of decadent society.

Lest anyone think that this new rule amounts to strawberries with cream, it may be pointed out that one element in the decree is lacking. The Presidium has neglected to decree just how the Russian citizen is to acquire the means to get a house. That may be just a dialectical slip, but it leaves one with the impression that this right is about as promising as the average American's right to make a million dollars or to be President. To be sure, there is quite a gap between the financial ability of the average American veteran and the cost of some of the dream houses now offered on the market. But in Moscow, where housing reportedly is on the basis of several families to a room, these are probably only plutocratic bourgeois considerations. Anyhow, it is encouraging that the Russians now have the right to dream of their castles. Undoubtedly a new crop of Mr. Blandings will be prospecting any day now.

KANSANS

I, who am Eastern born, know Kansas.
Not from a passing train or speeding car—
Not from such means alone (though partly those)—
But Kansas lives wherever Kansans are.

Put them down in a distant city —
Still there is something about the eye,
Some sure mark on the mouth, the forehead,
Clean as the wind and as firm as sky.

Men are marked by the States they come from—
Given the look of a breed, a strain—
And the Kansas look is as good as grass,
As wide as earth, and as kind as rain!

Bipartisan Policy

It is unfortunate that Governor Dewey should be criticized for voicing an opinion on United States foreign policy. Such criti...n is unwarranted for two reasons: First, it is essential that the Republican Party present to the country its views on so vital an issue as foreign affairs so that the voters may know what the Republicans propose in that field. Since war may be the result of unsound foreign policy and weak leadership, every American citizen is vitally concerned in and should give careful consideration to the foreign policy plans and personnel offered the Nation by both Republicans and Democrats.

Second, there is no just reason why Republican leaders should continue to support an unsound Democratic foreign policy. Indeed, it is the duty of the opposition party to constructively criticize the foreign policy of the Administration, if it is impracticable and ineffective, or worse. The argument that there should be bipartisan support of Administration foreign affairs plans to present a "united front" to other nations is invalid, if the Administration is making harmful secret compacts or is horse-trading the American people into unnecessary concessions leading to the weakening of the United States economy and war.

Government Theater

Probably a number of people have been puzzled, as I have, as to the basis for the apparent assumption on the part of various correspondents of yours that there is some duty on the Government to provide a theater for people who live in the District of Columbia and environs. I enjoy a theater when the play is good and the environment is pleasant; but in your enthusiastic efforts to eliminate any distinction between Negroes and whites you have failed to realize that most white people would not enjoy themselves at a theater if they were seated with Negroes.

I happen to know a number of Negroes, perfectly desirable citizens, who would be equally uncomfortable if they were mixed in with the whites. No doubt there are some whites and some Negroes who want to mix with each other, although I have never personally known any of either race who actually possessed such a desire. Whether you were right or wrong in contributing your influence toward abolishing the theater in Washington (for that is exactly what you contributed to), the fact remains that at the present moment there is no theater here other than moving picture theaters.

I enjoy going to the theater under proper conditions, but I am just wondering if perchance the inhabitants of Washington won't be able to survive just like the inhabitants of all other cities in the United States except a few of the very largest, without having a stage play going on here. In any event, desirable as it may be, and even if it be viewed as a necessity by some, what earthly basis exists for assuming or arguing that the taxpayers of the United States or any portion thereof should contribute toward supplying me or you or anybody else with a theater?

The fact is that a number of experienced and intelligent, thinking people in the Nation believe that one of the reasons we are in as much difficulty as we are is because such a large portion of the people have acquired the impression that "THEY" (somebody else—the Government) OWE them a "living," with plumbing, electricity, and all the modern conveniences.

Carolina Polio

The record should be set straight, it seems to me, on the stories of the polio epidemic in North Carolina. Nags Head, which is in the northeast corner of the State, has had no polio in more than 20 years.

The area which is composed of Kitty Hawk, made famous by the Wright brothers; Kill Devil Hills and Nags Head postoffice is entirely surrounded by water. It has been a happy hunting ground in recent years for fishermen, hunters and vacationers from the Washington, D. C., area.

The stories published in The Washington Post have served as an effective deterrent to visitors from the Washington area despite the polio-free record of Nags Head. I know because I had planned for more than a year to bring my family from Bethesda, only to be faced with the repeated stories of the polio epidemic which failed to differentiate between the conditions in the eastern and western sections of the State and the polio-stricken central and western areas.

It was only after talking with doctors and with North Carolina authorities that I decided to come, and found on my arrival not only that there was no polio but that effective steps had been taken to keep people from the epidemic areas who had children out of Nags Head.

ELIZABETH OSWALD.
Bethesda.

Editor's note—United States Public Health Service does not break down its polio records by areas smaller than counties. However, USPHS records do show that Dare County, N. C., in which the resort area is located, had not had a polio case in this year's epidemic up to the county's latest reporting date (August 26). Moreover, the same records show that the last previous reported case of infantile paralysis from Dare County, N. C., was in September, 1944, the county's one case for that year.

Thrasher Project

Sue N. Poston, in her letter of August 27, seems to be worried about the effect of the Thrasher conservation project on foreign countries. She fears that foreigners will get the idea that "our competitive economy, capitalism, is normally cooperative." It is!

There is nothing new to America about cooperation. The Thrasher farm project is on a larger scale, that is all. This kind of thing has been going on since Colonial days, and all through our expansion west. People chipping in to help a neighbor build a better house or gathering to quilt a bedspread. Cooperation is an early American practice. I may say, it is a typical American practice.

However, the Thrasher project was not inaugurated to show cooperation. It is a conservation move. It is an attempt to awaken a wide interest in trying to conserve our natural resources. The Washington Post on August 19 stated: "Conservation experts were overjoyed." Said they, "If we had tried to stage such an event 10 years ago people would have laughed. This proves that the people are interested in conservation."

"Church Unity"

Your August 29 editorial, "Church Unity," impels a glad note of congratulation after reading your sane summary of the possibility involved in the Amsterdam Council of Christian Churches. I do not know a churchman who could have written more exactly what I believe the intelligent Christians of every Church organization would wish said.

May I add for the benefit of readers who fail to see how unity can exist in distinct individualism, even in worship, that our Nation has shown how unity of many States, each with a distinct ruler and even decided individualism in laws, can say "E pluribus unum" with all sincerity. The ideal which the Amsterdam Council is striving to reach is not that of a superchurch, but an organization of spirit, representing all Christian churches. What the world needs is not so much talk on "all men born free and equal," but that where the Spirit of Christ is the dominating rule of life, individual preferences or tastes can not divide that unity.

Prejudging Guilt

To me, it is Un-American and inhuman the way in which the Un-American Activities Committee hearings are being conducted. There has been an atmosphere of hate—and judgment already passed—in the caucus room.

"He is a traitor without any doubt—has definitely committed perjury etc. etc." I overheard the above remarks during a recent noon recess. Because of the evident intolerance and hatred shown towards Mr. Hiss, I said to the group "a man in this country is innocent until proven guilty." A friend who was with me, thought I was going to be torn to pieces by this hungry pack of intolerant women.

I have attended several of these hearings and other committee hearings in the past—but never have I felt such an atmosphere of hostility. I think at times it was purposely created by the type and manner of questioning by several of the Un-American Activities Committee members. V. R. L.

Editorial "We"

Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer's ride with the pilot of the jet plane, as described in her August 27 column, must indeed have been an extraordinary experience.

"Before climbing into the incredible machine, we inserted ourselves into a baby blue coverall." That sounds like fun. But wasn't it a little crowded in there? Yet on the other hand, isn't that the kind of statement likely to pop up as a result of using the editorial "we" and "our" over 20 times in a single article written in the first person?

These editorial words sometimes sound a bit odd to the reader nowadays, even when used in their customary places. Certainly modern educators will agree that, out of place, the words sound extremely affected and often convey entirely the wrong impression.

Wallace's Aims

I have seen so many secret and wrong doings in the Republican and Democratic parties that I have lost faith. I now find myself being forced back into the Army because I can't pay for food and rent. I can now see Henry Wallace's aims. I oppose his appeasing Russia but Wallace seems to be the only one who is willing to give the poor people a break.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

This Man Kaiser

OAKLAND, CALIF.—In a chartreuse and chocolate-brown office as modern as day after tomorrow sits a man who looks like a great, big, happy frog on a great, big lily pad. It's wrong to say that Henry J. Kaiser sits, because he doesn't.

He is the jumpingest jumping frog in all of the West. He has the warm, eager enthusiasm of a bulldozer and the shrinking modesty of a Hollywood press agent. He told your correspondent:

That Kaiser today produced more cement than the total produced by the prewar cement "trust."

That Kaiser was producing more aluminum ingot than the total production of the country in 1937.

That Kaiser-Fraser was making 1000 cars a day, and selling them and had 35 million dollars in cash in the bank.

That is really only a small part of what he said. Memory reels before the onslaught of facts, figures, drama, pantomime, all interspersed with long-distance telephone calls from various parts of the country.

This man Kaiser is one of the most controversial figures in the United States. He has repeatedly defied all the gods of business and finance who said it couldn't be done. He has been called harsh names by those who have accused him of snagging political subsidies out of Government to finance his private ventures. And always he bounces back a little higher than before.

EVEN WHEN he relaxes, he does it in a large way. He decided to build a summer retreat on Lake Tahoe in Nevada. Soon guest houses were blooming with the rich luxuriance of California geraniums. Kaiser even got his own motor boats and his own crews into the Tahoe races and began to collect trophies in wholesale lots.

Today he is in some 28 different industries. The exact number of Kaiser corporations is known only to the wizard himself, and sometimes he forgets a few of the smaller ones.

Kaiser is always in a fight on one or more fronts. Today the major front is steel and the chief adversary is the Republic Steel Co. Kaiser had the effrontery to take a blast furnace right out from under the nose of Republic by way of a bid entered with the War Assets Administration. This impudent gesture has sent a small earthquake through the industry.

The man is unpredictable. Preaching against monopoly, he raised prices the other day on steel products from the Kaiser steel plant at Fontana, Calif., to practically the gray market level. The price of steel plate was raised from $4.30 a hundredweight to $5.80, structural steel from $4.25 to $5.75.

Immediately, loud outcries went up from fabricators out here who said they could not compete with Eastern manufacturers if they had to pay those prices. Kaiser brushes these objections aside as one would wave away a buzzing fly.

HE OWES the Reconstruction Finance Corp. something less than 100 million dollars for Fontana, having signed a note in order to get the money from the RFC when he built the plant during the war. They all said (Kaiser speaking) that you couldn't make steel in southern California. Now Kaiser has staked out a new iron ore deposit in the West and built a new railroad to it.

What hurts is that U. S. Steel, the giant, was able to buy a plant at Geneva, Utah, that it operated during the war for 25 cents on the dollar. U. S. Steel had not signed a note with the RFC.

On the subject of inflation, Kaiser says the remedy is to get more production—to build more steel plants even if that does take steel and for a time raise prices even higher. That is the only way, he argues, to cure inflated prices.

The important fact is that things are happening here in the West which never happened before. Steel products are going East and competing with products from the industrial East in Kansas City. Three and a half times as much steel ingot is made here as was made before the war. The aluminum monopoly is broken, thanks largely to West Coast plants.

Kaiser has had a lot to do with this. Call it by whatever name you like, the fierce energy, the drive he has put into his enterprises is the stuff that has made American production records the miracle of the world.

Federal Discrimination

It may interest the Negro Stenographer (letter of August 24), who complained of not receiving grade 5, to know that countless white employes, some of whom are highly efficient and have been in the Federal service for years, have not been given grade 4. There are many ways of discriminating against people other than because of their color or religion.

For example, most persons of all races and creeds who are past a certain age (30 for a woman and 45 for a man) have difficulty in getting any kind of job.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

British Socialism and European Unity

IN THE not distant future the attitude of the British Labor government toward European unity is likely to come in for serious discussion on both sides of the Atlantic. For without the active leadership of the British government the economic cooperation envisaged in the Marshall Plan cannot develop: it will remain little more than a plan to have the United States underwrite the separate dollar deficits of various countries. The Western Union, which was formed at Brussels, will remain an impotent military alliance, unable to evolve into a political system which would restore the power and influence of the European community.

LIPPMANN

American dollars and American guaranties of military support are essential to the security and revival of Europe. But unless Europe is united, little can be accomplished. Not even western Europe can, or will, begin to unite unless Britain, the strongest of the European nations, is affirmatively and actively the leader in the movement towards European unity.

But Mr. Attlee and Mr. Bevin and Sir Stafford Cripps are making it very plain that the Labor government will not now take the leadership, that they are participating reluctantly, without faith or conviction, and only as much as they find it necessary or expedient in order to placate Mr. Churchill and France and the United States.

YET MR. Attlee has said that Europe must federate or perish.

Why then is the Attlee government now so unwilling to lead, so reluctant to follow, the movement toward European unity? Why is the Socialist government in the United Kingdom, allegedly the most progressive in the world, the most inclined to drag its feet when it is asked to promote that most progressive of all international ideals, the unity of Europe? Why is it that in the present crisis of Western civilization this British Socialist government is so much more jealously concerned with the exclusive sovereignty of the United Kingdom than is that tremendous patriot, Mr. Winston Churchill, the proven defender of British institutions and of the British Commonwealth and Empire?

THE REASON, I venture to think, is that the Socialist experiment in the United Kingdom has become such a complicated structure of government plans and government controls that it cannot be maintained and managed except by an ever-increasing exercise of the sovereign power of the central government. Having assumed vast and intricate powers over exports, imports, investments, management, expenditure, consumption, work, and the currency, the Socialist government shrinks from any proposal which would require it to relinquish, or even to share, any of its sovereign power. For in a wider union the planned direction of the United Kingdom's economy could no longer be exclusive, and the whole artificial structure, now held together by government controls and American subsidy, would be in jeopardy.

THE DEFENSE of socialism in Great Britain is making, indeed has made, the Labor government more and more nationalist in its foreign policy. The original idealism of the Western Socialists was always "internationalist." But when Socialists come into power, and if they continue to be Socialists, then socialism becomes inexorably a nationalist socialism.

They cannot help it. When a government undertakes to plan and direct the economic life of a nation, it is drawing very heavily on the sovereign power of the national state. Inevitably it will cling jealously to that sovereign power: since it cannot let private interests at home, it certainly cannot let foreign governments abroad interfere with its planning and its direction of the national economy.

THESE considerations will help to explain why a non-Socialist like Mr. Churchill, why non-Socialist governments in France and Italy, why the non-Socialist United States, why the very non-Socialist Mr. Dewey, Mr. Dulles, Mr. Vandenberg, Mr. Lodge, Mr. Hoffman are now more strongly in favor of European political union than are Mr. Attlee, Mr. Bevin, and Sir Stafford Cripps.

The non-Socialists, insofar as they are economic liberals and not private collectivists and monopolists, are interested in reducing the exercise of sovereign power at home. Since they do not believe in expanding the power of the sovereign state, they are less jealously afraid of political agreements which call for a diminution of national sovereignty.

THERE IS, I think, no escape from the conclusion that the political union of the free European nations is incompatible with state socialism of the British type. It is often said in the British Socialist press that only when all of Europe is Socialist can Europe be federated. Therefore, it is said, the British Labor government cannot now unite with France and Italy since they are moving away from socialism.

But after the war, when all of Europe was Socialist, no progress was made toward union: each Socialist government made its separate national plan. As a matter of fact, if today France and Italy were as firmly committed as is the United Kingdom to an elaborate national plan of detailed control, what likelihood would there be that all these national plans could be merged into some kind of larger supra-national plan? Little I should think, if the merging is to be done by the consent of freely elected governments.

For if there were to be a planned Socialist direction of the whole of western Europe, there would have to be created a western European government so powerful that the House of Commons and the French National Assembly would be little more than provincial councils with limited autonomy. I cannot think, therefore, that Mr. Attlee and Mr. Bevin will ever be the sponsors of a federation of Socialist states. They will continue to work for a Socialist Britain which is not united or entangled with other countries.

THIS WOULD mean that the grand objective of the European recovery program, which was to unite the free countries of Europe for their own rehabilitation and security, may be unattainable during the ascendancy of the Labor government in Great Britain.

Next winter when Congress will have to review the recovery program, this problem may become sharply defined.

You May See Future Wars By Television

Aboard U.S.S. Leyte, off the Atlantic Coast, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Television may be used as a telescopic eye to locate and watch enemy positions hundreds or even thousands of miles away, Rear Admiral Ralph E. Jennings said today.

Jennings, commander of Carrier Division Four, was aboard this new carrier to observe the first sea "battle" ever televised. It was "waged" yesterday 30 miles off New York. Thirty-nine "enemy" planes attacked the carrier, but were "driven off" by 29 of Leyte's fighters and torpedo bombers. The "battle" was sent to New York by television and relayed to outlets in Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington and Richmond.

It was estimated that about two million persons saw the broadcast.

Jennings said that in the last war, radar "showed us where a target was, and now television shows us what it is."

He predicted that television might make it possible in the future for civilians to see actual battles on their sets at home. more probable, he said, such broadcasts would be restricted to military or headquarters staffs.

French Initiative And U.S. Diffidence

WE LOST a valuable advantage when we failed to insist that France join in the Potsdam negotiations. We have continued subsequently to deprive ourselves of the same asset by our frequent refusals to heed her advice when we formulated our policies toward Germany and Russia. For France remains the key to Europe, and, notwithstanding her occasional aberrations, her European policy has long been more realistic and constructive than that of any other power.

After World War I the English-speaking peoples spurned the course that France urged upon them as the only way to spare Europe a renewed German aggression. In 1939 they learned to their cost how accurate France's estimate had been. Yet since the end of World War II Britain and the United States have again demonstrated a consistent belief in their own superior wisdom.

Fortunately France has not abandoned her efforts. When the Berlin crisis arose, the measures proposed by the American Military Government would probably have been disastrous. It was because of French insistence that the military viewpoint was superseded by that of experienced statesmanship. The Moscow negotiations were thereby rendered possible.

THE FRENCH government has now taken two further initiatives. On August 18 the French Cabinet invited Britain and the Benelux nations to join this autumn in a preparatory conference in Brussels to draft a project for a European parliament, as the first step in the creation of a United States of Western Europe, composed of the 16 Marshall Plan nations, western Germany and the free territory of Trieste.

Throughout western Europe there is general support for the proposal. Mr. Bevin, with his strange addiction to policies of utter sterility, has persuaded Mr. Attlee to voice the official disapproval of the British government. Yet a majority of the Conservatives and Socialists, as well as British public opinion as a whole, seem to favor a European federation.

Here there is little interest in a development that would help to preserve world peace, speed European reconstruction and impede Soviet expansion.

The establishment of this larger European unit would reinforce the United Nations. It would restore the balance which Europe so sorely needs. It would lessen the danger of a Soviet domination of the German people. The wider markets thus afforded would stimulate mass production.

SOME members of the Congress, like Senator Fulbright, and a few newspapers, like the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, have had the vision to lead in a campaign to prove that the United States in its own interest should take positive action to further the project. But apart from lip service, this Government has so far shown no signs of having any policy.

In a further initiative the Kremlin, are modified sufficiently to permit western Europe to sell its output where a permanent outlet is assured, and to secure in return such essentials as Polish coal, Baltic lumber or Romanian wheat, which can be bought far more cheaply than similar raw materials from the Western Hemisphere.

THESE TWO FRENCH initiatives represent a welcome sign that the influence of France is French government has suggested that a committee representing the Marshall Plan countries meet at Geneva with delegates of the eastern European nations to find a way to resume trade between eastern and western Europe. Russia's satellites cannot procure from the Soviet Union the heavy goods they so desperately need. They can only obtain them from the west.

Our Congress opposes the export to eastern Europe of industrial equipment from countries accepting ERP aid. Moscow has so far forbidden any East-West trade that would help the recovery of western Europe. Yet the French government knows that there can be no true economic stability in Europe, nor any prospect of a successful western European federation, until the artificial markets prescribed by the European Recovery Program and imposed by the once more making itself felt in European affairs.

According to Mark Twain, "All you need in this life is ignorance and confidence, and then success is sure." The conduct of our postwar policy in Europe seems to have been largely inspired by that philosophy.

Brilliant as their military service to this country has been, the men now directing our policy entered upon their task with no experience nor knowledge that would qualify them to make the fateful decisions required of them. They have been guided by assistants whose outlook has too often been colored by their big-business connections. They have been subjected to the influence of British occupation policies which are determined by some of the blindest reactionaries to be found in present-day England.

The crux of the problem is that, for all of these reasons, and because they are oblivious of the lessons taught us by the years between the great wars, as well as ignorant of the history and psychology of the peoples with whom they must deal, our policy makers have embarked upon a course that would rebuild Europe around Germany and not around France. If we persist on that course there will be no lasting peace.

In a contest such as that in which they are now engaged, the American people can no longer afford to ignore this fundamental issue.

There has been no intimate understanding between France and the United States since the end of the war. It was never more necessary. It is needed for the recovery of Europe, for the safety of the United States and for the creation of a free and peaceful world.

British Cheat Hunger With Fags, Doctor Says

London, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Dr. Nevil Leyton said today that hunger from short rations had caused Britain's cigarette shortage.

Writing in the British Medical Journal, Dr. Leyton said cigarettes "definitely allay hunger pangs which occur to many in England, hence the persistence of increase (in cigarette sales) over prewar figures."

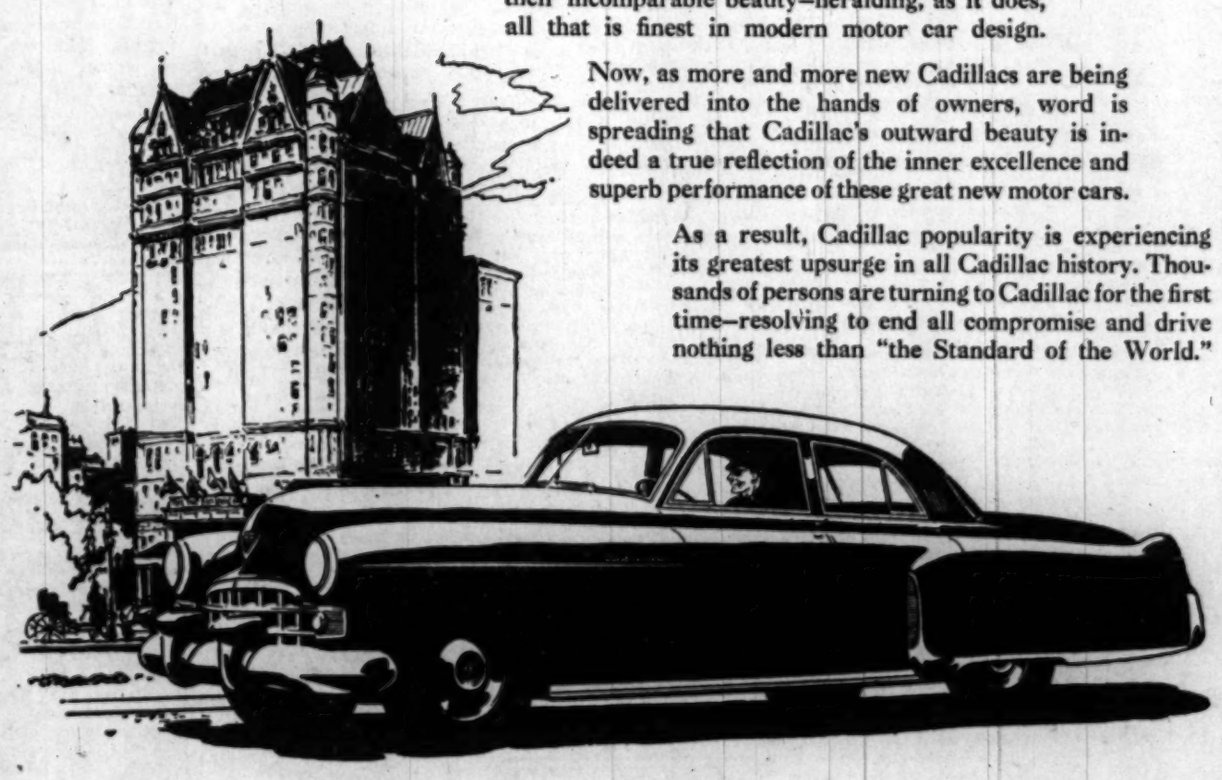
Cadillac

INCOMPARABLE

America's first look at the new Cadillacs was enough to win instant and widespread approval for their incomparable beauty—heralding, as it does, all that is finest in modern motor car design.



Now, as more and more new Cadillacs are being delivered into the hands of owners, word is spreading that Cadillac's outward beauty is indeed a true reflection of the inner excellence and superb performance of these great new motor cars.

As a result, Cadillac popularity is experiencing its greatest upsurge in all Cadillac history. Thousands of persons are turning to Cadillac for the first time—resolving to end all compromise and drive nothing less than "the Standard of the World."

Peacetime Draft Calls 10,000 As Men 25 Years Old Register

Wednesday men born in 1923 after August 30 will register.

Younger Men Report Later

Younger men will report later, with the last group—18 year olds born in 1930 before September 19—visiting their draft boards September 17 and 18. After that youths reaching the age of 18 must register within five daye after their birthday.

No one will be inducted, however, until he is 19.

It was not a new experience for yesterday's registrants. They had signed up seven years ago in the old draft. Most of them, as veterans, married men or 4f's, will not be called. But all except members of the active armed forces had to register.

In a few localities, draft headquarters were picketed. In Boston three men carrying signs urging opposition to the draft were pelted with tomatoes and later arrested after a fracas. They wore Wallace-for-President buttons.

Pickets in Other Cities

Pickets also appeared at two New York City registration centers. One group carried cards protesting race segregation practices in the Army. Another batch of pickets' cards protested the draft as the "Hitler and Stalin way."

Cardboard signs protesting the draft were torn from the necks of two picketers in downtown Philadelphia.

In Columbus Ohio, 12 men and women paraded quietly, bearing signs urging veterans not to register. Members of the Young Progressives of America, an affiliate of the Wallace party, picketed draft headquarters in Lowell, Mass. In San Juan, Puerto Rico, American picketeers urged Puerto Ricans not to register.

Yesterday's call for 10,000 draftees in November was sent to National Selective Service Headquarters by the Munitions Board. It will be broken down into quotas for the various States, territories and the District of Columbia. The latter will allocate quotas to local boards.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal's announcement of the first draft call said that neither the Air Force nor the Navy expect to ask for any draftees during the current fiscal year.

Another call of about 10,000 men probably will be ordered for the Army in December, officials said, with monthly inductions gradually stepping up to 30,000.

Local boards will study the forms filled out by registrants and order men not exempted by law or deferred for dependency or other reasons to report for preinduction examination. After taking these physical and mental exams at induction stations, the men will return home.

Lists of eligibles will be prepared by the local boards, based on the results of the examinations and their own findings. Men will be called from those lists to meet the Army's requirements. In order to permit individuals to adjust their personal affairs, no registrant will be called for induction until at least 21 days after he has been notified that he is acceptable.

When called, men will be given another physical examination and then sent to the nearest training division. After processing, some will be given eight weeks' basic training at the training center. Others will go direct to combat units in the United States for training. They must serve 21 months, plus five years in the Reserve.

As the draft call was issued, Gen. Omar Bradley, Army chief of staff, told the Veterans of Foreign Wars in St. Louis that despite the draft there will be letup in the drive for volunteers.

Bradley also criticized the American educational system for not teaching the youth of the Nation that this is a "two-way democracy."

"American education has failed to give many young men an alert appreciation of their liberties and a consequent explanation of their obligations," he said. "We have too long concentrated on how to make good, how to get ahead. We have taught our young people how to plunder our resources, how to get jobs, and how to get rich.

"We have neglected to tell them that democracy is a two-way street—that with its benefits comes the necessity for also giving service."

Vet Signs Up for New Draft . . .

Draft Taps 5000 Here

setup moved smoothly after a slow start yesterday morning, William E. Leahy, D. C. Selective Service Director, reported.

He revealed that 913 men registered at four city-wide centers yesterday—335 at the District Building, 257 at the Municipal Center, 180 at the National Guard Armory, and 141 at Dunbar High School.

Deputy Draft Director Frank D. Norton said there were only 152 nonveterans among the 913 registrants, bearing out previous forecasts that from 80 to 85 per cent of the oldest age group would have seen World War II service.

Other registration centers at firehouses, police precinct stations, Federal Government ageneies and the District's larger business houses and utilities firms will not turn in first-day registration totals until today, Norton said. At least 4000 others registered at these centers yesterday, he estimated.

Draft-age men may register, as they wish, at any firehouse, police precinct station, the city-wide centers, or at their place of employment if facilities have been provided. Hours are 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

In addition, two American University buildings will serve as registration centers beginning at 8 a. m. today for all who wish to sign up there according to Leahy.

They are the Leonard Student Center at Massachusetts and Nebraska aves. nw., where Stafford H. Cassell will be chief registrar, and the School of Public Affairs at 19th and F sts. nw., under Dr. Donald Derby, chief registrar.

A spot of registration difficulty arose at the District Building when volunteer registrars, 15 strong, arrived just before 8 a. m. to find that tables had not been set up. But within half an hour each had been seated at tables produced by building employes, and registration was under way.

By noon, after a "slow start," 189 men had registered there, said Mrs. Mae E. Hart, chief registrar. Each averaged 15 minutes with the registrar in filling out the post-card-size registration form.

Another half hour delay occurred at the Municipal Center, where another 15 registrars and a few "early bird" registrants waited until 8:30 a. m. before getting down to business.

According to Glenn Comer, a registrar, the delay was caused by tardy arrival of registration forms from draft headquarters. Comer said the Municipal Center was the last stop on the delivery itinery.

The only other trouble, Leahy said, arose at Police Precinct Stations 3 and 10, where registrars mistakenly believed they were to sign up draft-eligible policemen alone.

While the precincts will take all men who care to sign up, Leahy said that the city-wide centers were equipped to handle men more speedily.

He announced that, as a result of "greater than anticipated" registrations at the city's 34 fire houses, Chief Clement Murphy yesterday ordered fire-house registration to "take precedence over all Fire Department activities, except fire-fighting." At least one fireman will be available "at all times to assist in the work," the order said.

In Favor of Draft

Past a sign reading "This Way In" at the door to the District Building went 25-year-olds like Charles E. Robbins, 708 19th st. nw., who isn't "going in" the armed services this time.

Like most men who registered yesterday, Charles, a law student at George Washington University, is a veteran. But for all his 3¼ years in the Army, he favors the peacetime draft.

"It's not too much to ask a citizen to spend a little time preparing himself to defend his country if the need should arise," Robbins said.

Another veteran who thinks the draft is "a good thing" is Joseph E. Medeirous, 25, who was discharged from the Army and Walter Reed Hospital a week ago after more than three years in hospitals for treatment of the stump of his right leg.

Madeirous, who lives with his bride of a week at 3611 40th pl., Colmar Manor, Md., lost his right leg below the knee at Okinawa.

"Will Do Him Good"

"For a guy who hasn't been in, a little military service will do him good," Madeirous said.

Policeman Glenn L. Edmondson, who joined the force just a year ago, was the first Number One Precinct officer to sign up. A veteran of five years in the Navy, he gave his new draft card "a big kiss" as he returned to duty, a fellow officer said.

First PEPCO employe to register was Melvin Eugene Dyson, jr., of 4511 Elm st., Chevy Chase. An aviator in the Naval Reserve, following more than three years' wartime service, he's "ready to go back, if necessary."

Non-Veteran W. R. Compton, 25, D. C. Highway Department employe who lives at 1000 Douglas st. ne., came down to the first floor District Building center from his office upstairs "to get it over with."

Although a physical disability kept him out of service in the late war, Compton says he "wouldn't mind going in the draft—it would be good experience."

One of the fastest-working draft centers yesterday was that of the Potomac Electric Power Co. Their 350 draft-age employes, upon arriving to register, found that PEPCO's personnel department had filled in the registratio cards from information in the personnel files. All they had to do was check their cards for accuracy, and sign.

In the Federal Government, the Department of Commerce signed up more than 475 men, Chief Registrar Mildred Steinmetz said. Miss Steinmetz, who has 26 registrars spread through the various Commerce offices, estimates that the department has about 1216 draft age men.

The smallest unit to registrar its own employes—the National Labor Relations Board, with "12 to 15" draft-age men—registered six men yesterday. Chief Registrar P. A. Hazelton will complete registration when men now on vacation return, he said.

Incomplete registration totals show 430 men signed up in Montgomery County; 238 in Prince Georges County, and 288 in Arlington. In Alexandria, 446 men registered.

Registration centers for nearby Maryland and Virginia men follow.

Montgomery County: At Rockville—Rockville postoffice; Silver Spring—Jesup Blair House, Georgia ave. and Blair rd.; Bethesda-Chevy Chase—veterans' building, Bethesda-Chevy Chase Community and Recreation Center.

Prince Georges County: Hyattsville—County Service Building for youths from Vansville, Berwyn, Riverdale, Hyattsville and Chillum. Upper Marlboro—Draft Board No. 56 will register men at Laurel and Marlboro High School and Bladensburg Elementary School—for youths from Laurel, Browie, Lanham, Bladensburg, Kent, Marlboro, Queen Anne and Mellwood election districts. Upper Marlboro—Draft Board No. 57 will register men at Surrattsville High School at Clinton, and Brandywine, Capitol Heights and District Heights Elementary Schools—for youths from Surrattsville, Piscataway, Brandywine, Nottingham, Aquasco, Oxon Hill, Spaulding and Seat Pleasant districts.

Arlington County: Selective Service offices, second floor of the Jones Building, 3150 Wilson blvd., near N. Hudson st.; John Marshall School, 4751 N. 25th st. and Nellie Curtis School, 712 S. 23d st. Registration will also be held at several schools yet to be announced on Saturdays, September 11 and 18.

Fairfax County: Centers will be located at Herndon, Vienna, McLean, Falls Church, Bailey's Cross Roads, Lorton, Groveton, Annandale, Centreville, Franconia, Burke, Fairfax and Fairfax Station.

In Alexandria, men will register at Maury, Jefferson, Mount Vernon, George Mason, Lee and Parker-Gray schools. Other centers are the Draft Board office, Room 309, Postoffice Building, and, on Saturdays only, the Cameron st. Recreation Center and the Pendleton st. Recreation Center.

New York Lawyer Leaps to His Death

New York, Aug. 30 (U.P.)—Roswell P. C. May, 51, prominent socialite lawyer, leaped to his death early today from his office on the thirtieth floor of the Equitable Life Building, police reported.

Mrs. May told police her husband had been in poor health and had just recovered from pneumonia.

One on the Aisle—

C. U. Carries on Living Theater

By Richard L. Coe

A DREAMY, CREAMY statuette of Ava Gardner as Venus is the choicest thing this department finds on its desk after three weeks of blessed ease.

To be perfectly frank, I'd hoped for something more than this diverting sample of the forthcoming film, "One Touch of Venus." It's a lovely miniature of the beauteous Ava and I'm grateful, heaven knows, for its neat lines, however inanimate.

But I'd been hoping for a miracle. I'd hoped that somehow three weeks would have found a considerate Fate taking an interest in our dramaless future. I'd hoped that somewhere along the line someone would have come along with a solution to the insane situation whereby the Capital of a great Nation might have the pleasure of living theater within, say, a few months.

Not that I really expected it; nothing makes much sense these days, so why expect it in anything? Still, a man can hope, can't he?

Well, as you poor heat-drenched citizens and newspaper readers know as well as I, nothing has happened along the drama front. The usual chatter and bleating, to be sure, but nothing concrete.

So, somehow, Catholic University's announcement for next season's plans assume even greater interest than usual. This is to be the Tenth Anniversary Season for Father Hartke's drama group and these stage performances, except for a few vagrant visitors, probably will be the year's stage crop.

Another From Langton

First of the plays will be "King Lear," directed by Basil Langton, whose staging of "Heartbreak House" this summer was a real treat. The Shakespearean drama opens a two-week run on October 15, after which the English actor-director will be off for a Broadway assignment.

In December, C. U. will give us "The Birds," with Walter Kerr directing the Aristophanes comedy. In February there will be a new, modern farce by Leo Brady, "Grandstand Play." In March there'll be a revival of Sir James M. Barrie's "Peter Pan" and the season will close in May with a musical comedy in the department's accepted "tradition."

This year's plays will open their two-week runs on Friday nights and new subscriptions will be opened after September 15. Until then, old subscribers may put in for their same seats.

It looks promising at C. U., at least. While last season's experiment with manuscript plays could hardly be called a success (a single Broadway manager could hardly expect to come up with seven good ones in a single season), it was a good, understandable try.

Also to my ken comes the existence of something called "Stagecrafters Club, Inc.," about which all I know is what I read in a handout, although over the phone Acting Secretary Virginia R. Howard is a trifle more specific.

Stagecrafters, it appears, is a private club—"Washington's Most Distinguished," the letterhead states, though where this places the Cosmos, Metropolitan and the Gridiron isn't clear. Miss Howard states that the members will have their own theater seating about 250 and that the first production will be a New York cast in "The Drunkard." If Los Angeles can keep P. T. Barnum's old hit going 15 years (it's still running at the Theater Mart), I suppose we can make room for "The Drunkard" here, but it's hardly the only play you'd find in Moscow.

Olney's Final Opening

And while were on THAT, what do you suppose ever happened to that list of movies containing Communist propaganda that Representative Thomas was going to make public a year or so ago?

So, since the untiring George Frain still seems to be searching for a home for Virginia's Barter Theater here, I guess apart from C. U., the Stagecrafter's obscure plans and other near-professionals, tonight's opening at Olney is the last we'll have for a while.

The Olney's final play of its most successful summer is George Farquhar's "The Beaux' Stratagem," with the elegant Brian Aherne as its star. It was that Restoration comedy, by the way, which gave the language two types who've lasted—Boniface, the innkeeper, and Lady Bountiful.

But more on Aherne and his saucy comedy after tonight's Olney opening.

WARNER BROS. ENTERTAINMENT WONDER IN COLOR

Times Head Sees Truth Vital in News

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP).—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of the New York Times, said today "I think a newspaper should place more and more emphasis on information and less on entertainment."

He added that he thinks "there are sound business reasons for such a policy."

Supplying of truthful, accurate information is a primary responsibility of a press which must control itself from within, Sulzberger told the New York State Publishers Association.

"The news lies, in a sense, in the public domain and we are the trustees of a great national interest," he said.

"Obviously, a man's judgment cannot be better than the information on which he has based it.

Truth in News Vital

"Give him the truth and he may still go wrong when he has the chance to be right, but give him no news or present him only with distorted and incomplete data, with ignorant, sloppy or biased reporting, with propaganda and deliberate falsehoods, and you destroy his whole reasoning processes, and make him something less than a man."

It is good business to emphasize information rather than entertainment, because the latter can be presented better by such media as radio and the new television industry, the Times publisher declared.

He added that "television and radio can never replace the newspaper which devotes itself to the comprehensive publication of news."

Sulzberger said private ownership of the press is its great strength because it could not be free otherwise.

Responsibility Stressed

But "control must come from within," he maintained. "Which means that on the structure of press freedom must be imposed the responsibility of the press.

"The community has the right—and indeed the duty—to insist upon such responsibility," he said.

Amplifying his theme of "control from within," Sulzberger pointed out that medical groups and the legal profession in many countries have set up disciplinary bodies to see that standards are maintained among doctors and lawyers.

He suggested it is time for something similar in journalism.

Charge Animosity

Jury Badly Split in Jap Treason Case

Los Angeles, Aug. 30 (AP).—The foreman of a Federal court jury trying Tomoya Kawakita on treason charges reported to the court today that there not only was no chance of verdict, but that personal animosity among the talesmen had reached a point where "it could possibly be dangerous."

Foreman William W. Andrews told United States District Judge William C. Mathes that:

"There is a juror here who we feel is impeding justice, and interfering with the course of the trial and we want to know what to do."

Andrews told the court it is utterly impossible for the jury to reach a verdict.

Judge Mathes, however, denied motions by Defense Attorney Morris Lavine to dismiss the jury and ordered it to retire for further deliberations. The trial occupied nearly 11 weeks, with witnesses brought from all over the United States and several from Japan.

During Andrews' statement to the court, another juror, Marie Ziegler, asked the judge if it would be proper to elect a new foreman.

"I would like to say that the lady nominated me," Andrews interposed.

"Yes, I did, but—"; here Judge Mathes cut her off.

"Personalities will not enter here," said Judge Mathes.

Another juror, Charles J. Clancy, told Judge Mathes "There is no chance in the world for this jury to agree."

Mrs. Ziegler said "I do not feel like going on."

Navy Shifts Six Admirals In Atlantic

The Navy is shifting six of its admirals around.

Rear Admiral Jerauld Wright, director of the fleet operational readiness section in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations, will commanded the Atlantic Fleet's amphibious forces. His home address is Washington, D. C.

Rear Admiral Ralph O. Davis, who has been commanding the amphibious forces, will be the new commandant of the Fifth Naval District and commander of the naval base at Norfolk, Va. His home is Baltimore, Md.

Rear Admiral Walden L. Ainsworth, who commands the Fifth Naval Oistrict since 1945, will be retired. His home is Wonalancet, N. H.

Rear Admiral Robert P. Briscoe, who has served as commander of the operational development force, Atlantic Fleet, since October, 1945, will take over from Admiral Wright as director of the fleet operational readiness section. His address is Liberty, Miss.

Rear Admiral Maurice E. Curts, who has been chief of the general planning group in the Office of Chief of Naval Operations, will relieve Admiral Briscoe, a successor to Admiral Curts, whose address is Flint, Mich., has not been named.

Rear Admiral Heber H. McLean, commander of cruiser division two, Atlantic Fleet, since January, has been ordered to report to the Chief of Naval Operations in Washington for duty. His address is Llano, Tex. His successor has not been designated.

Drought Blasts Iowa's Record Corn Outlook

Des Moines, Aug. 30 (AP).—Recent drought and hot winds probably have wiped out prospects for an all-time record Iowa corn production, a Government crop expert said today.

"There has been damage, but we don't know yet the extent of it," said Leslie M. Carl, director of the Iowa crop and livestock reporting service.

"We are pretty sure the (record) prospects on August 1 are not going to hold out," he added.

Carl said recent rains "can't help the corn that has been damaged seriously." But the rain will help mature corn that had not been damaged seriously.

The August 1 outlook was for a yield of 646,140,000 bushels, the biggest in history. A per-acre yield of 60 bushels was forecast. The present total yield record is 634,638,000 bushels, harvested in 1946.

"We had some high temperatures for 10 to 15 days this month," Carl said. "We had some pretty hot winds a few of those days.

"This was all rather disastrous to a lot of the corn.

"Some of our farmers began making silage 10 days ago. That's 2 to 2½ weeks earlier than usual. The farmers began making silage because the corn was drying out. They had to to save it.

"There has been some loss, particularly in the late planted corn and corn on sandy soil or where the top soil has been washed off. Quite a lot of that corn is gone. It is fired and burned pretty badly."

Holland Hails Queen on Eve of Abdication

ROYAL FETE—Decorative lights glow in Dam Square, Amsterdam as the city starts a week-long celebration of the golden jubilee of Queen Wilhelmina Juliana's succession

Amsterdam, Aug. 30 (U.P.)—Queen Wilhelmina, tears streaming down her wrinkled cheeks, returned to her palace here today where she will celebrate her sixty-eighth birthday Tuesday and abdicate on Saturday after 50 years' rule over the Dutch empire.

More than 500,000 Hollanders lined the streets and jammed Dam Square in front of the palace to greet Wilhelmina upon her return from an extended vacation at her castle in eastern Holland.

Tens of thousands more gathered along the railway route from The Hague to Amsterdam for a glimpse of the Queen. The four-coach royal train rolled slowly so Wilhelmina could wave to the cheering throngs.

From Amstel Station to the palace, about three miles, she rode along flower-strewn streets in an open car.

Later, Wilhelmina, with Princess Juliana, Prince Bernhardt and their four children, appeared on a first-floor balcony in response to the cheers of more than 100,000 persons.

Juliana, 39, will become the empire's second Queen on September 6, two days after her mother's abdication. She will be "inaugurated"—there is no coronation in traditionally Calvinistic Holland—at the "new" church in Amsterdam, founded in 1408.

This will be the Netherlands' fifth inauguration since March 30, 1814, when Wiilliam I becae King. Earlier princes of the House of Orange ruled the country, but not as monarchs.

Navy Plans Big Jet Bomber

Military aircraft manufacturers, it was learned yesterday, have been invited by the Navy to submit competittee designs and bids for a 100,000-pound jet-propelled atomic bomber to be used on the 65,000-ton super-aircraft carrier being built at Norfolk.

The new aircraft would be the largest ever contemplated for shipboard operation.

The Navy also prescribes the plane shall be capable of carrying the atom bomb 1700 miles and have sufficient fuel remaining to return safely to the carrier.

Specifications call for launching the plane by a heretofore unused combination of its own power, catapult and jato (je assisted take-off) rockets slung on racks beneath its wings.

The Navy also is seeking competitive designs for a revolutionary jet-propelled 30,000-pound flying boat fighter. Its idea is to triple the size of this and produce a "flying destroyer" with a terrific gunpower if the small prototype confirms present theories about the high speed available from this type craft.

'Mad Dog' Killer Sane

Mansfield, Ohio, Aug. 30 (U.P.)—Two Ohio psychiatrists ruled today that Robert Murl Daniels, 24-year-old "mad dog" killer, was not insane when he killed the superintendent of the Mansfield Reformatory farm and two members of his family.

Bishop Oxnam Named Head Of World Council of Churches

Amsterdam, Aug. 30 (U.P.)—Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York was elected one of six presidents today by the Assembly of the World Council of Churches.

The assembly also named a 90-man central committee, three times the size of the provisional committee which ran the council for 10 years.

Dr. John R. Mott, veteran layman who played a major hole in creating the World Council, was elected honorary president.

The assembly split into four sections today to discuss first drafts of resolutions to be presented later to the entire body of 1500 delegates.

Dr. Reinhold Neibuhr of Union Theological Seminary, New York, told the assembly tonight that one of the causes of communism was the "deep involvement of Christianity in the social sins of our day, in the stubborness of social injustices."

Home Group to Meet

The Arlington Home Protective Association will meet Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. at 1307 N. Cleveland st. to decide whether it should indorse a candidate for this fall's Arlington County board election.

"Pepco helped me plan my Electric Kitchen FREE!"

"Of course you can get the same help I did! Now that you're ready to really plan your own Electric Kitchen, just call NAtional 8800 and ask for Home Service Bureau. Tell them you'd like a kitchen-planning expert to call. Yes, she'll come to your house. You can talk over all your ideas with her and she will show you how to have wonderful work-centers, how to save space, steps and time! Then she will draw up a plan of your kitchen-to-be and send you a first class guide —a photograph of that plan.

"Now you can go ahead and start your Electric Kitchen! You can take it in easy stages, or put in every bit of equipment at once. And while you're calling NAtional 8800, why don't you ask for a copy of that very helpful 28-page book 'Now You Can Plan Your All-Electric Kitchen'. It's free, too!"

Providing you with Electric Service is a very human job accomplished by our 2500 skilled men and women.

POTOMAC ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY • 10TH AND E STREETS, N. W.

Higher Rates To Aid Pepco Rest of Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of Potomac Electric Power Co. are hopeful that August will witness the turning point in the downward trend of earnings.

Increased electric rates, it is pointed out, were effective on meter readings July 21 and thereafter. The new rates, authorized by the Public Utilities Commission, are expected to raise revenues by $2,750,000 annually.

The increase is aimed at giving Pepco a return of 5½ per cent on its investment.

Over the weekend, Pepco reported that operating revenues increased 15.74 per cent in the first seven months but net income slumped 20.28 per cent in the same period due to a 24 per cent upsurge in operating expenses. Main factor in the costs upturn was the rising price of coal.

Operating revenues for the first seven months totaled $17,668,718 a gain of $2,402,190 over the same 1947 period. Operating costs totaled $11,275,050, an increase of $2,180,825. Including income taxes, depreciation and interest charges, total operating expenses and deductions amounted to $16,173,692, up $2,782,357. Net income of $1,495,026 was $380,167 less than in the same period last year.

Although gross revenues of Pepco in the past eight years have shown steady increases to new all-time records, net income has failed to keep pace as the following figures show:

Year ended December 31.	Gross revenues.	Net income.
1947	$26,896,487	$3,277,628
1946	24,361,468	3,289,628
1945	23,115,000	4,074,000
1944	22,629,000	3,634,000
1943	22,631,000	4,181,000
1942	20,763,000	3,911,000
1941	18,456,000	3,939,000
1940	16,649,000	3,954,000

With the increased rates in effect, the remaining five months of 1948 are expected to bolster Pepco's net income.

Dividends on Pepco common stock have been paid so far this year at the annual rate of 90 cents a common share.

Under the modified sliding scale plan now in effect, Pepco is entitled to earn a minimum of about $1.10 to $1.15 a share. On this basis, the current dividend would be just under 80 per cent of earnings. In some quarters, it is felt that "it would appear justifiable for the company to pay as much as 90 per cent of earnings in dividends which would permit a small extra dividend in good years."

DEATH MOURNED: William Wallace Lanahan, 64, Baltimore investment banker and president of the board of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, died early yesterday in Providence, R. I., where he was a summer resident. Mr. Lanahan has a partner in Alex Brown & Sons, which has a Washington branch; a director of Midcontinent Petroleum Corp., a member of the New York Stock Exchange and a member of a number of Baltimore financial institutions. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

VITAL PROFITS: The current level of oil profits is "vitally necessary to enable the oil industry to omeet the demands being made upon it." says Robert G. Dunlop, president of the Sun Oil Co. in an article in his company's publication "Our Sun," Dunlop said the present profits level also is necessary "to assure the consuming public and the armed services adequate supplies of petroleum products at reasonable prices in the years ahead." Dunlop said this country's record demand for oil products are being met because the industry's profits are sufficient to bear the needed four billion dollars expansion program. Increased taxation of corporation profits, the oil executive said, would result in a "continued tight supply-demand situation."

SPEAKERS: The Washington Chapter, National Association of Accountants, has completed its speaker list for the coming year. Among the acceptances are: Attorney General Tom Clark; W. A. Dolph, International Business Machines; Leland Howard, assistant director of the United States Mint, and James F. Welsh and Edward T. Ellis, McCormick & Co., Inc.

EARNINGS: Pennsylvania Railroad reported net income of $3,747,353 for the first seven months this year, compared with a deficit of $8,090,278 for the same period last year. Other earnings statements:

Europe Gets $25,800,000 In Tobacco

Tobacco valued at $25,800,000 has been scheduled for Europe under the European Recovery Program, Economic Cooperation Administration officials told tobacco leaders here yesterday.

They said authorizations for shipments through August 10 included: United Kingdom $16,000,000; Denmark $4,200,000; Norway $3,800,000; France $800,000; Austria $600,000; Netherlands $400,000.

They did not know how much has been shipped, however, they said.

Approximately 35 tobacco leaders worked here yesterday with Government tobacco men on "preliminary plans" for export schedules for the 1948-1949 crop.

Growers' Advice Sought

They estimated the flue-cured crop will total about 1,500,000,000 pounds and burley about 494,000,000 but did not reveal how much is expected from other varieties nor what surplus from American markets will be considered for shipments under the ECA.

James E. Thigpen, director of the United States Department of Agriculture tobacco branch, said the Secretary of Agriculture will make export recommendations to ECA with the advice of the growers, warehousemen and other tobacco men.

The ECA yesterday approved an outlay of $8,100,000 for the Greek reconstruction and rehabilitation program, including major canal-highway, port and railroad projects.

The authorization was part of a list of foreign aid authorizations totaling $35,186,472 for nine European countries—one of the largest daily listings since the start of the Marshall Plan.

The Greek authorizations will provide funds, an ECA spokesman said, for work by United States Army engineers reopening the Corinth Canal, destroyed by the Germans. It also will cover construction on the ports of Piraeus, Salonika and Volos; completion of an 1800-kilometer highway, and completion of work on the main railway from Athens to Salonika.

Other approvals included:

Bi-Zone Germany—$8,091,000 for copra and for payment of ocean freight on previously approved shipments.

Italy—$8,123,000 for payment of ocean freight.

Holland Gets $4.4 Millions

The Netherlands—$4,474,623 for mining equipment, lumber, copra cake, soil cultivating equipment, dairy and poultry equipment, coal, wheat flour, harvesting machinery, and crop sprayers and dusters.

France—$2,514,882, for machinery parts, copra, wire products, ships parts, aircraft and sulfur.

Denmark—$4,183,300, for coal, trucks, X-ray film, copra, cotton seed cake or meal, and palm kernels.

Norway—$532,267 for structural steel.

Austria—$467,900, for palm kernels and copper wire.

Trieste—$67,500, for lard.

The action brought the total of authorized foreign aid to date to $1,302,958,548.

New Haven Railroad Elects New Head Today

Boston, Aug. 30 (AP).—Directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad meet here tomorrow to elect a new president.

Laurence F. Whittemore, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, has been prominently mentioned for the job.

Whittemore has declined comment, however, until the directors act.

Frederic C. Dumaine, wealthy industrialist, has been acting president since he gained control of the railroad two weeks ago.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 30 (AP).—Grains started off a new week by moving into higher territory today. Corn rising for gains extending to 3 cents, while the yellow cereal had largest advances, all oother grains also acted firm.

Some of the corn strength came from an advance in cash prices. Light arrivals of cash grai nhelped. The wide premiums being paid for cash grain over the September future made it seem unlikely that much grain would be delivered on that future, traders said.

A Washington report that the Government was contemplating exporting 200 million bushels of corn from this year's crop was an influence in buying of new-crop deliveries. However, some exports have been expected and 200 million bushels is not a great deal out of a 3,500,000,000 crop.

Wheat closed ⅛ to 2¼ higher, September 2.24½; corn was 2½ to 3 cents higher, September 1.63½@1.63⅝; oats were ⅝ to 1⅛ higher, September 72; rye was 1¼ higher, December 1.60, and soybeans were 1¼ to 2 cents higher, November 2.44¼@2.45.

Cash houses again gave the wheat market good support. This indicated further large-scale buying of wheat by the Commodity Credit Corporation. The local office announced it bought 2,443,000 bushels Friday, continuing its stepped-up buying program.

Level of Radio Taste Defended

Radio stations are raising the listening taste of the Nation by scheduling good programs following mass appeal give-away shows, Dr. Lyman Bryson, counsellor on public affairs for the Columbia Broadcasting system, said yesterday.

He was principal speaker at the opening session of the fourth annual radio workshop sponsored by the District public schools, radio station WTOP and the Columbia Broadcasting system. Two hundred and fifteen persons primarily teachers, registered for the 11-day workshop at Wilson Teachers College, 11th and Harvard sts. nw.

In defending radio, Bryson declared that the level of taste shown in radio programs is above that of many magazines and newspapers. By mixing mass appeal shows with those featuring good music, drama and discussions, stations are able to do missionary work, he declared. If all programs were pitched on a high intellectual plane, a number of persons never would turn on their radios, he said.

Daily classes will be held during the workshop in radio production, use of radio ni the classroom, aand script writing. Visiting lectures will discuss educational uses of radio and television.

Officials End Dispute Over Court Phones

Now when officials want to argue about telephone service at Municipal Court, they will have plenty of facilities to argue it all out—by phone.

They worked out an agreement yesterday in a face-to-face conference, so that the Corporation Counsel's branch office in Municipal Court will have the same phone service it always did. But the phones will work differently. That is, outgoing calls will be directed, via tie-lines, from Municipal Court, in the District Building exchange, and out from there.

Thus, these calls will be charged to the District government now, not to the Municipal Court—which objected to the expenditure and launched the dispute last week.

The agreement to leave eight phones in the Corporation Counsel's office at Municipal Court was reached at a conference attended by these officials: Deputy District Budget Officer William G. Wilding; Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King in charge of the office at Municipal Court, Mrs. Anne Callahan, Municipal Court budget officer; and Walter Bramhall, chief clerk of Municipal Court.

Last Saturday, the dispute drove King into running his office from a phone booth. On other days of the week of the argument, his office had three phones.

HAVE A CARE, NOW, how you question the baseball wisdom of a baseball writer. He may be the recently inducted member of our fraternity who used to play the outfield better than Joe DiMaggio, outhit Ty Cobb for the batting championship, and managed a pennant-winning team at his first try, before going on ot win a World Series.

POVICH

Tris Speaker is now the accredited baseball correspondent of the Cleveland Press, on tour with the Indians in these critical days of the pennant race when baseball is a best-seller in the Cleveland gazettes. From the press boxes, he does a daily piece for consumption by the city's omnivorous fans.

He got out of baseball 20 years ago, he reminded me. "In baseball, when a center fielder slows up they move him into right. If he's an infielder who slows up, they move him over to third base. After 20 years, I've slowed up so much they've moved me into the press box and told me I'm a baseball writer," he smiled.

Speaker is looking calmly at the present three-team race among the Indians, Red Sox and Yankees. It is no editorial "we" he uses. He's frankly rooting for Cleveland, a reporter with an admitted prejudice, and when he says he thinks "We'll get home in front," he means the Indians.

"WE PLAYED SIX GAMES in a row against the Red Sox and Yankees," said Speaker, "and one thing I'll have to admit. None of the clubs, including the Indians, looked as if they were a pennant-winning team. There isn't a solid club among 'em but luckily for us we don't have to beat much."

"The Indians' only worry right now is pitching," he says. "I have been writing that our relief pitching has bogged down, and it has, but we wouldn't need relief pitching if our starters could do a good job, so it isn't all the fault of the relievers. It's the weakness of the pitching, period."

It was different back in 1920 when Speaker took his Cleveland club to the pennant before beating Brooklyn in the World Series. "I didn't have any relief pitching worries, even in a tight race. In fact, there were no relief pitching specialists in those days. When we needed a second pitcher, we had regulars who could go in there and give you a job.

"Go back to 1920 and look what I had. Jim Bagby who won 31 games for us. Stanley Coveleskie who won 28. Ray Caldwell, a guy we claimed from Boston, won 20. Toward the finish, Duster Mails came up from Sacramento and won seven in a row for us."

THE INDIANS' pitching situation would be squared away more than nicely if Bob Feller could untrack himself and start winning, said Speaker. "Then we'd have Satchel Paige to go in there four times a week relieving, if we need him. But we've been forced to start Paige. He's done well enough, but he'd be a sensation as a relief man. Lou Boudreau wouldn't have any relief-pitching worries."

Feller is still a good pitcher but not the same blow-em-down guy he used to be, says Speaker. "He's lost some of that stuff on his fast one. So does everybody else who pitches for 10 years in the majors. He never was a control pitcher but the hitters can wait him out now, and that's what they're doing. They've been picking out the ball they want to hit. They couldn't do that with Feller before."

He likes the Indians because they have Lou Boudreau and no quit in them. "We didn't fold up after Boston knocked us off three straight in Cleveland, and out of the lead. We came back to win six in a row, I believe. After the recent series in Boston when they beat us, Bob Lemon came back to shut 'em out. He did it against a team which hadn't been licked by a starting pitcher in 31 games before that."

BOUDREAU, though, is Speaker's special pride. "A self-made ball player who is the greatest in the game today," was his tribute to the Indians' playing manager. "He does things like he did against the Yankees earlier this month when he was out of the game with a sore shoulder. We needed two runs in the ninth to tie the Yankees. Boudreau didn't have to go in to pinch hit but he told the bench. "This is the spot where a manager ought to be, and went in there and knocked both runs home."

Speaker talked of Babe Ruth, too. "Baseball owes him a lot. I am personally in his debt. One of his home runs made me manager of the Cleveland Club.

"It was early August in 1919. Lee Fohl was managing the Indians. We had the Yankees licked by three runs in the ninth. With the bases full, Fritz Coumbe threw Babe a curve ball and Ruth hit it nine miles over the right field wall to win the game. Lee Fohl walked into Jim Dunn's office in his disgust and resigned as manager. I got the job that night, thanks to Ruth."

Redhot Bums Whip Cards, 6-5 and 6-1, Lead by 1½

St. Louis, Aug. 30 (AP).—The league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers ran their winning streak to seven games today, cleaning up the St. Louis Cardinals in both ends of a double-header, 6-5 and 6-1, before 33,508.

A four-run ninth-inning rally, climaxed by George Shuba's single, enabled the Brooks to come from behind and win the opener while Lefty Joe Hatten breezed to his eleventh victory in the nightcap, yielding only five hits.

The double triumph boosted the Brooks' lead over the runer-up Boston Braves to a game and a half.

In the opener, little Murray Dickson had the Dodgers tamed, 5-2, going into the ninth when he blew up. Gene Hermanski opened the frame with a single and raced to third on Duke Snider's double. Pete Reiser then came through with a pinch-hit double and Ted Wilks relieved Dickson.

Arky Vaughan greeted Wilks with a single, sending Pinch-Runner Brown to third. Vaughan hustled to second on the throw in. Wilks then intentionally walked Pinch-Hitter Bruce Edwards to load the bases. Marv Rackley, the fourth straight pinch-hitter used by Brooklyn, flied out, Brown scoring the tying run after the catch. Shuba followed with a single to plate Vaughan with the winning run.

With the exception of the second inning when the Cards scored their lone run, Hatten was in complete charge in the nightcap.

Rain Halts Park Tennis With No. 2 Star Near Defeat

The first big upset of the Public Parks tournament was in the making yesterday when rain and darkness stepped in at Rock Creek courts. Second-seeded Ed. Kientz was down one set, 3—6, and trailing 2—3 in the second set to L. Middlecamp when their match was halted.

Top-seeded Frank Dunham continued his winning ways with a 6—4, 6—0 victory over E. McCullough.

Yesterday's results:

Singles—F. Dunham defeated E. McCullough, 6—4, 6—0; H. Ritzenberg defeated R. Burgess, 6—3, 6—0; Lieut. F. Beasley led J. McCarthy, 6—2, 3—6, 4—3; L. Middlecamp led E. Kientz, 6—3, 3—2. (Last two matches halted by rain and darkness.)

Today's pairings: Singles—4 p. m., W. Kemetick vs. H. Ritzenberg; 5:30 p. m., L. Middlecamp vs. E. Kientz.

Doubles—5:30 p. m., J. McCarthy-F. Swinford vs. H. Joram-D. Holsman; R. Burgess-S. McCandlish vs. E. Christianson-K. Dentel; J. Crowell-B. Lee vs. W. Kemetick-S. Haney. 6:30 p. m., L. Middlecamp-E. McCullough vs. S. Hinch-O. Fisher; H. Trigg-O. Steinhauser vs. E. Kientz-D. Nelson.

Old Satch Shuffles Off To Ovation By 28,058

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Ole Satchmo Paige lured 28,058 customers to Griffith Stadium last night and then proceeded to bedazzle them while befuddling the Nats in pitching Cleveland to a 10-1 victory.

Over 5000 fans were turned away, but those who were privileged to watch the spectacle saw the ageless, legendary righthander treat the youthful Griffs like so many school boys.

He shut 'em out for seven innings, finally permitted them to bunch three of their seven hits for a run in the eighth. An inning later, with his sixth triumph in the bag, he slow-gaited it off the field with a thundering ovation booming in his ears.

Paige, king of the barnstormers until Cleveland Prexy Bill Veeck gave him his chance in the majors three months ago, was all business for three innings, but as soon as his pennant-mad Indians rolled into a 5-0 lead, the old-timer began to strut his stuff.

The throng got a tremendous bang when he tried to leg out a hit to short in the fourth inning. He appeared to be running on his ankles as his long and creaky legs projected him to first, three steps too late.

In the fifth inning he made the house jump with joy as he whacked out a clean single to center, one of 13 Indian hits.

And Satch, who's pitched a thousand ball games on as many different diamonds, loved every moment of it. His control was almost perfect. He walked only one man and was seldom behind on a batter. His mixture of a jumpy fast ball and a good curve had the Nats hitting over and under the ball, but seldom hitting it squarely.

Coan Bats in Lone Run

He struck out five and had a three-hit shutout going for him as late as the eighth inning, when Gil Coan, whom he had already fanned twice, singled to deprive him of a shoutout, which would have been his third.

Coan's little single was just a ripple in the pond compared to the rumbling of the Indian bats. Six of their 13 hits off Ray Scarborough, Mickey Haefner and Dick Welteroth were for extra bases.

Joe Gordon led the barrage with a single, double and triple, driving in two runs and scoring one himself; Eddie Robinson drove in two with a double and Catcher Jim Hegan stroked in another couple with a tremendous triple to left which came within inches of being a home run.

The losing pitcher was Scarborough, who was tagged with his eighth defeat although he pitched only one third of an inning. After disposing of Leadoffman Dale Mitchell and pitching a double to Walt Judnich to launch the Tribe on a three-run first inning, Scarborough came out with a pulled leg muscle when he had three balls and two strikes on Manager Lou Boudreau.

A Blooper That Bloops

Fearing Paige would tire, Boudreau had lanky Russ Christopher warming up in the bull pen in the eighth. And when Coan got the third single of the inning to knock

JAW TO JAW—In the heat of the tight American League pennant race, Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians fight for every point. Above he argues with Umpire Bill Summers over a decision in the second inning of last night's game with the Nats at Griffith Stadium. Summers called a balk on Satch Paige, allowing Vernon, who had singled, to move to second. Lou also chased The Washington Post's cameraman who tried to take a candid of Paige in the dugout. Cleveland won easily, 10-1, on Satch's 7-hit pitching

Brownell Wins First Match, 5-3

Memphis, Aug. 30 (AP).—Bobby Brownell, District of Columbia champion, won his opening match in the national amateur championship tournament today by defeating Ronald Williams, Detroit, 5 and 3.

Brownell played flawlessly on the first nine with a one-under-par 34 for a 1-up lead. He sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the ninth for his margin. He continued his steady shooting to sideline his Michigan opponent who scored a brilliant 63 in a practice round.

Brownell matched the best performance of the 13-hour session today by shooting 2-under-par golf for the 15 holes he played.

Brownell will play Richard Mayer, Mamaroneck, N. Y., in Tuesday's second round.

Roland Mackenzie, of Washington's Columbia Country Club and Baltimore, was off his game and lost to Richard Smart, Pine Bluff, Ark., 2 down.

Mackenzie, lacking practice due to a recent death in his family, was out in 36, one over par. He held a 2-up lead going to the ninth but lost that hole and turned 1 up.

Mackenzie then grew wild and lost the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth to go 2 down. He picked up a hole through the sixteenth, they halved the seventeenth in par 4s and Mackenzie dissipated his

Dubofsky Bellows and You Know Hoyas Have Started

Thus boomed out the voice of Mush Dubofsky yesterday afternoon and the countryside around Hoya Field knew that another Georgetown football season had begun.

Jimmy O'Keefe, a 265-pound tackle from Gonzaga, and some 49 other aspirants turned out to start trimming down their summer-bloated waistlines in preparation for the opening game only three and one-half weeks away.

Everyone who is anybody in Coach Jack Hagerty's plans for the coming season was present except Tommy Graham, a back, and Lou Sirman, Hagerty's best punter.

Even they were accounted for. Both are on the way from their home towns and should be here for tomorrow's activities.

Absent entirely was any sign of the T-formation. Hagerty doesn't have a "T" quarterback and will concentrate on the single-wing.

In addition to his veteran tailback of last year, Babe Baranowski, Hagerty yesterday welcomed Billy Conn, a sophomore whiz from Newark, N. J., who sparked last year's fine freshman team.

The sophomores generally will weigh heavily this year despite the 25 returning lettermen present yesterday. Besides Conn, Dick Barba, another New Jersey lad, is expected to see a good deal of action in the first-string backfield.

The varsity line will reportedly average 220 pounds, but the boys who turned out yesterday will have to do some reducing to make the weight.

And the schedule from today until the opener at Holy Cross on September 25 will probably do just that. Two sessions every day, 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., and 6 to 8 p. m., are planned.

Chisox 5-Run Rally in 9th Upsets Macks Again, 9 to 6

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox came from behind in the ninth inning with a five-run rally after two were out to defeat the the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 6, before a crowd of 6380. It was the A's second straight defeat at the hands of the White Sox in their current series.

Singles by Tony Lupien, Luke Appling, Taft Wright, pinch-hitter Ralph Weigel and Dave Philley's double comprised the last-round Chicago uprising against the A's starting Pitcher Joe Coleman and relief hurler Lou Brissie that pulled the game out of the fire for Chicago.

Pace Sets Fast Pace for Press

Frank Pace, Assistant Budget Bureau Director, set a new course record yesterday at Prince Georges. Pace toured the back nine in 37 minutes, encouraged not a little by a driving rain. He also kept his strokes down to a respectable minimum, 39-41—80, enough to win his second consecutive National Press Club championship.

Tied for the runnerup position were Maury Long and Maurice Fillius with 81s. Richard Cull shared low net, 97-25—72, with Howard Acton, 136-64—72, and Paul McGee, 136-64—72.

A's Sign Former Nat

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP).—Walt Holborow, former pitcher for the Washington Nationals, was signed today by the Philadelphia Athletics as a relief pitcher. He pitched in 15 games for the Nats in 1945, winning 1 and losing 1.

Shea Hurls One-Hitter, Yanks Win, 3-0

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—The runner-up New York Yankees sliced the American League lead of the idle Boston Red Sox to a game over the Detroit Tigers. The Yanks scored all of their runs in the first inning off Hal Newhouser, Joe DiMaggio singling in one run and Yogie Berra the other two. Newhouser singled for the lone Tiger hit.

The only other Tiger to get on base against Shea was Hoot Evers who walked in the second. Neither Newhouser or Evers got past first.

For Shea, who has been a disappointment so far this season, it was the best game he has pitched in the majors. The victory was his seventh and fourth via the shutout route. He has lost ten. The loss was Newhouser's eleventh as against 15 victories.

Gibson, Mann Low With 64

Andy Gibson and Rip Mann of the Country Club of Maryland, shot a 6-under-par 64 today to win the Middle Atlantic amateur-pro golf tournament yesterday.

Gibson scored a 69 over the 70-par Kenwood course to get the prize in the professional sweepstakes. Roger Peacock, Sligo Park professional, with 35-35—70, was second to Gibson in the pro division.

Second to the Gibson-Mann combination in the amateur-pro division was Harold Oatman, Norfolk, Va., pro, and Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase, with 31-34—65.

Bogart had a 33 going out and took a 37 coming in to get the main award among the amateurs. Bogart used a two-stroke handicap to take the low net prize with a 68. The low gross was scored by Spencer Overton, Rolling Road, and Billy Griffin, Prince Georges, both of whom had 71.

Three teams—Al and Billy Houghton, Prince Georges; Gene Larkin and J. A. Murphy, Woodmount, and George Diffenbaugh and John Miller, of Kenwood, finished in a tie at 66 for the third place team award.

Third money among the pros was divided between Houghton and Walter Romans, Baltimore Country Club, with 71.

Pirates Beat Braves Again

Pittsburgh, Aug. 31 (AP).—A pair of former Brooklyn Dodgers kept Pittsburgh in the thick of the pennant fight tonight as the sizzling Pirates took their third straight from Boston's Braves, 2 to 1.

Dixie Walker provided all the batting punch with a two-run homer in the first while aging Fritz Ostermueller scattered nine hits.

The win put the Pirates in third place by two percentage points over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hickman Rolls Into Yale and Show's On

Old Blues Rush Out To Shake His Paw

By Lou Black

New Haven, Aug. 30 (AP).—Back from the "salubrious foothills of the Alleghenies by wagon train"—the quotes are his—Jolly Herman (Five-by-Five) Hickman today opened Yale's football training grind in his own peculiar way.

He held a 6 a. m. (EST) meeting of his coaching staff—"It cuts down on outside interference"—That's how it's going to be daily from now until after the Blue's gridiron campaign ends November 20, says the 300-pound Hickman.

If there were any squawks about the dawn session among Herman's aides, it wasn't evident this morning, at least. In fact, Hickman had his colleagues roaring, they said, with the newest crop of his inimitable stories.

Word spread around fast today that Herman in a run, it appeared for a moment that old Satch would leave.

But Paige bore down, forced Zozar to roll into a double play and all was well with the throng.

Paige had one more thrill to give the crowd and he saved it for the ninth inning. After whipping over a curve ball for a strike on Ed Stewart, he came in with a blooper pitch which seemed to take an hour to reach the plate. Stewart swung at it lustily, but with no success whatsoever.

The swish from Stewart's try evoked a tremendous howl from the spectators who knew then and there that Old Satch "really had it," as Manager Boudreau said of him several weeks ago.

265,000 Fans See Satch in 5 Starts

Over 265,000 persons have watched Satchel Paige in his five starts for Cleveland this year.

Paige made his first start against the Nats last month in Cleveland and 73,000 watched him win that one. He drew 51,000 against the White Sox in Comisky Park in start No. 2; 78,000 in Cleveland against the White Sox one week later; 34,000 saw him pitch against the Red Sox in Boston and his appearance against the Nats last night attracted most of the throng of 28,058.

Mrs. Meckley Wins Match

Defending Champion Mrs. Betty Meckley yesterday defeated Mrs. Rex Howard, 4 and 2, in the first round of match play for the Kenwood ladies' championship.

Committee Takes Action On 'Walkout'

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Washington public high school football coaches yesterday were ordered, in effect, to be on the job Wednesday for the opening of practice.

The order came after an hour-long discussion by the Board of Education's personnel committee. The committee was meeting in special session in the face of a threatened "walkout" by the coaches, who were demanding "overtime" pay.

The committee's action took the form of a recommendation, which is expected to be approved by the board sometime today.

Instead of extra pay, coaches will be compensated for their after-school work by teaching fewer class hours.

The coaches had based the legality of their demands on a statement by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Hobart M. Corning that coaching work was "voluntary."

"Reaffirms" Old Policy

Called a "reaffirming of our policy set forth in 1936" by the personnel committee, yesterday's action caught four dissatisfied football coaches by surprise.

Somewhat angered, Coach Gil Conn of Calvin Coolidge said, "The policy as stated to us previously by statement is a complete reversal by Dr. Corning.

"He told us that our coaching duties were 'voluntary,' and that we wouldn't be downrated for not volunteering. Now, that is brushed away completely. It's very disappointing. I won't make up my mind about calling practice until I hear officially from the board on the ruling," concluded Conn.

Two Are Ready for Work

Two of the other coaches, John Jankowski of Central and Fred Mulvey of Western, who had balked at reporting, said they'd be on the job Wednesday. "We seem to have no other choice," said Mulvey, who had called the act "undemocratic."

Ed Solomon, McKinley Tech grid coach, was not available for comment.

Dick Fentzer, Joe Carle, Zuzu Stewart and Phil Fox, coaches at Eastern, Woodrow Wilson, Anacostia and Roosevelt, were not on the committee of 42 coaches advocating the walkout. They planned practice for Wednesday.

Dr. Corning was absent from yesterday's personnel committee meeting. But Norman J Nelson, acting superintendent, read a statement from him that Dr. Corning was unaware of the board's policy as set forth in 1936.

Sal Hall, Cardozo High football coach, said he wouldn't call practice until formally told to do so by the Board or his principal.

"I'm planning to leave on my vacation Thursday, and not be back until the third week in September," he said. "I made plans on the basis of Dr. Corning's word that I didn't have to coach unless I volunteered."

T. W. McIntyre and W. E. Brown, coaches at Armstrong and Phelps, who had also planned to join the walkout, were not available for comment. Coach Jesse Chase of Dunbar, the fourth Negro public high school, was not among those balking.

Brownell Wins First Match in Amateur

last chance when he took a bogey 5 on the eighteenth, dropping the hole and match.

Frank Stranahan, Ohio strongboy, marched into the second round of the tournament in his drive for the little slam of the links—the amateur titles of Britain, Canada and the United States.

Already holder of the first two, Stranahan eliminated a stubborn Frank Strafaci of Flushing, N. Y., 4 and 3, in an early-morning match over the 6617-yard layout of the Memphis Country Club.

Others who advanced included Robert Sweeny of London and New York, who stopped C. McVicker of Cincinnati, also by 4 and 3; Charles Kocsis of Detroit, Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jacques Houdry of Ardmore, Pa., and Julius Boros of Bridgeport, Conn.

Billows, five-time New York State king, who eliminated Stan Taylor of Honolulu, 6 and 5, was 2 under regulation for the 13 holes played.

Boros, who led the 1221 qualifiers in the elimination tests early this month with a 66-69—135 card, won his first round match, 2 and 1. He defeated John A. Coller of Columbus, Ohio.

Kocsis mastered Glenn Oatman of Kansas City, 5 and 4, with a strong display of iron shots and Houdry moved up after the longest duel of the early matches—a 1-up, 20-hole affair with Sam Urzetta of East Rochester, N. Y.

Ted Bishop, 1946 amateur king from Deadham, Mass., scrambled all over the course but triumphed over E. K. Gravely of Rocky Mount, N. C., 2 and 1.

Riegel was one down at the turn but built up a similar margin on the way home and won out when Ewert, an alternate who got into the meet when a fellow player became ill, missed a 30-inch putt on the final hole.

Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., who won the national in 1939 and 1941, was one down at the turn in his match with James W. Key 17-year-old Southern tournament medalist from Columbus, Ga. However, Ward steadied his game on the back nine to beat the Georgian, 2 and 1.

The 58-year-old Charles (Chick) Evans, who won the crown in 1916 and 1920, conquered Herbert P. Smith of Orlando, Fla., one up.

Johnny Dawson, the 45-year-old campaigner from Hollywood who was runnerup to Riegel in last year's championship at Del Monte, Calif., figured in one of the strangest contests of the session.

Playing par golf, Dawson won the first eight holes from John Busemeyer of Wyoming. Ob[illegible] and was prevented from a sweep the first side by a stymie on the ninth. He won, 8 and 6.

Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., who won the United States crown in 1938 and the British amateur in 1947, was two down with four holes to play but recouped to oust Sam Kirkpatrick, jr., a 39-year-old insurance executive of Nashville, Tenn., one up.

Potomac Boat Club Looks for Big Float

George Hernan, chairman of the rowing committee of the Potomac Boat Club, is interested in procuring a float approximately 50 by 25 feet which will float in 2 feet of water. He wants to use it to launch the racing shells for the President's Cup Regatta which opens Labor Day. He can be reached at Republic 9307.

Mangrum's 69 Beats Fazio

Salt Lake City, Aug. 30 (AP).—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago won the $12,500 Utah Open Golf championship by defeating George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., in an 18-hole playoff.

Mangrum shot a three-under-par 69 against 72 for Fazio.

The two had tied yesterday at the end of the regulation 72 holes with totals of 274.

The win gave Mangrum another $2,150, to bring his tournament winnings to $29,854, well in front of Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who now has $26,847. For placing second Fazio won $1,550.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag everytime you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways; no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Civil Servants Given Advice by Retiring Commission Member

Arthur S. Flemming, who will soon leave the Civil Service Commission, had some pointed recommendations for both the career service and political heads of agencies yesterday.

Flemming told the American Federation of Government Employes meeting at Philadelphia that:

1. Political heads of agencies must defend their policies and actions before congressional committees.

It isn't fair to the career servant to ask him to defend the policies of the departments, Flemming said.

"Every time this happens," he said, "it puts the career civil servant in a very embarrassing position.

"He may simply be asked to explain the policy. If that is all, no harm is done.

"But he may be asked to defend the policy. If he does, this fact may be kept in mind if those who oppose the policy finally come into power in the executive branch. If it is kept in mind, the civil servant's career may either be at an end or seriously injured."

2. The career civil servant must administer every policy that Congress desires as if he were in complete agreement with it.

"If the career civil servant can't do this, he should leave the career service," Flemming declared. "Otherwise he is setting himself up above the duly elected representatives of the people. This he has no right to do. And this the public, in the long run, will not stand for.

3. Career civil servants must refrain from partisan political activity.

Flemming added that even if the Hatch Act didn't forbid such activity "a career civil servant who deliberately participated in such activity would be making a direct contribution to undermining the entire career service."

4. Career civil servants must adhere to high ethical standards.

The minute a career man loses his ability to be objective or appears to lose that ability he cannot function effectively as a part of the career service, he added.

"A career civil service is absolutely essential to the successful conduct of the affairs of Government in this day and age," Flemming explained. "As a nation we just can't afford to get along without it."

The long time that has expired since World War I is emphasized by the announcement of 11 employes of the Veterans' Administration who are retiring today after 30 years of service.

All of them entered Government service during that conflict in 1917-18. Several formerly were school teachers attracted to Washington during those days of excitement. Many were employed in the War Risk Bureau of the Treasury Department when transferred to the newly organized Veterans' Bureau in 1921. They are:

John W. Barnes, 265 Kentucky ave. se., claims adjudicator. Barnes, a native of Kentucky, was a school teacher and later a lawyer before entering the War Risk Bureau.

Miss Julia D. Connor, 172 North Carolina ave. se., claims clerk. Miss Connor was born in Washington, graduated from Woods Commercial School and served with the United States Food Administration, the State Department and the Federal Bureau of Vocational Education before joining VA.

Mrs. Mattie E. Dowling, 3712 40th ave., Brentwood, Cottage City, Md., ledger clerk. Mrs. Dowling was a Navy yoeman in World War I; then went to War Risk before joining VA. She is from Indiana.

Mrs. Maggie Fitch, 926 Massachusetts ave. nw., adjudicator. Born in Bluemont, Va., educated in Loudoun County schools, she went from War Risk to VA.

Mrs. Marie M. Fort, 4401 Ellicott st. nw., instructor-reviewer. Born in New Jersey, Mrs. Fort went to school in California, and to Columbia University and George Washington University in Washington. She was with the War Department and then War Risk before joining VA.

Herbert W. Gardner, 5759 13th st. nw., maintenance engineer. Gardner, a Bostonian, served two years in the Army during World War I. He then was with War Risk and the Public Health Service before joining VA.

Frank H. Garnett, 2816 N. Franklin rd., Arlington, mail supervisor. Garnett was born in Alexandria, and served in the Navy in the First World War. He also worked for the Interior and Navy Departments before joining VA.

Miss M. Lucille Moore, 3551 Holmead pl. nw., actuarial service, was born and educated in Wisconsin. She was first with War Risk.

Mrs. Mary L. Standen, Hotel Bellevue, 15 E st. nw., clerk. Mrs. Standen was with the War Trade Board of World War I, the Federal Board of Vocational Education, the Treasury Department, Farm Credit Administration, Agriculture Department and the Census Bureau before joining VA.

Mrs. Clementine L. Stenger, 4029 Nichols ave. sw., clerk. Born in Indiana, where she later taught school, Mrs. Stenger was with War, Commerce and the Interstate Commerce Commission before joining VA.

Miss Perle M. Battles, 1830 K st. nw., insurance examiner. Born at Maquoketa, Iowa, educated at University of Iowa, she has served with Treasury, War Risk and VA.

Examinations for secretarial jobs in the Washington area, starting at $2974, $3351 and $3727, will be held early in September.

Three New Cases Bring Area Polio Total to 104

55 Are Residents Of District and 49 Are From Nearby Sections

Metropolitan Washington's polio total rose to 104 cases yesterday with the announcement of three new District cases. They included:

A 5-year-old boy, from the 900 block of 5th st. se., admitted to Gallinger Hospital August 27; a 6-year-old boy from the 1100 block 50th pl. ne., admitted to Gallinger Hospital August 29, and a 10-year-old girl, being treated at home and reported to the District Health Department August 27.

Of the 104 cases to date, 55 are District residents, and 49 from nearby areas outside the District. The figures for the same time last year were six District resident polio cases and 12 nonresidents.

Meanwhile, North Carolina's polio epidemic is more than twice as severe as any in State history.

Twenty-five new cases were reported yesterday to the State Board of Health, bringing the total of cases for the year to 1779. In the worst previous epidemic, in 1944, a total of 878 cases was reported.

Two additional deaths were reported yesterday to bring the death toll for the year to 91. One death was reported by Buncombe County and one by Union.

In California three more infantile paralysis deaths yesterday raised the total for Los Angeles County to 52 since the polio outbreak started.

The county general hospital reported that 18 new patients were admitted yesterday, and 19 discharged. The hospital now has 272 polio patients confined, 32 of them in respirators.

At the naval hospital in nearby Corona, Curtis (Buzzie) Boettiger, 18, grandson of the late President Roosevelt, was reported in excellent condition, and physicians said there is no indication of paralysis in his case.

MOTHER SOUGHT—The Rock Creek animal set is all upset over the latest park scandal—abandonment of a baby squirrel by its mother. The baby, was found by Joan (Mickey) Jenkins, 16, of 1451 Park rd. nw. "Thumper" is being fed from a doll's feeding bottle by Joan. Consensus of the squirrelly set is that any mother who would abandon a baby like that must be nuts

Grand Jury Indicts Five For Gaming

Regular Panel Acts on Police Evidence About Obtaining Bets

The regular grand jury yesterday indicted five men on gambling charges. They are:

John Baskett, 32, of 1612 11th st. nw.; Hilton L. Riddick, 35, of 1811 H pl. nw., and Frank E. Baker, 41, of 3411 14th st. nw., all charged with setting up a gaming table, and Anthony J. Flacomio, 43, of 2140 N st. nw., and Milton W. Longest, 26, of 5114 D st. se., charged with operating a lottery and possession of number slips.

Baskett and Riddick were arrested August 7 at 1612 11th st. nw. after Vice Squad Policeman Silas C. Vaughn said he saw them running two tables of poker. Vaughan said he had entered the premises originally to try to make a whisky buy. He sat in on one of the poker games before the men were arrested, police said.

Gaker was arrested August 7 in a restaurant at 3432 14th st. nw. Police said an undercover man watched him apparently take bets from customers on four days before the arrest.

Flacommio was arrested August 2 in a garage at 1828 L st. nw., after Vice Squad Policeman James P. Johnson made three plays with 75 cents in marked money with Flacommio, according to police. They said that Johnson had made bets with Flacommio on two other occasions.

Longest was arrested August 9 by Pvt. Tarver J. Thomas, of the Fourteenth Precinct, who was cruising in a scout car and stopped to question Longest when he saw him loitering in an alley in the rear of the 5800 block of East Capitol st., police said. When the policeman stopped, Longest threw a bundle of numbers slips under the car, according to police. He later admitted he was on his way to give the slips to another man, police said.

Man, 30, Is Indicted On 2 Burglary Counts

The District grand jury yesterday indicted a suspect on charges of stealing close to $5000 in money and jewels from two Washington homes.

He was identified as Jack T. Reagan, 30, of 627 C st. ne. The two indictments against him were among 33 handed down by the grand jury.

According to police, Reagan entered the home of Dr. Guttorn N. Brekke, at 2445 Porter st. nw. on June 27 by breaking open a locked window with a pen knife, and took jewelry valued at $2710.

On May 21, Reagan and another man, identified only as Richard Beavers, entered the home of Mrs. Florence A. Briggs, 3529 Williamsburg la. nw., through an unlocked window, and stole money and jewelry valued at $2271, according to police.

Other indictments returned yesterday included:

Cloteal Cox, 37, of 1314 V st. nw., for the first-degree murder of Hattie Lavender, 34, shot August 2 in her apartment at the Dunbar Hotel, 2015 15th st. nw.

John L. Calvin, 38, of 1125 7th st. nw., for second-degree murder in the death of James R. Mills, 32, of 1023 8th st. nw., who was stabbed during an altercation July 24.

Dewey Dawson, 50, of Hyacinth, Va., indicted on a charge of performing an indecent act with a 14-year-old boy August 19.

Lewis Kaneck, 40, 726 Tuckerman st. nw., charged with sending defamatory and threatening messages on post cards to Miss Caroline Baldwin, a waitress at the Gateway Restaurant in Union Station last June.

Florence B. Johnson, alias Florence B. Pare, 60, of 1309 17th st. nw., charged with false pretenses for writing a check for $2332 while having no funds when she purchased an automobile last May.

Edward T. Ward, 61, of 8 D st. se., charged with forging indorsements on seven checks, totaling $557, and cashing them after he had taken them from mailboxes.

Three Crippled in Coal Mines Get Benefits From UMW Fund

William Burns — O. L. Kimbraugh — Edgar Morgan

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Beaming Bill Burns and his two coal-mining mates had left a rocky road to ride the rails on a streamliner through town yesterday.

He and Ed Morgan and Ocie Lee Kimbraugh, a smiling trio of husky men with a new outlook, lost the use of their legs in rockfalls in Alabama coal mines.

They were headed home again yesterday after many years of suffering and a few months of expert medical care. The latter was provided through the recently organized medical program of the United Mine Workers of America Welfare and Retirement Fund.

One of its major projects is physical and vocational rehabilitation of approximately 400 paralyzed coal miners. Most of the miners, until the benefits became available last October, had relied on sparse insurance aid, meager savings and the help of fellow miners.

"The treatment was swell," said Burns, a robust 200-pounder of 47 who has spent the last 14 years "flat on his back or in a wheel chair," according to one UMW physician.

Back in 1934, Burns lay for an hour under a pile of rock hundreds of feet below the earth's in Trafford, Ala., before being hauled out. After that, he spent much of his time worrying about his wife and three children.

Burns has been at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York City for the past four months under the UMW program.

"My youngest daughter, Juanita, is 14, and she's never seen me walk," he said with obvious eagerness to get back to her. "Now I'm able to get around on crutches pretty well."

Ed Morgan, 46, who plans to reopen a store near Birmingham when he's completed the UMW vocational rehabilitation program, was a little unfortunate, in a way. He was hurt at Prace, Ala., the same month the welfare program got under way, so his treatment at the Newark Hospital for Crippled Children wasn't so long coming.

But he had a wife and five children ranging from 21 to 2—to support, so disability benefits under the UMW plan will be happily received.

"My $200 hospitalization insurance with the company didn't last very long, so I was mighty glad to get help from the union," he said.

Youngest of the group was Ocie Lee Kimbraugh, a curly-haired man of 37 with two daughters, 9 and 7 years old.

"After my insurance ran out in a West Virginia hospital, they told me I'd have to leave," he recalled. "I said they'd have to move me, because I wasn't leaving, so I stayed on for about four years."

He had been in the Newark hospital since February 16. "I'm able to get about pretty well," Kimbraugh said, and he's looking forward to setting up a florist shop in Birmingham when the UMW vocational program is completed.

These three men are the first to visit Washington since the UMW paraplegic program was started. Funds for this plan and other medical care come from contract agreements whereby the UMW gets royalties on each ton of coal mined.

The first was in 1946, at 5 cents a ton. It was increased to 10 cents the next year and the 1948 contract calls for 20 cents per ton. It is expected the last will bring in 100 million dollars.

From it will come a new lease on life for injured men and for families of those killed in mines. Already, the results are noticeable in such cases as Bill Burns, Ed Morgan and Ocie Lee Kimbraugh.

PUC to Ask Reduction in Rosslyn Co. Gas Rates

Proposal Would Save Customers $700,000 Annually, Member Asserts

Arlington's Public Utilities Commission will recommend to the County Board that Rossyln Gas Co. rates "should be reduced" it was learned last night.

The report is scheduled to be made at the county board's September 9 meeting by Albert A. Carretta and Dr. Lawrence Knappen, member of a special PUC subcommittee studying the gas rates at board request.

Their report, Carretta said, will show that if the company drops its charges to the "national average," all its customers will save about $700,000 annually.

National Average Quoted

Arlington users (the company supplies some customers in Fairfax County) will save an estimated $500,000 yearly, Carretta said—or roughly $17 per family per year.

The report will say, Carretta added, that the national average gas rate is 6.8 cents per 100 cubic feet of gas. In Arlington, he said the rate is 16.8 cents.

The Knappen and Carretta recommendations will stress the savings in costs the gas company might make in (1) distribution, (2) customer collection, and (3) sales and promotion costs.

In a meeting last Saturday, the County Board had asked the PUC to investigate the "possibility" of lowering the rates.

Investigation Possible

In Richmond yesterday, a spokesman for the State Corporation Commission said an investigation of Rosslyn Gas Co. rates would be launched if the County Board requested it. SCC is the agency that controls rates.

He said the company's report for last year showed a net profit return of 5.02 per cent, with operating expenses of $1,823,773 and annual amortization of $55,500 for a 10-year period to cover recent conversion from manufactured to natural gas.

Acording to the SCC, when a gas company's net earnings exceed 6 per cent, the commission can ask the company to lower its rates voluntarily.

Trailer Camp Gets Power To Run Pump

Continued operation of the Gum Spring Trailer Park in Fairfax County seemed assured yesterday after Operator Peter Dorser made special arrangements for providing his trailer camp with water.

The 16-trailer camp had been cut off from water, provided by an electric pump, since last Thursday. This resulted when county officials shut off the electricity, because wiring failed to meet requirements of the county electrical inspector.

After an inspection Sunday by County Health Officer H. C. Bradford, Dorser arranged to run a wire to the pump only. Dorser said he would make all other wiring corrections in the next two weeks.

Bradford said that cutting off all electricity had "only made a bad situation worse," depriving families of water not only for drinking and washing, but also for sanitary purposes.

2 Strangers Take Boy With Broken Leg to Hospital

A 15-year-old Chevy Chase (Md.) boy whose leg was broken by a falling boulder Saturday was carried almost 2 miles along the Potomac shore by two men who drove him to a hospital and left without identifying themselves.

The boy, George H. Mitchell, jr., 15 E. Irving st., Chevy Chase, had gone some distance north of Glen Echo to swim with a companion, Meredith Prince, 16, of E. Melrose st., Chevy Chase.

He was at the water's edge when a boulder became dislodged and fell on his leg. The two men, who used a hand-carry to take him to their car down the river, became exhausted from the heat during the trip and had to dip themselves in the water to revive themselves.

Young Mitchell received a compound leg fracture. He was reported in satisfactory condition at Georgetown University Hospital yesterday.

Streetcar, Auto Collide; 3 Are Injured

4 County Policemen, 2 Others Hurt in Accident on Pike

Three persons were injured, one of them seriously, when a streetcar and an automobile collided yesterday at 6 p. m. at 57th and Dix sts. ne.

Taken to Gallinger Hospital were:

William F. Mitchell, 26, of 1718 Montello ave. ne., reported by police to be the driver of the car. He suffered fractured ribs and possible fractured skull and back. He was reported in serious condition.

Lucille Barnes, 29, and Linwood K. Barnes, 31, both of 223 57th st. ne., said to be passengers in Mitchell's car. Both suffered minor injuries and were released from the hospital.

Police identified the streetcar operator as Vernon Lee, 23, of 1229 Owen pl. se. They said $1000 damage was done to Mitchell's car.

Mother, Daughter Hurt

A Cheverly (Md.) mother and her 4-year-old daughter were injured yesterday afternoon when the automobile driven by the mother crashed into a stone pillar at the Tuxedo rd. entrance to Cheverly.

The mother, Mrs. Marjorie Ann Dodd, 28, of 1624 62d ave., Cheverly, was admitted to Prince Georges General Hospital with a severe laceration to the right forehead, knee injuries and other undetermined injuries. Her daughter, Marjorie, was treated for a bruised forehead.

Four Montgomery County (Md.) policemen on their way to work, and two other persons, were injured when the policemen's car was struck while it was stopped on the Rockville pike, near Rockcrest, Md., late Sunday night.

Most seriously injured were Pvt. Lester Jones, 28, of Rockcrest, who suffered a broken neck vertebra, and Clarence W. Renshaw, 32, of Rockville, driver of the other car, who received a brain concussion. He was charged with reckless driving.

The three other policemen—Corpl. Clarence Crown, 28, of Derwood, Pvt. Charles Crabb, 22, of Woodfield, and Pvt. Franklin Fisher, 32, Rockville—were on their way to duty at the Bethesda (Md.) Police Station, and stopped to pick up Jones.

As Jones was stepping in, the Renshaw car crashed into their Earl R. Teuteberg of 4509 Harling auto, the policemen reported. lane, Bethesda, a passenger in Renshaw's car, received face cuts, while another passenger, Otis Butt of Rockville, was unhurt.

Teuteberg, Jones and Crown, who had a possible broken ankle, were admitted to Suburban Hospital in Bethesda. The others were treated there and released.

Equipment Workers Quit Phone Jobs

Union Notifies 300 In 'Wildcat Walkout' To Resume Today

Approximately 300 telephone equipment workers left their jobs at 19 Washington telephone exchanges yesterday in, what union officials called "a wildcat walkout."

The workers, all members of Local No. 96, Association of Communication Equipment Workers, (CIO), staged the demonstration in protest against alleged delays in bargaining negotiations with their employers, the Western Electric Co., supply unit for the Bell system.

A spokesman for the Chesapeake and Ohio Telephone Co., yesterday emphasized that the company is not involved in the contractual talks. He said service would not be affected nor was there any likelihood of equipment shortages as a result.

According to a spokesman for the workers, all will be back on the job at 8 a. m. today.

The union and the Western Electric Co. currently are wrangling over a demand for a Nation-wide 15-cent an hour wage rise. The talks which opened in New York several weeks ago have been shifted to Chicago, it was said.

George Lawler, business agent of the Washington local declared the walkout was "entirely without union sanction."

The Joint Association of the York Rite Masonary will hold a dinner this evening for Grand and Constituent Bodies of Royal Arch Masons and Councils of Royal and Select Masters of Knights Templar. The dinner will be held at 7 o'clock at 2600 16th st. nw.

Pups' Barks Bring Aid to Boy in Pond

A two-year-old Bethesda boy was saved from drowning in a pond in a neighbor's yard yesterday when the barking of five cocker spaniel puppies attracted a rescuer.

The boy, Richard C. Ensminger, was submerged in the 4-foot pond when he was rescued and revived by a neighbor. He was examined at Suburban Hospital and reported in normal condition last night at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Ensminger, 207 Chandler st., Bethesda.

The barking of the cocker spaniels, four months old, attracted their owner, Mrs. Nichols N. Zemo of 317 East Cedar lane, Bethesda. She found the boy in the pond and her screams brought her husband, who rescued the child and forced a small amount of water from his lungs.

Mrs. Ensminger could not explain how Richard wandered from his home since the yard in which he was playing is fenced in. She has scheduled an appointment for him today for typhoid shots, since he swallowed a lot of water in the pond.

Hot Shoppe Robbed Of $1916.50 in Cash

Cash totaling $1916.50 was stolen from a safe in the office of a Hot Shoppe restaurant at 5103 Georgia ave. nw. early yesterday. Night Manager Herbert Lloyd told police.

The thief apparently was familiar with the safe's combination.

Fear of Death Leads Waiter To Fatal Leap

Costa B. Chippas, 61-year-old waiter, leaped to his death from Calvert Street Bridge Sunday night because he was afraid to die.

This was revealed yesterday by police who said Chippas was haunted by a gnawing fear since doctors told him several weeks ago that he was suffering from a serious heart ailment.

The police story of a previous attempt by Chippas to hurl himself off the bridge last Monday came as Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg signed a certificate of suicide.

The earlier attempt was foiled by a 23-year-old University of Maryland student, Joseph de Lozier, 8202 Nolte ave., Silver Spring, who, from a passing bus, spotted Chippas trying to ease himself over the bridge railing.

The student had the bus stopped, ran to Chippas and grasped him as he was about to clear the railing.

Police then took Chippas to a private sanitarium where the would-be suicide expressed thanks for being saved.

When nurses asked him why he tried to kill himself, he displayed a doctor's report of his heart malady.

The story was told by Detective Sergt. Harold M. Huffman of the Homicide squad who investigated both the earlier attempt and the final 130-foot death plunge. Huffman identified Chippas from papers in the dead man's pocket coupled with personal observation.

Mrs. E. E. Phillips, 1313 Massachusetts ave. nw. Chippas' landlady, told reporters the man was $60 behind in his room rent and had promised to pay her the full amount by yesterday.

She said Chippas said he was divorced. His only known relative is a brother, Harry, living in Florida.

Commissioner Apportioning Hit by Sauter

Montgomery County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter last night criticized present distribution of members of the county commission and urged that steps be taken to make municipalities of Bethesda and Silver Spring.

Sauter aired his views at a forum conducted by the Montgomery County Young Republican Club in the Masonic Temple, Silver Spring. Other who spoke were Maryland State Senator Roy Tasco Davis, and Mrs. Leona Rush, member of the Maryland House of Delegates.

The commissioner declared that although the bulk of the county population is centered in Bethesda and Silver Spring, those areas have only two commissioners on the board of five.

Sauter further asserted that a disproportionate share of road-building is being enjoyed by other county areas while Bethesda and Silver Spring pay 93 per cent of the total taxes.

He urged city status for the two communities, either individually or joined as a unit.

Davis told his listeners that the Nation's youth had been led along "wrong lines" by the national administration. He urged that the younger voters "bring back to this country the ideals of thrift, patriotism and reverence."

Election of more women to the Maryland General Assembly was advocated by Mrs. Rush in her talk.

School Areas Outlined

The Arlington School Board will announce the boundaries of 24 new elementary school districts at a meeting tonight at the JamesMonroe School, 2300 Key blvd. Formal school district lines have been in effect hitherto.

Police Brutal, Navy Man Asserts

A Navy chief radioman, charged with biting two policemen, yesterday declared he will file a formal complaint with Police Chief Robert J. Barrett that he was mistreated by the policemen.

Appearing in Municipal Court with a bandage covering 15 stitches in his scalp, the Navy petty officer, Archibald Koester, 30, waived preliminary hearing and was ordered held for grand jury action. Bond was continued at $500.

Koester was arrested Saturday night at Wisconsin ave. and M sts. nw. by Pvts. Frederick L. Gibson and Charles B. Kadel, of the Seventh Precinct. He said he was taking his wife home from a party and mercy stopped to say hello to the policemen, when they arrested him. He said he had had a few drinks.

The policemen charged that Koester struck Gibson on the face and bit him on the hand. Later, at the station house, he also allegedly bit Pvt. Frank F. Blessington on the arm when the policeman was searching him, they said.

The Washington Post

CHEF A. I. KOESTER
. . . Comforted by Wife

Koester declared yesterday that "he may have gone beserk and bit the policeman," but it was only after he had been struck three or four times on the head with a night stick or blackjack.

He said he was not told why he had been arrested, and his request to get in touch with a lawyer or the Shore Patrol was denied him. He was kept in a cell 12 hours and given no water during the time, he said. He had to drink from his cell toilet bowl to stop his thirst, he declared.

Sunday, a friend forfeited $15 collateral for him on the charge that he was drunk and disorderly without his knowledge or consent. He will ask that the forfeiture be set aside, he said.

Koester was treated early Sunday at Georgetown Hospital for the scalp lacerations and is now under treatment at the Bethesda Naval Hospital. The two policemen weer also treated at Georgetown Hospital.

Koester said he had been in the Navy for 13 years and had served 6 of those years in the submarine service in the Pacific. He lives with his wife and three children at 605 Cedar lane, Falls Church, Va.

Missing Mother Isn't Back for Son's Birthday

Mrs. Hilda G. Gooding, 29-year-old waitress who disappeared last Thursday from her home at 5779 2d st., Temple Hills, Md., failed to return in time for her son, Clarence, jr.'s tenth birthday party last night.

Mrs. Gooding has another son, Donald, 5. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 167 pounds, and has short black hair, graying at the temples.

Mrs. Gooding had been suffering from severe headaches for the past several weeks, according to her husband, an auto messenger for the Congress Heights Western Union. He said his wife left her job last Tuesday at the Victory Grill, Nichols ave. and Good Hope rd. se. because of the headaches, which "almost set her crazy."

87 Parking Tickets Adjusted in Week

An absent-minded motorist who locked his ignition key inside his car was among 87 who had parking tickets "adjusted" for the week ending August 28, it was reported yesterday.

The adjustment was granted to Paul R. Zimmerman, 24, of 1015 N St. nw., The incident was given as an excuse for overtime parking.

Charles A. Batten, 31, of 6701 Rhode Island ave., College Park, Md., and O. E. Goodrich, 48, of 412 37th st. se., were given another chance and warned when they declared they had left their cars temporarily to get change for parking meters.

Eon Cayton, 43, of 2948 Macomb st., nw., was excused and warned on grounds of a flat tire. Johan Kaufman of the Netherlands Embassy and Paul C. Lafond, 430 Missouri ave., nw., had tickets cancelled because of diplomatic immunity.

Eight had tickets adjusted and received warnings because of car breakdowns, while nine others, strangers in town, successfully pleaded ignorance of local parking laws.

Also excused with warnings were five doctors on emergency calls and three patients visiting physicians.

The adjustments were made by the various police precinct commanders.

Fair Helps Hospital

Children's Hospital is due to receive $5 within the next few days from three youthful residents of Port Dupont st. se., who raised the money yesterday at a fair attended by 40 neighborhood children.

The event, held at the home of Lillian Rivilin, 12, 1652 Fort Dupont st. se., featured movies, a magic show, and lots of lemonade. Besides Lillian, Howard Silber, 10, of 1633 Fort Dupont st., and Philip Einhorn, 11, of 1676 Fort Dupont st., were sponsors.

Held on Arson Charge

Clyde Eanes, 26, of 6720 MacArthur blvd., Glen Echo, Md., was held for action of the Montgomery County grand jury yesterday on a charge of arson involving the burning of a one-room home on June 21.

Eanes pleaded innocent before Trial Magistrate Warren Browning of Bethesda Police Court. He was accused of setting fire to tarpaper covering the outside wall of Mrs. Sarah Higby's cabin at 6717 MacArthur blvd., Glen Echo, following an argument with Mrs. Higby.

Matron Fined for Assault

Mrs. Carrie G. Day, 2919 M st. nw., a matron at the ladies' room of the Glen Echo amusement park, was fined $12.50 in Bethesda Police Court yesterday for assault on a patron two weeks ago. She was charged with striking Mrs. C. A. Myers, 1422 Clifton st. nw., after an argument over a lost purse.

P. C. Brady Heads Business Unit II For Chest Drive

Brady

Percy C. Brady, assistant vice president of the central branch of the American Security & Trust Co., has been appointed chairman of Business Unit II of the 1949 Community Chest Red Feather campaign, Chauncey G. Parker, chairman of the drive, said yesterday.

Business Unit II is made up of firms and professional offices in the District that employ 15 or fewer persons. There are 15,000 such firms to be reached this year, and their employes will be solicited individually for contributions.

The goal for the twentieth annual Red Feather campaign is $4,566,790. It will be used for the 1949 operation of all Chest-supported agencies in the Washington area.

W. Wallace Lanahan

Providence, R. I., Aug. 30 (AP).—W. Wallace Lanahan, 64, investment banker prominent nationally and in Maryland and president of the board of Johns Hopkins Hospital, died today in a hospital here. He suffered a heart attack a week ago, when vacationing at his summer home in Watch Hill, R. I.

Lanahan was perhaps best known as host to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor on their frequent visits to Baltimore. He rose quickly in the investment banking business following his graduation from Harvard in 1907, founding his own firm seven years later and ultimately making it one of the largest in the Nation.

His wife and two sons were at the bedside. Funeral service will be held at Towson, Md., Wednesday.

Heart Attack Is Fatal to M. P. McGrath

Maurice P. McGrath, 65, Southern Maryland representative for the Maryland Veterans Commission, died Sunday following a heart attack while swimming near Cobb Island, Md., it was learned yesterday.

Mr. McGrath

Mr. McGrath, who lived at 4005 Buchanan st., Hyattsville, was swimming in shallow water when he collapsed, witnesses said. Artificial respiration was applied without success and he was pronounced dead by a doctor in nearby Wayside.

He had been spending the weekend with his family at a cottage at Rock Point and had not previously been ill.

A native of Fort Schuyler, N. Y., Mr. McGrath had been a resident of the Washington area for more than 40 years. He was appointed to his post with the Veterans Commission three years ago. Before that, he had served more than 30 years in the Federal and District governments, retiring as water inspector for the District a few years ago.

He saw overseas action as a first sergeant in World War I and was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Maryland State Guard after the National Guard entered active duty in World War II.

Active in veterans affairs, he was a past commander of Snyder-Farmer-Butler American Legion Post in Hyattsville and belonged to the Forty and Eight Society of the Legion and the Twenty-ninth Division Association. He was a bowling enthusiast and was well known in local duckpin circles.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Matilda McGrath; three sons, George E. and Maurice P. McGrath, jr., of Hyattsville, and Charles A. McGrath of Philadelphia; a sister and two brothers.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 9 a. m. at Fort Myer Chapel with interment in Arlington Cemetery.

Charles Evans Hughes

New York, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Funeral services for former Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at Riverside Church.

In accordance with one of Hughes' last wishes, the services will be conducted by the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick. The services will be open to the public but burial will be private.

Hughes died at Osterville, Mass., Friday night. He was 86.

Memorial Rite Set Here for Miss Birdseye

Miss Miriam Birdseye, 70, first food and nutrition extension specialist for the Department of Agriculture, died Saturday in Carmel, Calif., where she had made her home since her retirement here in 1946.

Miss Birdseye

She was the sister of Clarence Birdseye of Gloucester, Mass., inventor of the quick-freezing process of preserving foods.

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Birdseye was a graduate of Smith College, Pratt Institute and Columbia University. Before joining the Agriculture Department in 1917, she was the first nutrition specialist at Cornell University. During her 29 years with the department she traveled widely developing the extension service.

In addition to her brother, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Katharine Lang, 1815 17th st. nw., and Mrs. Ted Drake of Miami, Fla.

Memorial services will be held September 10 at 10:30 at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., to permit attendance by extension service workers throughout the Nation who will be in Washington for meetings. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Bessie Mitchell

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Mrs. Bessie Mitchell, 75-year-old great-granddaughter of Patrick Henry, Virginia patriot. Mrs. Mitchell died yesterday. She was a widow.

Grocer Sues City to Save Store License

A grocer yesterday asked District Court to stop the city government from revoking his store license.

The suit was filed by Bernard Tompkins, who owns a grocery at 2007 14th st. nw. Named defendants were the District Commissioners and Chatham T. Nottingham, Superintendent of Licenses.

Tompkins alleged that on July 29 he was notified he had violated health regulations. A hearing was held August 2 at the District Building, but none of the Commissioners appeared, according to his complaint.

He was notified August 24 that his license would be revoked September 1. The letter was signed only by Ralph A. Norton, acting secretary to the Board of Commissioners, the suit declares.

Tompkins charges that the Board of Revocation of Licenses for the District and the License Board, District of Columbia, are illegal and that the order of revocation cites no reason for its issuance. It asks for a temporary restraining order and then a permanent injunction.

Virginia Elks Hold Conclave In Alexandria

Seven hundred Elks gathered in Alexandria yesterday as the thirty-ninth Virginia State Convention got under way at the hall of Lodge No. 758, 319 Prince st.

Mayor William T. Wilkins welcomed the 500 out-of-town delegates at opening ceremonies. Other speakers were R. M. Ward, chairman of the trustees of the state association, and James O. Jones, Exalted Ruler of the Alexandria lodge.

The Martinsville, Va. Lodge was admitted to membership at a business meeting making B. P. O. E. 18 lodges strong in Virginia.

Delegates then marched across town for a memorial service at Christ Church. Sightseeing tours followed. A buffet supper at the George Mason Hotel and a moonlight cruise down the Potomac were scheduled for last night.

Winners of a ritualistic contest held during the afternoon will be announced at a business meeting today. The delegates will elect officers, act on several resolutions and close the proceedings tonight with a dance.

Requiem Mass Scheduled for Bro. Edward

The Rev. Brother Firmus Edward, 77, who on August 15 celebrated his diamond jubilee as a member of the Christian Brothers, died Sunday after a short illness at the order's home in Ammendale near Beltsville, Md.

He was reared as Charles Berger in Philadelphia wher he received his early education at St. Petres, a Christian Brothers' school. While in his teens he entered the Brothers' Junion Novitiate at Ammendale. As a member of the Christian Brothers, a Catholic order devoted to the Christian teaching of boys, he taught at St. Vincent's School and Calvert Hall College in Baltimore; La Salle Institute, Cumberland, and at Rock Hill College, Ellicott City.

He interrupted his teaching to serve as president of St. Thomas College, now the University of Scranton (Pa.), and later was vice president and dean of La Salle College, Philadelphia.

Before returning to Ammendale to train novices for the order, he taught at Catholic high schools in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Requiem high mass will be offered at 9 a. m. Wednesday in the novitiate chapel. Burial will be in the community cemetery.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Elderly Man, Napping on Bus, Wakens to Snap at South American, Who Is Regaling Girl With Anecdotes; Now She's Scapegoat

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: It has been my pleasure to have as a good friend a cultured South American gentleman, who speaks with a slight accent, although he knows several languages and reads and writes scholarly English.

Recently, en route home by bus from an afternoon picnic, he was in deep conversation with me about himself and relatives at home. The seat directly in front of us was empty, and he was speaking perhaps in a higher tone than his usual pitch of voice.

An elderly couple were two seats ahead and the old man's head was nodding in cat-naps. When we were more than halfway home, he turned suddenly, glared at Claude for fully one minute and said, "You'd better go back to your own country. You can't talk like that here."

Latin Says Girl Didn't Uphold Him

Claude asked me for an explaination, which of course I couldn't give, whereupon he took off his glasses and said to the old man, "Turn around in your seat." To avert a scene, I put my hand on his knee and said, "Don't do that," just as the old man turned once more to glare, but kept silent when met by a cold stare from Claude.

My reaction was to ignore the incident, on the assumption that the old man either was senile or had been drinking, but when the bus drew into the station, Claude wanted to call a policeman. I overruled this by pointing out that one must often make allowances for others' mistakes, but Claude insisted that had it happened in his country, to a fellow citizen of mine, the offender would have been removed from the bus.

This week the subject was brought up again and there was an argument, with Claude saying that I hadn't defended him as I should. Meantime I had sensed a slight change in our relationship, and apparently the incident left a deep scar on his sensitive nature. If I have treated the matter too lightly, Ishall be glad to apologize. Please advise. E. S.

Gringo Crackpot and Latin Neurotic

DEAR E. S.: The imbroglio amounted ot an emotional spitting-match between Gringo crackpot and Latin neurotic, and it seems to me you behaved with courtesy and composure befitting a queen when caught in the crossfire.

Your instant impulse to ignore the old man's rudeness was the epitome of civilized feeling and mental maturity, also an indirect manifestation of loyal delicate concern to protect Claude's sensibilities and salvage his dignity.

Thus you don't owe Claude an apology, and his tendency to go on shadowboxing the incident suggests that he has a traumatic conviction of inferiority to other men: a neurosis centered on distrust of his sexual competence, I think, hence he lives in fear of being humiliated by men, especially in situations or relationships involving women, and of being consequently rejected by the ladies, or by that dame or damsel whose approbation he is currently courting.

Stick to Reason; Don't Be Craven

WHEN the old man publicity jeered him under your nose, his sensory system backfired violently. He suffered a fearful shock of exceeding mortification, out of all proportion to the petty thrust, and while his first reaction was to save face with you, by inviting battle to redress his "honor," his overall feeling and basic conviction was to the effect that you repudiated him (with hidden contempt) then and there.

This rationale of his morbid fretting about the incident likewise explains his recent coolness—a defense against anticipated outright rejection,—also his injured references to your alleged siding against nim. Claude is a problem-personality who tends to involve intimates in his subjective difficulties; so, for advice, stick to reason and don't be his scapegoat. M. H.

Modeling Contest Offers Scholarships

For the second year Lansburgh's department store is sponsoring a contest for amateur models, the three winners to be awarded scholarships to the course in fashion modeling at Southeastern University.

Awards will be made to winners in the following divisions: Gray haired matron type; teen-age type; and inbetween type.

The contest, now in progress, will close at 6 p. m. September 9, and final judging by a panel of newspaper and radio fashion authorities will take place at 8:30 p. m. on September 11 in the Pall Mall Room at the Raleigh Hotel. Contestants may enter the contest by obtaining entry blanks at the Contest Desk on the second floor at Lansburgh's.

You're Invited

Faith in Washington has given us the inspiration and will to create this beautiful new store. We began humbly in our little shop down the street, but made great strides—and what is even more important—we have made many friends. Our new store is modern in every detail, with many new innovations, and replete with the newest fashions in coats, furs, suits, dresses, sportswear, lingerie and hosiery.

Come in and let us pin a rose on you as a remembrance boutonniere of your visit to Kotzin's.

Victorian Elegance

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

THE studied elegance of the Victorian era is reflected in this dinner dress of rustling black taffeta, velvet and bugle beading, from the collection of advance fall fashions at Erlebacher, Inc. Skirt, with fantail back that falls into a tiny train, has a high molded waistline and is topped with bodice of velvet, heavily embroidered with glistening beads. Theater hat is a circlet of black velvet with spray of simulated aigrettes

To Fit All Budgets

Knitwear Arrives in Many Styles

Knitwear has arrived as a popular fashion. This season there is a knitted dress or suit to fit every budget. Not only is there variety in price but also in type, with handknits, simulated handknits, handlooming, knitted fabrics and wool jerseys among the favorite choices.

The versatility of a knitted dress makes it a many-season and many-occasion costume. The beige, grey or pastel knit that looks so well under furs in the winter is equally right for town or country in the spring. It travels perfectly and becomes a part of the summer vacation wardrobe. With dressed-up accessories, knits go to cocktails and dinner but the same dress or suit with tailored accessories can spend the day shopping.

Prestige Quality

There is a fineness and a prestige quality about knitwear that is not always appreciated. The best types of wool yarns are used and in the handloomed and simulated handknit garments we find handfinishing and often hand-crocheted deails giving the appearance of the more costly handknits.

Machine-knit fabrics have new interest with a hard surface resembling woven worsteds. Often in suits, companion knits are used—a pattern for the jacket and plain for the skirt. Novelty-knitted fabrics for dresses or blouses are original and colorful, appearing in many sportswear and after-ski collections.

In moderate-price ranges are the attractive and practical one or two-piece basic dresses which are such a boon to the college or career girl who has so little time to spend caring for her wardrobe. Worsted jerseys return to high fashion significance but are also in moderate-price ranges. New printed and novelty jerseys are shown both for sportswear and dressier occasions. The trend toward wool for late afternoon and evening clothes places printed jersey in cocktail dresses and handknits for evening country wear and the sophisticated traveler.

Sweaters are no longer just sweaters but are coordinated with skirts to make a complete costume. Though we will always have the faithful and indispensable classic sweater set, there are many new types of sweater blouses worn with a matching skirt or one of contrasting novelty wool. These new skirts have interesting detail either in the cut or accent, such as a full black sheer wool skirt with a band of soutache braid or a straight one with buttons up the side. Worn with the new sweater blouses, the costume becomes complete rather than the old theory of just a sweater and skirt.

Sky Bears Messages, Too

Hollywood's Street Scene Is Spiced With Signs, Strange'n Wonderful

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 30.—Hollywood is like a pie, with a flaky upper crust of film folk, filling of hard working businessmen and tough lower crust of weirdly dressed characters, all piquantly spiced with signs, slogans, attention attracters of almost painful individuality, found nowhere else in the universe.

On clear days when there's no smoke, skywriters sully the blue, advertising "Honest John" who always needs cars. His more earthbound rival is Madman Muntz who maintains second hand auto corrals scattered through the city.

Madman Muntz peddles his personality rather than his wares, crowding billboards with sayings all trademarked with a caricature of himself costumed like Napoleon, hand tucked in vest, cocked hat, and spitcurl. Among his more commonplace public scribblings are "I wanna give 'em away but Mrs. Muntz won't let me," or "buy 'em retail, sell 'em wholesale—more fun that way." Or "remember money isn't everything—you fool—give your car to Muntz, the automobile Madman."

Muntz' methods have become so effective in this land where everything is 10 miles apart that a rival called Wildman Pritchard has sprung up, but so far confines his capers mostly to the radio.

All in an Afternoon

IN a brief afternoon drive one tools along a beautiful boulevard, its center section, a dirt path labeled for no apparent reason "Ye bridle path." A few miles out there is a huge sign "Uplifters Ranch." This isn't a vacation spot for workers in some factory making intimate feminine apparel but rather a luxurious club whose members apply themselves seriously to sports of all kinds and where Mrs. Earl Warren, wife of the Governor and Republican vice presidential nominee, is vacationing.

In quick succession flit by a "totorium," where presumably, children's garments may be bought; a "washeteria," where maidless housewives bring their laundry and "Mac Hotel" where pussy may be parked when you leave for a weekend; a "dog'ncat atarium" for both canine and feline sufferers plus innumerable roadside stands selling horse meat handily to pet owners.

If you are feeling a trifle quesy there's always Dr. Cowan. He will "see you personally at five conveniently located offices." If the multiple Dr. Cowan slips up there is always a plot to be bought at Valhalla, a cemetery which advertises "nice warm soil."

If you recover, want food, its to be had at such fascinating boites as "Hangman's Tree," which boasts "lousy food—warm beer" or if near the municipal airport at "Flaps Down" or "Crash Inn."

For a more informal meal, there's always "glorified ham 'n eggs" or a "Forever Amburg" or an orange juice stand called "Santa Clause" where all the help, for no apparent reason, cheerily wish customers "Merry Christmas" afterwards, of course.

Anyone would want a bite of MacFarland's "awful fresh" candy or a popsicle bought from an amulatory wagon with Swiss music boxes which jingle Brahms lullabies.

If termites or other crawlers are found give a ring to the pest control concern which boasts "We live to kill." Anyone can purchase liquid refreshments at the "Drop-in" liquor store, fill their auto tank with "Polly," gas, satisfy an expensive sweet tooth with "Cugat's Nugats—candy of the stars" and quietly end it all at Dunaways funeral home.

Gossin—Sox Wedding Plans Changed

The wedding of Miss Gerrie Gossin to Samuel Sox on September 5, at Hotel 2400, has been canceled, due to the illness of Mrs. Annie Sox, mother of the bridegroom. A private ceremony with no guests will be held instead at the home of the Rabbi.

In Bridal Procession

In a gown of ivory satin Miss Phyllis Donald was married yesterday to Lieut. Warren Lynnwood Chestnutt, USAC. The ceremony took place in Columbia Heights Christian Church at 7 p. m. Mrs. Chestnutt is the daughter of Mrs. Bertram Groesbeck of Arlington and Adam Donald of Philadelphia. Lieutenant Chestnutt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Chestnutt of Washington.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was fashioned with full skirt and train and her veil was fingertip length. She carried white roses and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. M. Russell Pace, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. The other attendants were Miss Virginia Chestnutt, Miss Barbara Mayo of Arlington; Miss Ann Meadows of Frederick, Md., and Miss Janet Clayton of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Kay Liston was flower girl and the ring bearer was Master William Pace. The best man was William K. Lazear. Ushering were Carl Stancill of Washington, Cyrus Gambrill, jr., of Frederick, Md.; Robert Sanders and Andrew Blake of Washington.

After a trip by auto through New England, the couple will reside in Washington.

Betts—Reece

Miss Gladys Marie Reece of Elizabethton, Tenn., and John W. Betts, jr., of Fort Worth, Tex., were married August 28 at Foundry Methodist Church, the Rev. Ralph Brown officiating.

Lloyd H. Simson gave the bride in marriage. Her gown of white marquisette was trimmed with lace and she wore her veil attached to a half bonnet with orange blossoms at either side. She carried white orchids on her prayer book.

Miss Dorothy Howard was maid of honor and Ronald Betts was best man for his brother. George Wright and William Cottrel were ushers.

MRS. JOHN W. MARTIN
. . . wears blue

Fayetteville, N. C., was given in marriage by her father. She wore a Victorian type dress of blue lace made with a fitted bodice and full skirt. Her matching bonnet was of illusion trimmed in ostrich tips. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Dorothy Williams Martin of this city and William A. Martin of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Mrs. John H. McCaniess of Salisbury, N. C., sister of the bride, was her only attendant and Ralph Sleeper was best man. Ushering were Charles Pinkston and Joe Pinkston, brothers of the bride.

Simms—Roberts

Miss Ellen Lee Roberts, daughter of Mrs. Grace Lee Roberts of Arlington, Va., was married on August 18 in the Arlington Methodist Church to John Bartlette Simms, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Simms of Bailey's Crossroads, Va. The Rev. J. S. Johnston officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Gordon H. Rice, the bride was gowned in white marquisette and lace. Her fingertip veil fell from a seed-pearl tiara and she carried white roses and gladioli. Miss Margaret Hall was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Lillian McPherson and Mrs. Glen Crunkleton. William Sinclair Simms was his brother's best man. Joseph Bell and Glen Crunkleton served as ushers.

The bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Heflin, gave a wedding reception at their home for the newlyweds.

What to Wear at Resort

I am planning a visit to the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the last two weeks in September. Will you advise me what clothes I should take? M. H. B.

White Sulphur Spring, during the latter part of September, usually has ideal autumn weather with warm, sunny days and cool nights. Daytime life centers around outdoor sports, principally golf, so whether you are an active participant or spectator, your chief wardrobe needs will be sports clothes.

Flannel skirts, tailored blouses, and sweaters in pastel shades should be included and you might take along a couple of classic cotton golf dresses in case the days are actually hot. A neutral tweed suit would be advisable, both for traveling and for any cool weather you might encounter at the resort.

If you are interested in tennis, swimming, or riding, you should take along suitable outfits for these sports. For a wrap take along either a pastel wool "shortie" coat, which can double for evening wear, or a casual tweed. For evening wear you should have a few dinner dresses and perhaps a street-length silk frock for the nights when you don't want to wear formal attire.

Walking shoes and spectator sports pumps will be needed, but a single hat for traveling is all that is necessary.

PETUNIA!

I'm writing a heart felt
Memorial ballad
To the tiny hot muffins
she served with the salad!

But she added a generous spoonful of celery seed to the muffin batter, Petunia! It's a fine salad accompaniment.

Bishop-Bracken

In the line of my husband's duty, we have been compelled to travel and live in foreign countries. Back in the thirties, I started a collection of peasant art. I have a beautiful (never worn) costume and other embroideries, including antiques. I also possess an old silver cross blazed in glass with an unusually beautiful frame. Collectors of religious objects would most certainly be interested in it. I find it impossible to hold on to these things any longer on account of my husband's new assignment overseas. We were told not to take our furniture, even, and I most certainly would hate to store these things for an unknown number of years. Can you advise me whom to contact to sell the above mentioned? M. K. U.

There is a shop that recently opened in the 2100 block of K st. for the purpose of selling attractive and unusual used articles. The shop is open from 2 to 8 p. m., and its proprietor would like to look over your things with a view of selling them on commission. The telephone number is Sterling 5191.

Can you tell me where the "Original Clore Chairs" are made? They are advertised as "Built on the same spot since 1830." I have seen them at various wayside shops on and near Skyline Drive and would like to visit the factory or showroom so that I can see all designs and different woods before buying. I. M. C.

We have no information about where these chairs are made. Can any reader tell us?

Could you tell me where in Washington or vicinity I could obtain bamboo or imitation bamboo? I wish to make a lamp stand for a modern room. D. W.

A picture framing shop on G st. sells bamboo by the stick. Whether it can be used in making a lamp stand depends on the type of stand you plan. The store can be reached by telephoning District 3505.

I have a pair of cobra skin sling-back pumps, a little worn, but in excellent condition, that I would like to sell. Do you know of anyone who buys such articles? L. B. M.

An Alexandria shop that sells used articles sells shoes on commission, and reports a brisk demand for good used shoes. The store can be reached by calling Alexandria 0649.

Can you find out the name of a Pennsylvania firm where they make shirts to order? My son used to send his order there but has not done so for sometime and has lost the name and address. Out of several names, he would be able to recognize the one he wants. L. A. D.

We do not have a list of such firms. Any suggestions, readers?

Here is a tip for H. N. S., who wrote the other day regarding screen painting. Whatever you paint with (painters all advise black screen paint, put on sparingly so as not to fill meshes), do take off all narrow wooden strips first. If you do not, rain will seep in and rust, even on copper, and you'll have dark streaks on your house which must be painted again. I did it and hope no one else ever does. Replace strips when paint is thoroughly dry.

W. W. C.

What is a safe method to clean patent leather shoes? A. H. T.

Patent leather can be cleaned with petroleum jelly. Use a soft dry cloth. After shoes are cleaned, buff off excess with clean cloth.

I have a gray, part rayon and part wool suit. It wrinkles so easily that it is no pleasure to wear at all. Is there a treatment that can be given it that will make it wrinkle-proof? There are shops that can waterproof materials. Why not make it less wrinkle-proof? N. C. B.

Sound like a wonderful idea! At the present time, however, there seems to be no such treatment except that given by manufacturers in the process of making the cloth.

MARK TRAIL

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Post Man Enjoys Those Visits from Postman

I've often wished that I could describe the fun I get out of opening the morning mail.

Usually, several dominant themes run through it, depending on what the column has been talking about at the time. Currently, for example, it runs like this:

From Edna Miller, 5434 Taylor st., Bladensburg, Md.: "It's not pronounced cig-ar-ETTE as you had it, but cig-a-RETTE." (She's right).

From Floyd Montgomery, 1801 New York ave. ne.: "Here's another one for your item on pronunciations. In Arkansas it's He-LEE-na and in Montana it's HELL-en-a."

From Mrs. Martin Cooley, 1019 Woodside pkwy., Silver Spring, Md.: "When Dr. Cooley and I visited the area last year, we found that everybody pronounced Caribbean Kar-i-BEE-an, as you listed it. Incidentally, we were passengers on a Canadian ship, and used a lot of Canadian money.

"Since you state that you've never seen a Canadian nickel, perhaps I can help you recognize one. They're not round, but dodecagonal.

"I'm enclosing some Canadian coins with my tokens for Children's Hospital, and also some more familiar currency."

From Dorothy Sonnenberg, 3600 38th st. nw., we get a definition of "dodecagonal": "Canadian nickels are about the same size and weight as American nickels, but are 12-sided. Instead of being round, their perimeter is made up of 12 flat edges.

"By the way, I've seen only one reference to the murals in the Wisconsin ave. Hot Shoppe. I'm sure the theme is the 'Washington Merry-Go-Round,' but there are some characters I can't identify. How about reviving the question? My curiosity is piqued." (What woman's isn't, Dorothy?)

From Mrs. George Carboneau, 3417 E New Mexico ave. nw.: "We must give away three bouncing kittens (housebroken) and a black mother cat. They're all brilliant (they were born on the American University campus) but they've outgrown our two-room apartment. Our phone number is Emerson 5304 and we're home after 5 p. m."

(See how much is lost when we bail that down to the usual "mother cat and three kittens?")

From William F. Bennett, 4905 Queensbury rd., Riverdale, Md.: "Did you know that Harold B. Hughes of 1324 Fort Stevens dr. nw., who draws those unflattering cartoons of you, is a printer? He works at the Government Printing Office and has just come back from serving as a delegate to the I. T. U. Convention." (A printer, eh? No wonder he doesn't like me.)

From Pedro: "I'm the fellow who asked you to find out if anybody sells birthday greeting cards worded in Spanish. I'm signing my name this time, but I didn't the first time because the card is for a girl who always reads your column, and if you'd used my name it would ruin my surprise."

(Okay, Pedro, if any District Liners know where a Spanish birthday card can be purchased, I hope they'll contact me and then I'll contact you. And if you land the girl, I want an invitation to the wedding.)

See what I mean about the morning mail? And that's only the first delivery.

REPORTER'S REPORT

Do you have trouble finding a baby sitter when you want to step out for the evening?

If you do, profit from the technique devised by CBS Newsman John B. Adams of 3460 Martha Custis dr., Alexandria, Va.

The Adamses never lack for bobby-soxers to sit with their 2-year-old Alice Jo Dee.

You see, John has let it get around the neighborhood that his bookcase contains a copy of the Kinsey Report.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two rabbits and three kittens." (Falls Church 7318.)

"Six kittens, one month old." (Wisconsin 3379).

"Mother cat and three affectionate kittens." (Kenmore 5815.)

"Two puppies, 3 months old. Wish we could keep them." (Glebe 0668).

TREASURER'S REPORT

Milt Schlosser (the jeweler, not the organist) of 1505 K st. nw, writes:

"We opened a box of estate jewelry, and look what we found—some more streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital."

Additional contributions have been received from: Elinore Bernice Speck of 310 N. Thomas st., Arlington, Va., and her cousin, Marilyn Marcie Lewis, (who turned in cash raised through the sale of comic books and toys); "Just A Liner (cash); Mrs. A. E. Penfield, 1610 Park rd. nw. (more cash); Mrs. E. T. Barksdale, 2820 P st. nw.; and 4-year-old Mike Newton of Lucketts, Va., (who printed his signature, pretty as you please, on a letter written by his sister).

In addition, the hospital will be $3.98 richer because of a play presented by six young Bradley Village thespians.

The cast included Julie Porter (6), Barbara Greenstreet (11), Beverly Nichols (8), Diana Bole (7) and Virginia Bole (11), the author. At the conclusion, Linda Greenstreet (3) passed the plate for Children's Hospital, and collected $3.98.

I trust that I have made no mistakes on the ages of the ladies involved, as I certainly don't want to wear out my welcome along Exfair rd.

HOW WRONG CAN ONE LINE BE?

The new city directory is now available.

It lists the names (husband and wife), addresses and occupations of about a million Washingtonians, and does the job with amazingly few errors.

The exception is the line dealing with me. It omits my distinguishing middle initial, makes a mistake in my address, snubs my wife completely and offers no clew as to how I make a living.

NEW YORK.—Gen. William J. Donovan, former head of OSS, and Winston Burdette, the commentator, will broadcast their report on the murder of George Polk in Greece, over CBS September 9 . . . The Screen Publicists Guild probably won't comply with the non-Communist oath requirements of the Taft-Hartley Law . . . "Marriage in the Shadows," the first German film to be shown in all four zones, will play here at the Little Met . . . A New York union leader spent an hour with Foreign Minister Bevin in London this month. Bevin's references to President Truman were as vitriolic as those ever used by Stalin.

Last year Gian-Carlo Menotti, who wrote "The Medium" and "The Telephone," was signed by MGM. He spent the intervening year writing a script for MGM, and learning about the movie business . . . A few days ago Menotti sent the script to the studio, and then went there for a conference, during which Menotti used all the technical movie terms he had learned. The script was brought in by a young lady. She placed it on the desk, and told Menotti how much she liked it . . . "Thanks," he said. "Are you the script-girl?" . . . ."No," she told him. "I'm Judy Garland.

In Dallas, Texas, ten years ago, lived three sisters named Frankfurt. One of them was about to have a baby. Another of the sisters took an old dress, cut a design with a pair of scissors, and fashioned a maternity dress. They came to N. Y. where one of their friends wore the maternity dress, walked into Best & Co. with it, and left with a large order . . . In Dallas this week the youngest of the Frankfurt sisters will have a baby. This week the sisters will present their new fall collection of their "Page Boy" maternity dresses and break ground for their new $150,000 plant.

A few months ago Maria Jeritza, the opera singer, was married to Irving F. Seery. This summer the newlyweds went to Jeritza's home in Unter Ach, outside of Salzburg . . . There was singing in the street, and dancing, and speeches by the mayor of the village. Mr. Seery couldn't understand a word of it. An interpreter finally told him the news: At the end of the war Unter Ach had named a street "Maria Jeritza Strasse," and now it was being changed to "Maria Jeritza Seery Strasse."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Probers 'See Red' at Each Other

(While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Leaders of the House Un-American Activities Committee had a scorching secret set-to over the conflicting Hiss-Chambers testimony.

Mr. Hebert

The wrangle took place after the inconclusive, day-long interrogation of the former New Dealer and Time editor. The congressional probers barked more angrily at one another than they had at the two witnesses.

Cause of the dispute was the question of instituting perjury proceedings.

Representative Ed. Hebert, fiery Louisiana Dixiecrat, angrily demanded immediate prosecution. Representative Carl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) and Representative Richard Nixon (R., Calif.) just as angrily insisted on further public hearings. Each side accused the other of playing politics and grand-standing.

"I'm getting sick of this messing around," Hebert declared. "Either Hiss or Chambers is lying, but it's not for us to decide who is guilty. We have presented the evidence, and it's now up to the Justice Department to determine who committed perjury and to prosecute. I am strongly in favor of the committee continuing its investigation, but the Hiss-Chambers phase of it is finished. It's time we went on to other things.

"But the Administration wants to shut off the probe entirely, while you Republicans want to keep this Hiss-Chambers pot boiling. Both sides are playing politics. I'm a Thurmond man myself, and I say you are both tryng to drag this matter out until after the November election."

"We're laying the facts on a very important matter concerning the loyalty of Government officials before the American people," retorted Mundt. "Do you call that playing politics-"

"It's the way you're doing it," shot back Herbert. "You are obviously dragging this thing out in an effort to affect the election. We have already established the fact that perjury was committew. What more is needed for the Justice Department to act? It's got the evidence, let it step in and take over. That's what the department is for."

"That's your opinion," snapped Nixon. "We don't think the committee has uncovered all the evidence. Until we do, we should not waive our rights to the Justice Department."

Strangely, Chairman Parnell Thomas, usually very vocal, took no part in the exchange. Later, however, he indicated he was "inclined" to agree with Hebert.

The committee finally effected a compromise. On Nixon's motion it was agreed to hear several other witnesses after which the case would be turned over to the Justice Department.

Cured

Clark Clifford, handsome young ghost writer for President Truman, has a favorite story on how a certain speech was prepared for the late FDR.

Instead of turning the task over to his usual assistants, Roosevelt, on this occasion, did his own drafting. Several days before the speech was to be made, he turned the manuscript over to Harry Hopkins.

"I've written this myself," Roosevelt said. "Look it over and see what ought to be done with it."

Hopkins summoned Judge Sam Rosenman and playwright Robert E. Sherwood, who usually prepared the speeches. After the trio had read the draft, there was a long silence.

Finally Sherwood said, "the best thing is to put this aside and start fresh from scratch."

The next day, Hopkins handed the new speech to Roosevelt. He read it carefully and then exclaimed, "This is fine. Just what I wanted."

Clifford relates that Roosevelt never asked about his original draft and never again wrote another speech.

Secret Test

The United States public doesn't know it, but it's being secretly "tested" on reaction toward one-time Jap collaborators.

The cagey probing is being done by a group of powerful Filipino politicos who would like to stage a comeback in next year's presidential election. Head of the group is Jose Laurel, Premier of the wartime puppet government. Now at liberty under an amnesty order of the late President Roxas, Laurel has his eye on the Philippine Presidency.

The testing of United States sentiment is being done in this manner: Prominent former collaborators are being quietly sent to Washington on short visits to circulate among officials and to do some open-handed entertaining. The idea is that if no "squawks" develop, then others will be sent over for longer stays. If that proves successful, then Laurel himself will come over.

Latest of these trial balloons was Jorge Vargas, who spent a week in a swank capital hotel. Vargas headed the executive committee of the puppet government and was puppet Ambassador to Tokyo. He was imprisoned by Gen. MacArthur and spent a long time in jail. Like Laurel, Vargas was freed under the Roxas amnesty.

Two other former collaborationists are due shortly. They are Camillo Osias and Emilio Tria Tirona, who were active in the Jap setup. If they get by without outcry, the plan is to make still another of the group a member of the Filipino Embassy.

He is Arsemio Luz, Minister of Propaganda in the puppet government. The job slated for him is information officer of the embassy. And his assistant would be Leon Guerrero, who was top broadcaster of the Jap-controlled Manila radio.

Strike

The President's home State is chalking up a strike record for the year. The famed Missouri "lead belt" has been the scene of the year's longest strike. For eight weeks, hundreds of employes of the St. Joseph Lead Co. have been on a wage-demand walkout. No settlement is yet in sight.

On the bus

There may be faster ways on earth . . . To reach a certain place . . . But on the bus we seldom think . . . In terms of time or place . . . Because we know that we behold . . . A prettier terrain . . . Than we could see above the clouds . . . Or from the average train . . . Among our fellow passengers . . . We never feel alone . . . And somehow all the countryside . . . Appears to be our own . . . We stop at spots along the way . . . To stretch our weary legs . . . And get a drink of water or . . . To order ham and eggs . . . The bus belongs to rich or poor . . . Wherever they may be . . . With tickets punched for pleasure and . . . For real economy

LOSING Your HAIR ...and Your LOOKS

ENJOY MORE VIRILE HAIR in 30 DAYS or WE PAY THE FEE!

R. W. FARRELL, Trichologist

Give your scalp a chance to grow hair! Don't let simple deterrents like clogged follicles or sluggish circulation stifle your scalp's natural urge to grow strong, healthy hair! Our intensive trichological treatments scientifically combine ulfraviolet therapy, professional stimulation and exclusive laboratory-created formulae; they penetrate clogged hair passages, attack subscalp bacteria, eliminate itchiness and irritation, normalize the blood circulation which "feeds" the hair roots, and revitalizes the entire cycle of hair-growing activity. Delay is deadly and may lead to fatal follicle shrinkage. Come in today or tonight for a free comprehensive examination and consultation. Hopeless cases are never accepted. Yes, enjoy your hair's new virile look within 30 days or we'll pay your fee!
